

a

PRINTED FOR THE MALONE SOCIETY BY HORACE HART M.A., AT THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS

THE BOOK OF SIR THOMAS MORE

12-4-19-1-

THE MALONE SOCIETY
REPRINTS 22

This edition of Sir Thomas More has been prepared by the General Editor.

Nov. 1911.

W. W. Greg.

The manuscript of Sir Thomas More is preserved in the British Museum, where it is classed as MS. Harley 7368. It has therefore been in the possession of the nation since 1753, but unfortunately nothing seems to be known as to its previous history. A thin folio volume, the leaves of which measure about $12\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{4}$ inches, it was originally covered with a vellum wrapper formed of a double leaf of a Latin manuscript apparently of the thirteenth century, and on this wrapper the title of the play, 'The Booke of Sir Thomas Moore,' was written in a large formal hand. When the last edition of the Harleian Catalogue was prepared in 1808 More formed one volume with the Humorous Lovers (MS. 7367). These items have now been separated, and More has been bound by itself. The original wrapper is still preserved and now constitutes fols. I and 2.

Thus the play itself begins on fol. 3.

The number of leaves of which the manuscript originally consisted cannot now be determined with certainty, for the individual leaves have been detached and mounted, while the closeness of the writing, the absorbent nature of the paper, and in parts the heaviness of the mending, put any collation by watermarks, if such exist, out of the question. All we can say is that thirteen original leaves remain and that there are two lacunae. Thus we have fols. 3-5, gap, 10-11, gap, 14-15, 17-22, the verso of the last leaf being blank. The other leaves are later insertions. The extent of the lacunae is doubtful, but to judge from the subject matter it would seem that after fol. 5 possibly, and after fol. 11 probably, not more than a single leaf is absent. In that case there presumably was once a blank leaf at the end; and if we imagine the original manuscript to have consisted of eight sheets we shall not be far wrong.

But considerable additions have been made at a later date. After fol. 5 has been inserted a leaf, fol. 6, written on one side only, which we shall see belongs, if anywhere, to a much later portion of the play. After fol. 6 appear three leaves, fols. 7-9, the verso of the third being blank, designed to replace the original leaf or leaves cancelled after fol. 5 as well as matter deleted on fol. 5^b itself. So again after fol. 11 are inserted two leaves, fols. 12 and 13, intended to fill the later lacuna and replace most of fol. 11^b and the whole of fol. 14^a. Besides this two slips of paper, each measuring about 6 × 5 inches, were pasted over cancelled matter on the lower portions of fols. 11^b and 14^a respectively. They contain minor additions intended to stand at the beginning and end of the main insertion of fols. 12 and 13. These slips have recently been soaked off and mounted as separate leaves, fols. 11* and 13*, so that the underlying text can now be read for the first time since the sixteenth century. Lastly, after fol. 15 we find one leaf, fol. 16, of which the recto and part only of the verso are filled, containing an addition to be made to the text on fol. 17a.

The manuscript, especially the original portion, has unfortunately suffered considerably at the hand of time. The margins of many of the leaves, in particular the top and bottom edges and the outer corners, are discoloured and brittle, and one would almost suppose that they had at some time been exposed to fire, were it not for the comparatively uninjured state of some at least of the additional leaves, and for the fact that the cover, though also worn and damaged, does not exhibit the crinkling which vellum always undergoes when exposed to heat. The injury must therefore be ascribed to the action of air and dust upon a peculiarly and unfortunately constituted paper. Subsequent to the arrival of the manuscript at the British Museum, I suppose at the time it was rebound, and certainly not before 1844, the date of Dyce's edition, it has been thoroughly and even drastically mended. Not only have the edges of the leaves been repaired, and it would seem a good deal of the text obliterated which more careful handling might have preserved, but in the case of the tenderer leaves both sides have been pasted over with thick yellow tracing paper, in a manner to suggest that more importance was attached to the preservation of a particular piece of paper than of the text of which it was the medium. And even so the mischief has not been arrested, for several of the leaves are now again in need of repair, which it may be presumed they will soon receive in a more careful and reasonable manner.

Seven different hands appear in the manuscript itself, apart from the vellum wrapper. To begin with there is the Scribe of the original play, to whom I shall refer by the letter S. He writes a good regular hand, not typically professional, rarely if ever presenting serious difficulties except where it has been obscured by extraneous causes. It is an English hand, with Italian forms freely, if not consistently, interspersed to distinguish proper names and the like. On the whole little difficulty is experienced in rendering the one by roman and the other by italic type, the writer's intention being usually clear though the two styles, particularly as regards majuscules, are not always kept clearly apart. The fault of S is that the lines are written very close together, often eighty or more to a folio page, and that the descenders are of inordinate length, so that in a particular line the reader is often bothered by the intrusion of parts of letters belonging to two lines above. This would have mattered less had the paper been better, but that used was rather absorbent and showed every line through. The result is that there are many passages, even on pages not covered with tracing paper, where owing to the penetration of the ink the text can only be laboriously spelt out letter by letter. Where we have to contend with decay and repairs as well, the difficulties are, of course, enormously increased and prove in some cases insurmountable. The ink used is of a rich dark brown which retains a good colour even when quite thin. The surface is rather mat, perhaps owing to the absorbent quality of the paper. The scribe's spelling is remarkable for its regularity, and even, if we allow for a few peculiarities such as the doubling of the 'o' in words like 'doth' and 'love' and 'worthy', for its modernity. His punctuation too is as a rule adequate, and distinguishes itself chiefly by a curious tendency to place a colon, particularly at the end of the penultimate line of a speech, in cases where a modern writer would hesitate to put any stop at all. This peculiarity is also occasionally met with in printed plays of the period, and most likely indicates some rhetorical trick in the delivery of Elizabethan actors. It is clear that the scribe was both skilled and conscientious. His errors are few. As a rule all his letters are well formed, but he was aware that there were some exceptions. For instance, he was apt to neglect the head of his 'h'; and over and over again he has gone back and carefully added the loop, although no real ambiguity could ever arise from the defect.

Five distinct hands appear in the additions, and have been lettered A to E. A appears on fol. 6 and nowhere else. It is an English hand, almost devoid of Italian intermixture, clear and legible with a good deal of individual character. The ink is grey and shows hardly any tinge of brown except where the paper has become stained near the edge. The punctuation is rather scanty. The interest of the hand lies in the fact that the writer was accustomed to the old convention with regard to the use of 'u' and 'v', but was trying to adopt the new. He instinctively and repeatedly writes 'u' for a medial consonant, but in two cases he has gone back and altered it to 'v'. It is significant that he also uses the tailed 'j' with its modern value.

B is an interesting hand, being by far the worst in the volume. It is a current hand of an English type, making little attempt at the regular formation of individual letters, and therefore difficult to reproduce in print. It is in fact the sort of hand in which an author would write his rough draft. The punctuation is negligible. In this hand are written fol. 7^a and the whole of fol. 16. It also appears in various marginal additions to the text as written by S, namely at *502, *609, *638, *647. The same may be true as regards the direction at *735 and the crosses at 418 and II 18, but this is far from certain. The ink varies. On fol. 7^a it is not unlike that of S, but thinner and slightly yellower in colour. So too in the marginal additions. On fol. 16, however, though the colour appears to be the same the ink is much thicker and darker.

C is the most important of the additional hands. In it are written fols. 7^b, 12^a, 12^b, 13^a, and the upper half of 13^b, as well as 11* and 13*. The scribe to whom it belonged also edits D freely and adds frequent notes and directions both to B and S. His work on the former will be found to run all through II 123-270. His directions occur at 410, *553, †954, †1158, VI 1, 33. It is not quite certain whether II 65 is his. Two corrections in B, at II 17 and 42, may also be reasonably assigned to his pen. His hand is well formed, both as regards English and Italian script, and has more pretence to beauty or at least ornament than any other appearing in the manuscript. For punctuation there is little beyond a point which is usually placed rather high, and even this is not of very frequent appearance. A peculiarity of the hand is a marked tendency to form the 'p' as if it were 'p'. The ink used is very similar to that of S, possibly a trifle richer in colour but hardly distinguishable. Like B's it varies somewhat, though not to the same extent.

D, a purely English hand apparently, occurs on fols. 8^a, 8^b, 9^a only, the two former pages being now badly obscured by tracing paper. It is certainly a different hand from C, with which it has been sometimes confused, but C is found correcting it rather freely. It has, for instance, the distinction of forming its 'p' in the usual manner and of also using 'p' repeatedly and correctly. There is very little punctuation. The ink is quite unmistakable, being of a peculiar muddy yellow. It is this hand \(\) which has been thought to be Shakespeare's.

The last additional hand, E, is found only on the lower half of fol. 13^b. English and Italian styles are used and adequately distinguished, though neither is very carefully formed. The short passage is rather fully punctuated, a characteristic being the partiality for the colon, which regularly appears after the speaker's name (as in certain printed plays) and sometimes at the end of speeches. The ink is distinctly blacker than that used by C, but still brown rather than grey. A comparison with MS. Addit. 30262, fol. 66^b, at the British Museum, and with Henslowe's Diary, fols. 101 and 114, at Dulwich College, suggests that this hand may be Thomas Dekker's. There is at least what I should call a strong resemblance between the two.

ix

Sir George Warner says, a certain resemblance. We probably mean much the same thing, and this may perhaps be best expressed by a negative, namely that there is nothing in the two hands to suggest that they are not the same. Repeated comparison has deepened my own feeling that they are.

Finally we have the hand of Edmund Tilney, Master of the Revels, and in that capacity censor of the drama. He writes in the margin of the first page (fol. 3ª) a very conditional licence. In this his hand appears in a clear Italian script, of no very individual character. The ink used is not unlike that of S, but slightly blacker in colour, in fact very close to E's. He also made a note, 'Mend yis', in the margin of fol. 5ª (320), and another, 'all altr' (?), on fol. 17b (†1256), and is responsible for some other marks of disapproval on the same pages. Three alterations made by him in the text also occur on fol. 5ª, at 352, 364, 368. Probable marks of his appear on fol. 3ª (see 24 and 45) and may be connected with his initial note. His hand is designated by the letter T.

Tilney does not seem to have been responsible for the note on fol. 11b (*735), which Dyce printed as 'This must be newe written', but which is now almost illegible. If it is by any of the hands mentioned, B would seem the most likely, but it is of course quite possible that the above list is incomplete. For instance, it is not quite certain whether the marginal note at VI is in the same hand as the text, while a few of the alterations ascribed to C are, it will be noticed, doubtful. There are also indications that a much later hand has been at work on the manuscript here and there. A word has been scribbled in the margin of fol. 3b (see 111 and p. xx below) in what looks like modern ink, though it is impossible to make certain through the covering of tracing paper. Alterations almost certainly in modern ink occur at II 22, 52, 264, VI 26, 47, 52, 53, 61; less certain are those at II 193, †1203, and 62, this last line being obscured by tracing paper. At †1117 and †1119 there appear to be modern blots. Further there are a number of small pencil crosses (which will be found mentioned in the notes) which must have been made in quite modern times, though before the manuscript was repaired.

Something must be said as to the manner in which the additions have been made. Addition I is altogether rather a puzzle. It evidently has some connexion with the proposed omissions on fol. 19^a. The reason for these is hardly clear. The fear of possible offence in †1491-3 is no adequate reason for the deletion of †1471-1501, and can have nothing whatever to do with that of †1506-16. Moreover these deletions leave †1502-5 in impossibly awkward isolation; nor is it easy to combine these lines with the proposed addition. Clearly in this case the process of revision is incomplete. Addition VI, on the other hand, is perfectly straightforward, being an additional scene inserted at the juncture of two original ones on fol. 17^a. The new scene was written by B, and fitted into its place by C. There remain the two substantial insertions corresponding to the two lacunae in the original text. Both present interesting features. I take the second first.

Between fols. 11 and 14 two leaves are inserted (Addition IV). These contain a long continuous scene in which first More and Faukner, then More and Erasmus, and then again More and Faukner, are the chief characters. The four pages contain 242 lines. Portions of the unrevised version of this scene fill most of fol. 11b (*735-96) with More and Erasmus, and the whole of fol. 142 (†797-877) with More and Faukner dialogue. This makes 143 lines, so that, supposing only a single leaf lost, the original text must have been distinctly longer than the revised. It is of course not certain whether the original text was continuous, or whether there were two distinct scenes, but the appearance of Surrey in both parts suggests the former alternative as the more likely. In that case the chief alteration made in revision was to cut the Faukner portion into two and to insert the Erasmus part in the middle. This seems on the whole to have been an improvement dramatically, though the advantage was perhaps gained at some sacrifice of clearness in the action. But the reviser's efforts did not end here. A speech by More (Addition III) was written on a loose slip and pasted on to fol. II^b. It was clearly an afterthought and has no very close connexion with what follows, though from its position it is fairly evident that it was meant to be somehow inserted at the beginning of the main addition. On another slip (Addition V), pasted on to fol. I4^a, was written another speech by More, and this was definitely connected with what follows, the first words on fol. I4^b being repeated at the foot of the slip. And yet such a crude insertion is manifestly impossible, for the action is not continuous. The only means of utilizing this speech and a yet later addition made in the margin, is by constituting them a separate scene, though this does not appear to have been the intention of the writer.

Equally complicated, though in a different way, is the revision that supplements the first lacuna (Addition II). On fol. 5^b we find an entire scene, that of the riots, cancelled, as is also all that remains of a scene between certain prentices. After the break the text resumes on fol. 10a in the middle of the scene in which More quells the insurrection. The inserted matter contains a revision of the riot scene, a scene apparently at the Guildhall of which no trace survives in the original text, and a new beginning to the insurrection scene, made to fit on to the old part immediately after More's speech to the rebels. The prentice scene vanishes. Its place would seem to have been taken by the Guildhall scene. This I conjecture to be entirely new. It reports in the opening speeches the wounding of Sir John Munday by certain prentices, an incident which was presumably represented in the cancelled scene. Moreover if my surmise is correct the matter altogether lost from the original manuscript (the end of scene v and beginning of scene vi) can reasonably be supposed to have filled one leaf, while if we have to allow for an earlier draft of the Guildhall scene (scene va) as well, it is difficult to see how the lost matter could either have been contained in one leaf or have filled two. The revision of scene iv is in hand B, scene va and the initial stage direction to scene vi (all on fol. 7b) are written by C, and then comes the astonishing addition by D. Round this much controversy has centred. The writer has no respect for, perhaps no knowledge of, the play on which he is working. His characters are unrecognizable. He is indifferent to the personae. He writes 'other' and leaves it to C to assign the speech to whom he pleases. In II 233 and following he begins by writing a sentence which in the absence of punctuation it is almost impossible not to misread, then alters and interlines till it becomes impossible to follow his intention, and leaves it to C to clear up the confusion. This C does by boldly excising some three lines and inserting one makeshift half-line of his own. Yet these hasty pages of D's have individual qualities which mark them off sharply from the rest of the play. There is wit in the humours of the crowd, there is something like passion in More's oratory. So striking indeed are these qualities that more than one critic has persuaded himself that the lines in question can have come from no pen but Shakespeare's. The possibility acquires additional interest from the fact that the passage is undoubtedly autograph. Here possibly are three pages, one of them still legible, in the hand that so many have desired to see. The question is one of stylistic evidence, and each reader will have to judge for himself. I do not feel called upon to pronounce: but I will say this much, that it seems to me an eminently reasonable view that would assign this passage to the writer who, as I believe, foisted certain of the Jack Cade scenes into the second part of Henry VI. In spite of the undoubted literary merit of D's additions, I cannot myself regard them with the admiration they have aroused in some critics.

It seems always to have been assumed that the play was submitted to Tilney in its original form and that the alterations and substitutions now found in the manuscript are the result of an attempt to comply with the censor's demands. This appears to me an error. His directions are specific and urgent. 'Leave out the insurrection wholly and the cause thereof,' says Tilney, 'and begin with Sir Thomas More at the Mayor's sessions, with a report afterwards of his good service done, being Shrieve of London, upon a mutiny against the Lombards, only by a short report and not otherwise, at your perils.' And we are to suppose that in the face of this the actors allowed the first scene, containing the cause of the riots, to stand unaltered, went to the trouble and expense of making an elaborate revision of the insurrection scenes, which whatever its literary merit can hardly have been supposed to meet the political objection, and then ventured to put the play on the stage. That is to say they behaved as though there were no Master of the Revels, no Privy Council, and no Star Chamber. Only collective insanity could account for such a proceeding. But I do not think any such supposition necessary, for every indication in the manuscript points to its having been submitted for licence in its present form. The indications, it is true, are not many but they are Besides Tilney's general directions as to the significant. insurrection, he left specific notes on two passages that incurred his censure. Against a speech of Shrewsbury's at the top of fol. 5ª (316-23) he has written 'Mend this', and has apparently signified his disapproval of another passage on the same page (372, &c.). The ground of the objection is obviously certain injudicious comments on the dangerous topic of popular discontent. So again, in the scene at the Privy Council in which More refuses to sign the articles sent by the king, the censor has struck out an important passage (fol. 17b, †1247-75) and written in the margin a not very legible note, by which however he clearly meant that the whole of this portion was to be altered. Yet in neither case has any notice whatever been taken of the censor's orders. I cannot quote any certain instance of an alteration made by Tilney himself in the portions of the play that have undergone revision, but I would call attention to the heavy scoring by which the first two speeches on fol. 7b (II 68-75) are marked for omission. It is not impossible that this may be in Tilney's own hand, though from the colour of the ink it may perfectly well be in the same hand as the text (C). But the reason for the omission was most certainly neither literary nor dramatic, but political. The lines describe how

Sir John Munday was wounded in the riots, and if not actually struck out by the censor were certainly condemned in deference to his views. But it is evident throughout that the manuscript has not been finally revised for presentation. Everywhere passages are marked for omission, but whether the objection was aesthetic or official, the marks are merely vague indications of what was objectionable, and no attempt is made to sew the loose ends into decent continuity. The censor or a scribe under his influence strike out the opening speeches of two scenes (iii and va, 316 and II 68), and they are left truncated: the censor draws his pen through the description of More's contumacy (†1247, &c.), and no attempt is made to find a substitute for it, though its loss would make the catastrophe unintelligible. The bulk of the additional matter, the Erasmus-Faukner scene with its adjuncts (III, IV, V; fols. 11*, 12, 13, 13*) and the last player-scene (VI; fol. 16), as also the 'More in melancholy' passage (I; fol. 6), can have nothing whatever to do with the censor, being obviously due solely to dramatic considerations. Add to this that the rest of the alterations (II; fols. 7, 8, 9), which do affect the portions condemned by the censor, are as natural from the point of view of literary revision as they are inexplicable as an attempt to meet the official objections, and I do not see how it is possible to avoid the conclusion that they were already in the manuscript when this was submitted for licence. When it returned bearing Tilney's remarks, it became clear, as I should have thought it would have been clear to critics from the outset, that it was quite impossible to comply with the demands of the censor without eviscerating the play in a manner fatal to its success on the stage. The manuscript was consequently laid aside and the play never came on the boards. This, I think, is the obvious conclusion, and if it has not been drawn before, it is presumably because the occurrence in the manuscript of the name of an actor as filling one of the minor parts (V 2, fol. 13*) has been supposed to indicate that the play was actually performed. But clearly the only deduction that the evidence warrants is that the play was cast, which, as many managers are painfully aware, is by no means the same thing.

Another common assumption has been that the diversity of hands represents diversity of authorship, and in this case the inference is on the face of it not unreasonable. It needs, however, careful testing. Whether the original draft is in the autograph of the original author is uncertain. It is, of course, a fair copy, but there is no reason why a fair copy should not be made by the author himself. Indeed there is definite evidence from the first quarter of the seventeenth century that this was at least not unusual. The hand (S) is by no means typical of the professional scribe of the time. The duplicate endings (†1956-86) show that the draft was either written by the author himself or under his immediate supervision, but the latter is perhaps as likely as the former. The point is I think settled by one small item of evidence. This is the queer word 'fashis' in †1847. It should be 'fashion', and there seems no reasonable doubt that the writer has misread an 'o' as a final 's'. This is quite an easy mistake, for the two resemble one another closely in some hands, but it is a mistake of which it is almost impossible to suppose that an author would be guilty in copying his own work. I shall therefore assume, what has indeed I think been the general view, that the original text of the play is not autograph.

But if this is so there is nothing to prevent one of the additional hands from being that of the original author. Let us therefore examine these rather more carefully. A is unquestionably an independent writer and not a copyist. The alterations in his draft of More's speech on fol. 6 put that beyond question. But the occasion of his addition, which has never like the rest been fitted into its place, and even the exact lines which it is intended to replace, are uncertain. He seems to be an author working independently of the rest, and possibly somewhat later. Although I cannot honestly say that I detect any marked difference of style between the original scene and the addition, it seems to me unlikely that we have in A a writer who was concerned in more than the single passage preserved in his own hand. The case is still clearer with D. While his three pages are unquestionably autograph, the individuality of his style makes it quite evident that it was for these alone that he was responsible. E is more doubtful. If it is Dekker's hand the passage is likely to be a bit of original composition. The alteration in IV 236 has the appearance of an author's correction. But the passage is rather roughly though legibly written, apparently as an afterthought and with the deliberate intention of filling up the odd half-page. There is no indication that the writer was responsible for more than these few lines.

The two remaining hands clearly belong to a different category, for their work pervades the whole manuscript instead of being confined to a particular passage as is the case with A, D, E. B is undoubtedly an original author, for he writes roughly and often barely legibly. He scribbles his text first and inserts the names of the speakers afterwards (see fol. 162, VI 21-35) or forgets them altogether (fol. 112, 649-58). When revising a scene of the original text he writes a string of names so badly that either he or some one else has to put a reference mark to the cancelled passage in order that the reader may be able to make out what is intended (fol. 5b, 418-21; fol. 7a, II 18-20). It is probable that he is the author of a good deal of the additional matter which is not actually in his hand. For on fol. 16b he writes in a blank space the rough and altered draft of some lines (VI 68-73) which we find copied by C into their proper context on fol. 13 (V 2-7). His marginal additions to the original text already noticed go to show that he exercised a general supervision and was probably from a literary point of view responsible for the alteration which the play was undergoing. It would be interesting if it could be shown that he actually was, as I have surmised, responsible for the marginal note on fol. 11b (*735-6) ordering the revision of the Erasmus-Faukner scene, but unfortunately this is not certain.

C, as we have just seen, is found transcribing B. In this case at least, therefore, he is not an original author but a copyist,

xvii c

and there is no reason to suppose that he is anything more elsewhere. None of the alterations in his portion of the text are conclusive for authorship. But he is nevertheless a very important person. He revises the stage directions throughout, both in the original text and in the additions, and seems responsible (as is most clearly shown in the case of VI) for fitting the latter into their places. As B seems to have had the literary, so C appears to have had the dramatic, side of the revision under his charge. He can patch up a line or two when needed, and edits D, a careless writer, freely, but I do not think that there is anything to suggest that he was an independent author. My own impression is that A, D, and E were each responsible for the portions found in their own hands and no more, and that B wrote those passages where either his own hand or that of C appears.

The question whether B had anything to do with the original text of the play is a much more difficult one. It is conceivable that he may have been the original author. At any rate I can detect no difference in style between the portions written by S and those written by B and C. B is the only one of the additional scribes who makes marginal additions to the original text, and his additions show him to have entered fully into the spirit of that original. They are less like grafts than natural offshoots of the dialogue. Moreover we may well question whether any one but the author himself would have troubled to make the revision of scene iv for the sake of the trifling alterations introduced (fol. 5b, 412-52; fol. 7a, II 1-64). On the other hand, I am unable to point to any evidence that C was liable to the peculiar graphic ambiguity which seems to underly S's misreading 'fashis' (see above), and I am aware that I have perhaps carried the discussion beyond the bounds of profitable conjecture. All I will add is this, that supposing the original text to be the work of a single author, and supposing that author's hand to occur anywhere in the extant manuscript, then the evidence points to that hand being B. There is this to be said in favour of his claim, that he is the only one of the writers in question who was manifestly incapable of making his own fair copy.

One minor point of considerable interest is the play performed at More's banquet, to which the title of The Marriage of Wit and Wisdom is given. This fragment has nothing to do with the piece now known by that name, but is in fact a somewhat altered version of a scene from Lusty Juventus, to which is prefixed a prologue of which the first eight lines are taken from that to the Disobedient Child.

The date of the play has been a good deal disputed. Tilney's note does not necessarily imply a date before 1607, and I do not myself see that his objection to the insurrection scene need have been connected with any particular events. The mention of 'Mason among the Kings players' (†1151) might be thought to point to 1603 or later, but of Mason himself nothing is known, and anachronism, though always possible, is not de rigeur in our early drama. Anachronistic certainly are the references (†1006, †1148) to Oagle the wigmaker, for a John Ogle or Owgle appears in this capacity in the Revels' accounts for 1572-3 and 1584-5 (Cunningham, 21, 38, 193). These references would seem to favour a somewhat earlier date, and such is put practically beyond question by the palaeographical evidence, which Sir George Warner is confident points to the sixteenth century. If the conjecture that would connect one of the additions with Henry VI be correct, it would throw back the date of the former, and a fortiori of the original text, to quite early in the nineties. Some such year as 1592 or 1593 would also be supported by the mention, at V 2, of T. Goodal; a name which likewise serves to connect the play with Lord Strange's men, Shakespeare's company. For Goodal or Goodale took the rôle of a Councillor in the second part of the Seven Deadly Sins, a piece acted by Strange's players, of which a plot and cast probably belonging to 1592 is extant. The only other mention of him is as early as 1581, when on 11 July he is named in a document of the City of London as one of Lord Berkeley's players who were engaged in an affray with certain gentlemen of Gray's Inn (Harrison's Description of England, New Shakspere Soc., part iv, suppl., § 2, p. 320, where the document is printed without reference). A Baptiste Goodale is included in a forged list of 'her Majesty's poore Playeres... sharers in the blacke Fryers playehouse' in Nov. 1589 printed by Collier (Shakespeare, i. cviii), but it is not known whether this rests on any genuine information. Anyhow Collier proceeds to identify his Baptiste with the T. Goodal of the manuscript, which is manifestly unreasonable. He further states (i. cix) that Laneham also acted in Sir Thomas More. But the only possible trace of Laneham to be found in the manuscript is the somewhat illegible scribble in the margin of fol. 3^b (111), and since this is very probably in modern ink it cannot be accepted as altogether satisfactory evidence.

Sir Thomas More was first edited by Dyce, his edition being issued by the Shakespeare Society in 1844. It is certainly open to the criticism which has been passed upon it, that it represents neither the original nor the revised text, but a confused compromise between the two. Other faults are that it seldom takes any notice of marks of omission, and that as regards minor deletions it generally either retains or omits them arbitrarily and without warning (cf. *509). Contractions are expanded; capitals, italics, and punctuation are the editor's. Since, however, the text was prepared at a time when the damage to the manuscript appears to have been considerably less than at present, and in particular before the rather disastrous attempts at reparation had been made, it is in many cases our sole authority for whole lines, and its readings everywhere deserve the respectful consideration of the modern editor. For, of whatever errors of judgement Dyce may have been guilty in constructing his text, the fundamental work of transcription was for the most part executed with exemplary care, in spite of what, even in a less ruinous state of the original, must still have been very considerable difficulties. So far as I can ascertain the number of verbal readings in which the present text differs from Dyce's exceeds two hundred by six. It is conceivable that in spite of my best endeavour I may in some of these instances be wrong; it is certain that some are matter of opinion, though I have made it a rule to bow to Dyce's authority in doubtful cases unless I felt pretty certain that he was wrong. But these cases are not many. Of the remainder, the great majority are minutiae of a trivial kind. The number of substantial misreadings is not much more than a dozen all told; the worst being 'wrought' for 'prouokte' (289), 'hayday' for 'hazard' (III 21), 'leve cavell' for 'live Civell' (IV 188), and the silent omission of two rather obscure words in †1506. This is I think a remarkable achievement in a manuscript of the length and difficulty of More. To say so may seem an indirect boast on my part, but I am in reality keenly alive to the fact that if, as I hope and believe, my text is not only formally but verbally a good deal more faithful than Dyce's, this is in great measure due to my having had his work at hand as a constant check upon my own.

The only other edition that requires mention is that in Mr. Tucker Brooke's volume entitled The Shakespearian Apocrypha, Oxford, 1908. Although the editor has adopted the revised text rather more frankly than his predecessor, his edition yet remains open to the same rather serious objections as Dyce's. Verbally his text can claim no original authority. It is an almost unaltered reprint of Dyce's, and of the two hundred and six errors I have imputed to that editor, Mr. Tucker Brooke corrects exactly six (252 '(Aside.)', 435, †1197, †1847 'sits', II 111, IV 218) while he introduces two new errors of his own (261 '(Aside.)', IV 173 'laudant'). Dyce, apart from an occasional slip (which I have recorded) follows the manuscript exactly in his use of 'u' and 'v': he is, however, not to be trusted in the matter of 'i' and 'j', his system being at fault (I have neglected his variants in this respect). I have failed to find any principle underlying Mr. Tucker Brooke's procedure: he is not consistent in following the manuscript, neither does he conform either to the ancient or to the modern convention: similar confusion reigns as regards capitals and contractions. His perfunctory and inaccurate introduction does not call for discussion in this place.

Besides the two editions mentioned there exists a photographic facsimile of the manuscript prepared by Mr. R. B. Fleming and issued in a series of Tudor Facsimile Texts. It is the full size of the original and leaves nothing to be desired in the way of technical execution, but of course the covering of tracing paper and the staining of the margins render many passages hopeless for the photographer. What purpose of general utility it was thought that a facsimile of which a large part is absolutely illegible could serve, I do not know, but to me it has proved invaluable, indeed without its help I should have hardly found the present work possible. It is also incidentally of value in preserving intact one or two passages which have since been damaged in the manuscript.

It remains to say something as to the present edition. The rules which govern the editing of the Malone Society's texts of course forbade any attempt to patch up a compromise between the original and revised versions of the play. On the other hand there were obvious drawbacks to printing the manuscript exactly as it stood. After some hesitation therefore I determined to print first the whole of the original text so far as it has been preserved, and then to gather together at the end all the various attempts at revision in so far as they were made on separate leaves and did not merely consist of trifling additions or directions written in the margins of the original sheets. These insertions I have printed in the order in which they at present stand in the manuscript, and have numbered The hand in which any particular passage is written I have indicated in the headline and more minutely in the notes. Any addition or alteration (of a whole word or more) made in a hand different from that of the text of that passage, is distinguished by the substitution of small capitals for lowercase type; specific information concerning the hand being added in the notes.

As usual I have endeavoured in my edition to follow the arrangement of the original as closely as possible. All deletions are indicated by square brackets, except in certain cases where the ink in which they are made seems certainly to be modern. Of such no notice has been taken in the text itself. Interlineations are printed in the text at the point at which they appear to belong, without other distinction than an explanatory note. Where an interlineation replaces a deleted word it is printed immediately after it, and the deletion and interlineation may be taken as due to the same hand. Mere deletions and similar marks it is usually impossible to assign to any particular hand: where they are not stated to be in a different ink from that used by the scribe of the passage in which they occur, they may generally be taken as being probably by him, though the inference is by no means always safe. Passages marked for omission or cancelled are not treated as deleted but are distinguished by a line down the left side, the habitual mark used in the original. All mutilations of the manuscript, and all passages which are for whatever reason indecipherable, are indicated by pointed brackets. Words occurring within these brackets are those which Dyce purported to have read there, but which are no longer legible. The occurrence of pointed brackets does not however necessarily mean that anything is lost from the text. They may merely indicate that the leaf is mutilated or obscured, so that if there was any writing at that point it is now lost. Where a mutilation occurs in or at the end of a line and extends to the right margin, only the initial bracket is inserted, the end of the line-space being taken to close the bracket. Since, however, it is usual to read from left to right, this rule has not been applied to the beginnings of lines. Where these are mutilated the initial bracket is placed in the margin (if the mutilation extends to the edge) and the closing bracket at the point at which the text becomes legible.

For the convenience of analysis and reference I have divided the original draft, so far as it is extant, into scenes, which I have indicated in the notes and headlines. The scenes of the revision I have numbered in connexion with these. The lines of the original text I have also numbered consecutively, including those which I have supposed lost at the top and bottom margins. Since, however, the text is not really continuous throughout I have distinguished the lines after the first lacuna by an asterisk, and those after the second by an obelus. The lines of each of the six additions have been numbered separately. In three instances (I 65-71, II 63-5, V 1-8) I have brought lines actually written up the margin into their regular place in the text; twice (1-19, *502) I have been forced, by typographical considerations, to place a marginal addition, and once (†1932)

a deleted reading, in the footnotes.

I ought finally to explain the manner in which my text has been prepared, for I am afraid that it cannot claim to be quite such an original and independent work as those published by the Malone Society aim at being. This was inevitable, for the case is a peculiar one. For the pages of the original which are not covered with tracing paper I made my transcript from the photographic facsimile above mentioned, merely referring to Dyce's edition when any special difficulty arose, and for the occasional lines which have become illegible since his time. For the covered pages I based my transcript primarily on Dyce, referring constantly to the facsimile as a guide to the general arrangement. At first I intended to put forward my text, so far as these pages were concerned, as frankly representing that of Dyce checked where possible by reference to the now illegible original. On examining this more minutely, however, it seemed to me that the case was not quite as desperate as I had imagined. When the obscured leaves are held up to a sufficiently strong transmitted light there is very little of the text that cannot be made out if sufficient trouble is taken. The process is not an easy one, for when so examined the writing on either side of the leaf shows about equally clearly, but it is at least Favoured therefore by the exceptional summer of 1911, I resolved to adopt it and to make the manuscript in all cases my authority, indicating by brackets everything that I was unable myself to read. Of course it frequently happened that in the case of particular words and letters it was difficult to say honestly whether they were actually legible in the manuscript or not, and I am not prepared to assert that I could always have deciphered them without the help of Dyce's text, but I think I may say that in the case of every letter not printed within pointed brackets I have been able to distinguish it sufficiently clearly to act as an effective check upon Dyce's reading. It will be seen that I have occasionally differed from Dyce even in comparatively obscure passages, but I have been alive to the temerity of such proceeding and have not ventured to displace any reading of his without what seemed to me fairly conclusive evidence.

The manuscript appears to have suffered rather seriously since Dyce's day. In the original portions there is hardly a page on which his text does not supply at least a few words now irrecoverably lost. All words or letters which he purports to have read but which have now vanished I have printed in my text within pointed brackets. I have given them in the form in which he gives them, without contractions, but in order to avoid anything misleading I have printed them without punctuation and with only such capitals and italics as can with reasonable certainty be inferred from the practice of the scribe, Dyce having pleased his own fancy in these matters. When quoting Dyce's readings in the notes, I have also omitted punctuation but have retained his capitals. Words which Dyce supplied in his text within square brackets, as having either disappeared from the original through mutilation, or been omitted by the scribe through accident—he unfortunately did not distinguish the two cases-I have rejected from the text altogether, but have recorded them (with Dyce's capitals and punctuation) in the notes. Thus the student will be at once aware when anything appears in the text which I do not pretend to have read with my own eyes, while by consulting the notes he will be able to supply whatever Dyce thought necessary to the comprehension of the text. The authority attaching to the readings preserved by Dyce but no longer decipherable depends upon his general accuracy, which is high. They may as a rule I think be accepted as tolerably certain, for it is clear that his edition was prepared with both skill and caution. Nevertheless it is impossible to accord them implicit confidence, for at least one passage (II 218) suggests that on occasions Dyce resorted to conjecture in a manner that can only be deplored.

xxv

I have described how my transcript was made. When it was finished I first read with the original manuscript all those passages in which I had been obliged to rely upon Dyce's text, and then sent the whole to press. The proofs were of course read throughout with the original, particularly the pages covered with tracing paper being minutely collated with all the care of which I was capable. The whole proofs were also read professionally both with Dyce's edition and Tucker Brooke's, and all discrepancies so revealed I checked by reference to the manu-That absolute accuracy has been attained I do not for a moment suppose, but I have some hope that if in the future any one should undertake the labour of a fresh collation he will be able to report that I have done my task in a conscientious and fairly competent manner. In such a case as the present I do not think that any editor can reasonably expect better success than that.

The following is an analysis of the text as it stands in the present edition. When a scene begins elsewhere than at the top of the page the line number is added.

Fol. 3ª. Sc. i. Discontent in the City.

3b. Sc. ii. The Mayor's Sessions. Begins at 104.

4^a, 4^b.

5ª. Sc. iii. News of the riots reaches the Court.

5^b. Sc. iv. Riot scene (cancelled). Begins at 410.

Sc. v. Prentice scene (imperfect and cancelled). Begins at 453.

First lacuna.

10a. Sc. vi. Insurrection scene (beginning wanting, part cancelled).

10b. Sc. vii. Reprieve scene. Begins at *566.

IIa.

11b. Sc. viii a. Erasmus scene (imperfect and cancelled). Begins at *735.

Second lacuna.

14². Sc. viii b. Faukner scene (beginning wanting, cancelled).

14^b. Sc. ix. Banquet scene.

15a, 15b.

17a. Sc. x. Privy Council scene. Begins at †1158.

17^b.

18a. Sc. xi. More's retirement. Begins at †1282.

18b. Sc. xii. Rochester in the Tower. Begins at †1380. Sc. xiii. More's arrest (part cancelled?). Begins at †1411.

19^a, 19^b.

20^a. Sc. xiv. More arrives at the Tower. Begins at †1603. 20^b. Sc. xv. More's servants.

Sc. xvi. More in the Tower. Begins at †1728.

2 I a.

21b. Sc. xvii. Execution scene. Begins at †1861.

Addition I.

6ª (6b blank). Hand A. Revision of part of sc. xiii. Lines 1-71.

Addition II.

7^a. Hand B. Revision of sc. iv. Lines 1-65.

7b. Hand C. Sc. iva. Lines 66-120 (121-2 = S.D. to sc. vi).

8ª. Hand D. Revision of first part of sc. vi. Lines 123-68.

8b. Lines 169-218. 9a. Lines 219-70. (9b blank).

Addition III.

11*b (11*2 blank). Hand C. Insertion at beginning of sc. viii as revised. Lines 1-22.

Addition IV.

12ª. Hand C. Revision of sc. viii. Lines 1-60.

12b. Lines 61-121. 13a. Lines 122-81.

13b. Lines 182-211.

Hand E. Revision continued. Lines 212-42.

Addition V.

13*a (13*b blank). Hand C. Sc. viiia. Lines 1-26. Addition VI.

16^a. Hand B. Sc. ix^a. Lines 1-62.

 16^{b} . Lines 63-7. (Lines 68-73 = rough draft of V 1-7.)

The above analysis takes no account of the small additions on fols. 10^a (*502), 10^b (*610), and 11^a (*638, *647), and notices only those cancels in the original text which affect the additions. With the same limitations the following references give a continuous revised text, so far as such can be constructed, the additional passages being enclosed in parentheses:

Fols. 3^a , 3^b , 4^a , 4^b , 5^a , 5^b to 409, $(7^a$, 7^b , 8^a , 8^b , 9^a ,) 10^a from *476, 10^b, 11^a, 11^b to *734, $(11^{*b}, 12^a, 12^b, 13^a, 13^b, 13^{*a},)$ 14^b, 15^a, 15^b, 17^a to †1157, $(16^a, 16^b$ to VI 67,) 17^a from †1158, 17^b, 18^a, 18^b, 19^a to †1470, (6^a) , 19^b, 20^a, 20^b, 21^a, 21^b, 22^a.

Facsimiles illustrating the seven different hands appearing in the manuscript accompany the present edition. They are slightly reduced.

In closing this lengthy preface, gratitude no less than candour suggests that I should acknowledge the obligation I am under to the unvarying kindness of Sir George Warner, late Keeper of Manuscripts at the British Museum. He most obligingly acceded to my suggestion that the additional slips now forming fols. 11* and 13* should be detached from the leaves upon which they were pasted, or, I believe, glued. He allowed me to consult him upon the date of the manuscript, and upon the identity of hand E, and helped me in various small difficulties of reading. He caused Tilney's note on fol. 3* to be relieved of its covering of tracing paper in order that a photograph might be obtained. Finally when a dispute arose as to the reading at the end of line 56, he had another small piece of the covering removed. Unfortunately this failed to settle the point: for whereas Dyce printed 'homes', Sir George maintains that the word should be 'house', while I feel confident that it is 'bounds'. I regret this small difference of opinion, but with all deference to authority I feel bound to back my own conviction. My personal debt it is a pleasure to recall and to record, and I have no doubt but that all members of the Malone Society will appreciate the obligation under which they too indirectly lie to the late Keeper's courtesy and learning.

LIST OF CHARACTERS

in order of appearance.

JOHN LINCOLN, a broker. GEORGE BETTS. a Clown, his brother. FRANCIS DE BARD, a Lombard. DOLL, wife to Williamson. CAVELER, a Lombard. WILLIAMSON, a carpenter. SHERWIN, a goldsmith. The Lord Mayor. Justice Suresby. Sir THOMAS MORE. SMART, a plaintiff. LIFTER, a cut-purse. The Recorder of London. The Earl of SHREWSBURY. The Earl of SURREY. Sir THOMAS PALMER. Sir Roger Cholmley. a Messenger. HARRY ' prentices. ROBIN KIT CROFTES. a Sheriff. a Messenger. two Sheriffs' Officers. RANDALL, servant to More. ERASMUS. JACK FAUKNER, servant to Morris. MORRIS, secretary to the Bishop of Winchester. ROPER, son-in-law to More. Lady More.

The Lady Mayoress.

Inclination The Lord Cardinal's ProloguePlayers, in the WitMarriage of Wit Lady Vanity and Wisdom. Luggins The Bishop of ROCHESTER. The Clerk of the Privy Council. Mistress ROPER, daughter More. her Sister. CATESBY, steward of More's housea Servant of More's at Chelsea. DOWNES, an Officer of Justice. three Warders of the Tower. a poor Woman, suitor to More. Gentleman Porter of the Tower. The Lieutenant of the Tower. NED, Butler of More's ROBIN, Brewer GILES, Porter household. RALPH, Horsekeeper GOUGH, secretary to More. a Servant of More's in the Tower. two Sheriffs. a Sheriff's Officer. a Hangman.

Sir John Munday.

a Messenger.

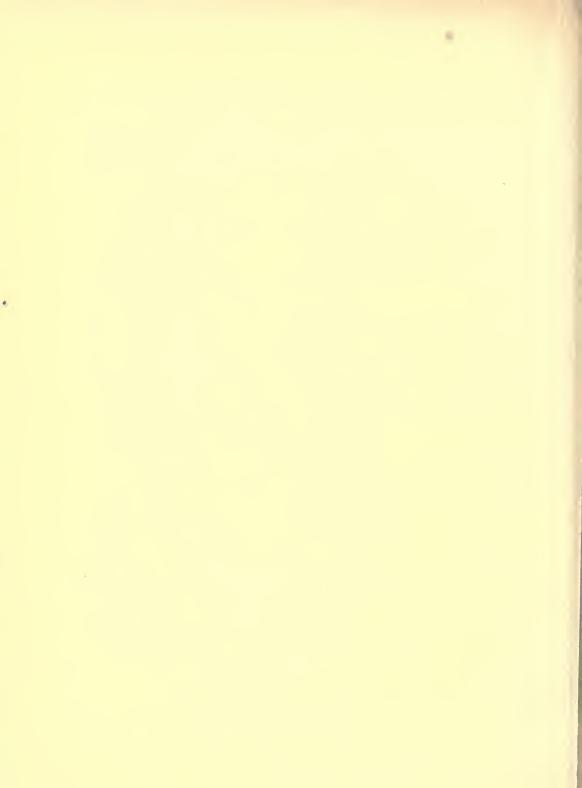

a Sergeant at Arms.

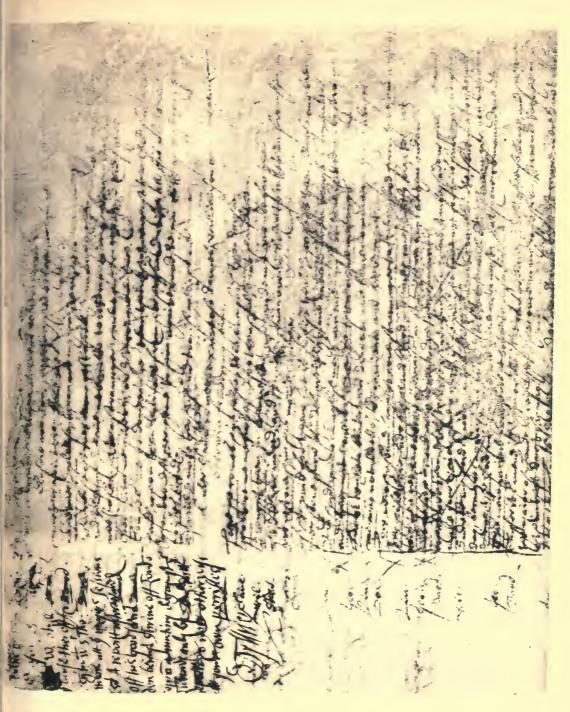

a Sheriff.

a Messenger. a Servant of More's. In the Additions.

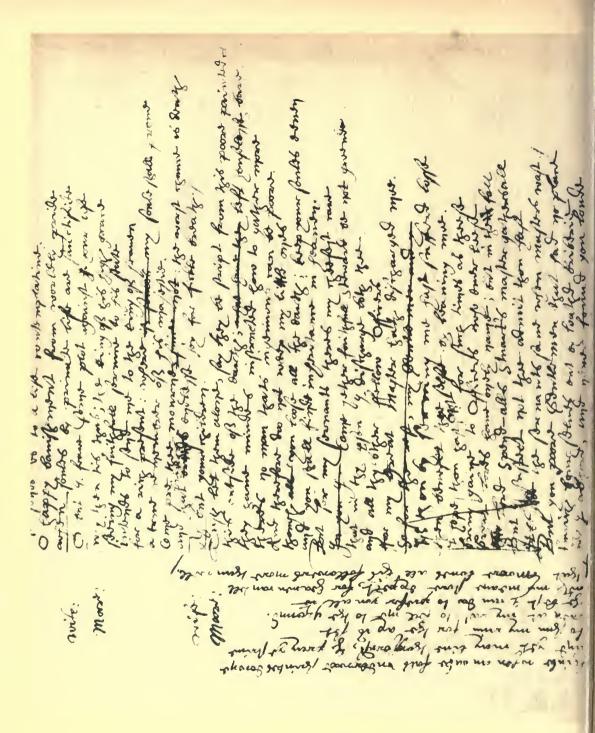

Justices, Sheriff, rioters, citizens, City Guard, attendants, serving-men, waites, aldermen, ladies, Lords of the Council, Guard of the Tower.

The name of the Clown seems to be Ralph Betts (see *683). More's daughters appear in sc. ix (†956), the Lieutenant of the Tower in sc. xii (†1380), and Gough in sc. xiii (†1411, cf. 1507), but have no parts till later. In the additions one of the Cardinal's players, either the Prologue or the boy, is called Clown (VI 61).

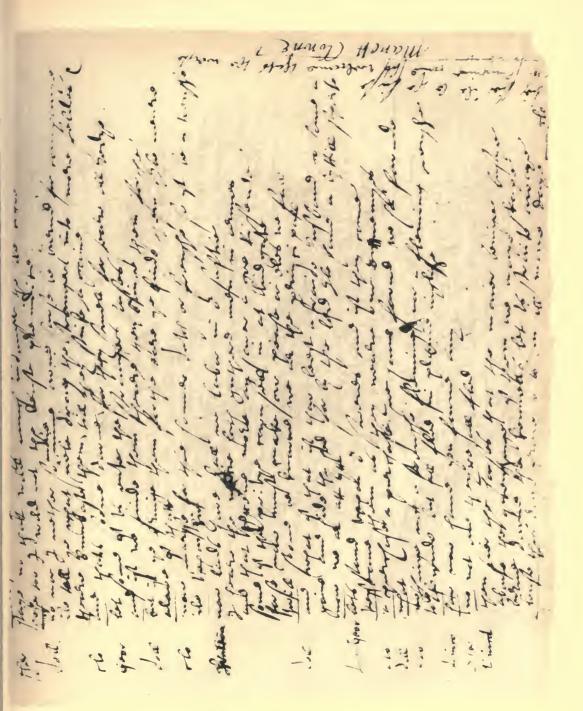

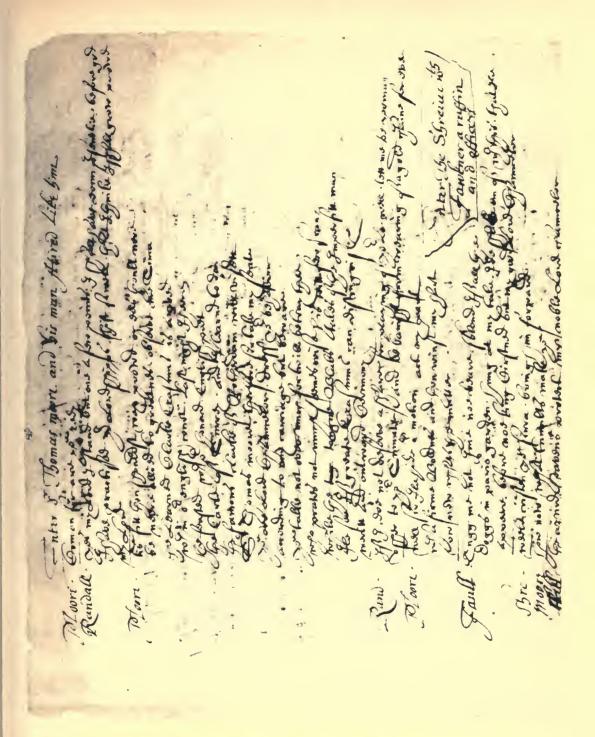

Upper Portion of Fol. 3ª

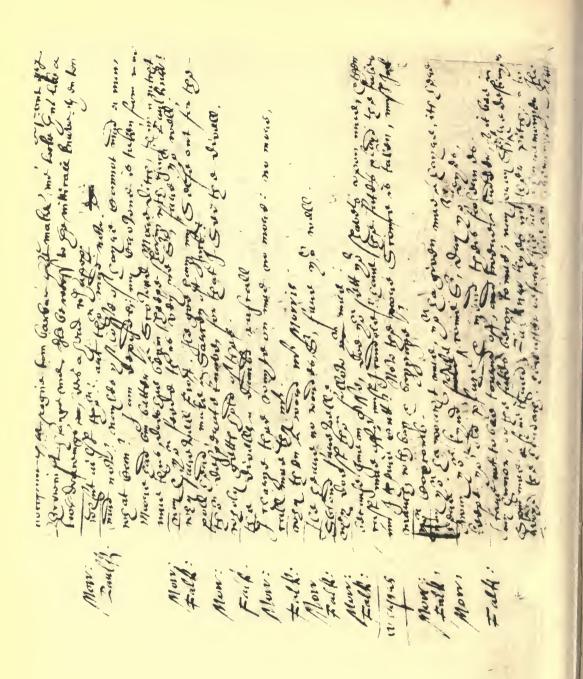

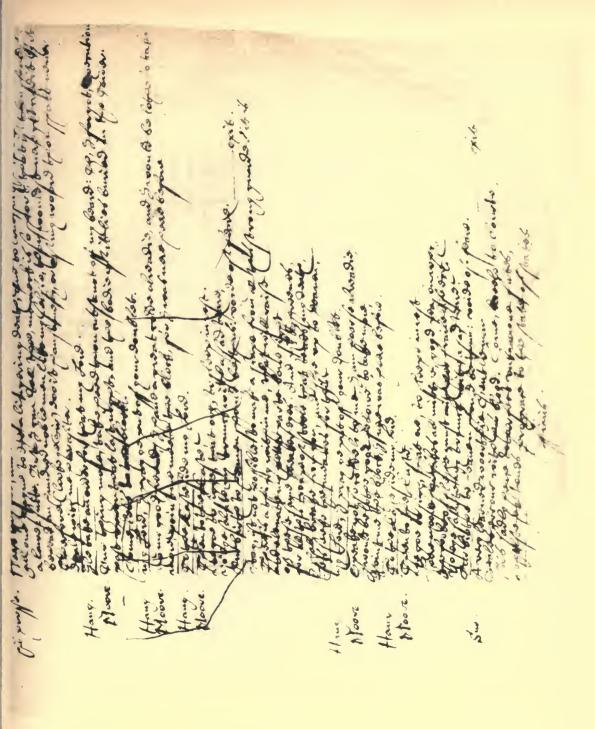

Lower Portion of Fol. 6ª

Lower Portion of Fol. 7ª

Lower Portion of Fol. 22*

The Booke of Sir

Thomas Moore

Enter at (one end Iohn Lincolne with together, at the other end enters ffraunces (de a lustie woman, he haling her by the (arme

FOL. 3ª

[Doll.] whether wilt thou hale me?

[Bard.] whether I please, thou art my prize and I ple(ade purchase) of thee [Doll,] Purchase of me? away ye Rascall, I am an honest plaine Carpenters (wife and thoughe I have no beautie to like a husband yet what soeuer is (mine scor nes to stoupe to a straunger: hand off then when I bid thee.

[Bard.] Goe with me quietly, or Ile compell thee.

[Doll.] Compell me ye dogges face? thou thinkst thou hast the Goldsmithes (wife in hand, whom thou enticedst from her husband with all his plate, and (when

N.B.—In these notes S indicates the hand of the original Scribe, and T that of Edmund Tilney. A, B, C, D, E lenote the five hands responsible for the additions. Alterations not noted as being in a different hand or ink re to be taken as by the scribe of that portion of the text in which they occur. In cases where an interlineation follows deletion, the same hand is to be supposed responsible for both unless the contrary is stated.

The lines of writing have been numbered consecutively throughout the original draft, but as they are not really continuous, those after the first lacuna are distinguished by an asterisk, and those after the second by an obelus. The additions made on inserted leaves are collected at the end of the text and numbered I to VI. The lines in ach are numbered separately: thus IV 212 means line 212 of addition IV.

The title is written on the vellum wrapper, now fols. I and 2, consisting of two leaves of an old Latin MS.

I &c. This page has been covered with tracing paper, which has now been removed in two places.

I-19 In the left-hand margin opposite these lines is a note by the Master of the Revels, to whom the play was ubmitted for licence. He has crossed out most of the speakers' names in these lines and has written over the top of one. His note runs:

(Leaue out) | ye insur(rection) 1 | 2 wholy & | ye Cause ther off 3 & | (b) egin wt Sr Tho: | Moore tt 4 ye mayors sessions | wt a reportt afterward | off his good servic 5 | don being 6 Shriue off Lond 0 | vpp 0 7 a mutiny

7 vppo] o altered.)

being'] Dyce being ⁷ vppo] o altered.)

I Dyce supplies the two Bettses to fill the lacuna. 10 Goldsmithes] Dyce goldsmiths

2 Dyce supplies Barde, and Doll to fill the lacuna.

2

30

thou turndst her home to him againe, madste him (like an Asse) pay for (his wifes boorde.

Bard. So will I make thy husband too, if please me

Enter Caueler with a paire of dooues, Williamson the Carpenter and Sherwin following him.

[Doll.] Heere he comes him selfe, tell him so if thou darste.

Caue. ffollowe me no further, I say thou shalt not have them.

Wil. I bought them in Cheapeside, and paide my monie for them.

Sher. He did Sir indeed, and you offer him wrong, bothe to take them from him, and not restore him his monie neither.

Caue. If he paid for them, let it suffise that I possesse them, Beefe and brewes may serue such hindes, are Piggions meate for a coorse Carpenter?

Lin. [It is hard when Englishmens pacience must be thus ietted on by straungers] [and they not dare to reuendge their owne wrongs.]

Geo. Lincolne, lets beate them downe, and beare no more of these abuses.

Lin. we may not Betts, be pacient and heare more.

Doll [How now husband? what, one straunger take thy food from thee, and another] [thy wife? bir Lady flesh and blood I thinke can hardly brooke that.]

Lin. will this geere neuer be otherwise? must these wrongs be thus endured?

Geo. [let vs step in, and help to reuendge their injurie.]

Bard. what art thou that talkest of reuendge? my Lord Ambassadour shall once more make your Maior haue a check, if he punishe thee not for this saucie presumption(

Wil. Indeed my Lord Maior, on the Ambassadours complainte, sent me to Newgate (one day, because (against my will) I tooke the wall of a straunger. you may doo a(ny thing, the Goldsmi(th's wife), and mine now must (b)e at your comaundment.

Geo. The more pacient fooles are ye bothe to suffer it.

Bard. Suffer it? mend it thou or he if ye can or dare, I tell thee fellowe, and she were(the Maior of Londons wife, had I her once in my possession, I would keep her in sp(ite of him that durst say nay.

Geo. I tell thee Lombard, these wordes should cost thy best cappe, were I not cur(bd by dutie and obedience. The Maior of Londons wife? Oh God, shall it be thus?

14 the speaker's name is covered by Tilney's writing.

24-5 marked for omission and crossed out; there is also a cross between the speaker's name and the text: similar crosses appear opposite 11. 28-9 and 30-1: in all cases both they and the accompanying marks of omission and deletion appear to be in the ink used by T. 28-40 marked for omission. 28-9, 30-1 cf. 24-5.

36 comaundment.] Dyce comaundment 34 Wil.] Dyce Will 41 thee Dyce the

70

Doll. why Bettes, am not I as deare to my husband, as my Lord Maiors wife to him, a(nd wilt [he] thou so neglectly suffer [his] thine owne shame? Hands off proude stranger(or him that bought me, if mens milkie harts (d)are not strike a straunger, yet (wo men will beate them downe, ere they beare these abuses.

Bard. Mistresse, I say you shall along with me.

Doll. Touche not Doll Williamson, least she lay thee along on Gods deare earthe. And to Caueler. you Sir, that allow such coorse cates to Carpenters, whilste Pidgions which they pay for, must serue your daintie appetite: deliuer them back to my husband aga in or Ile call so many women to myne assistance, as weele not leaue one inche vntorne of thee. If our husbands must be brideled by lawe, and forced to beare your wrongs, their wives will be a little lawelesse, and soundly beate ye.

Cane Come away de Bard, and let vs goe complaine to my Lord Ambassadour —ex. Ambo Doll. I, goe, and send him among vs, and weele giue him his welcome too. I am as hamed that free borne Englishmen, having beatten straungers within their owne bound should thus be brau'de and abusde by them at home.

Sher. It is not our lack of courage in the cause, but the strict obedience that we a/re bound too: I am the Goldsmith whose wrongs you talkte of, but how to redr/esse yours or mine owne, is a matter beyond all our abilities.

Lin. Not so, not so my good freends, I, though a meane man, a Broaker by pr(ofe)ssion (and namd Iohn Lincolne, have long time winckt at these vilde ennormitees (with mighty impacience, and, as these two bretheren heere (Betses by name) can witnesse (with losse of mine owne liffe would gladly remedie them

Geo. And he is in a good forwardnesse I tell ye, if all hit right.

Doll. As how, I pre thee? tell it to Doll Willia(m)son.

Lin. you knowe the Spittle Sermons begin the next weeke, I have drawne (a of our wrongs, and the stra(un)gers insolencies.

Geo. which he meanes the (pre)achers shall there openly p(u)blishe in the Pulpit(

Wil. Oh but that they would, (y) faith it would tickle (our straun) gers (thorowly Doll. I, and if you men durst (not vndertake it before God we women 44 wilt] t altered from l thou] interlined. thine] interlined. stranger] much damaged. Dyce supplies by after or, whether as needed by the sense or to supply a lacuna does not appear, probably the latter.

45-(?)75 marked for omission, probably by T.

46 these abuses.] damaged.

51 assistance,] Dyce assistaunce

56 boun] n doubtful, the word was presumably bounds: Dyce homes (Warner reads house)

62 namd] d touched up in darker (? modern) ink. winckt] t apparently added in darker (possibly modern) ink. ennormitees] second e doubtful, possibly i, but Dyce prints e.

67 Dyce supplies bill after a 71 Dyce supplies would. Take after women an honest woman fro(m her husband why it is intollerable Sher. But how finde (ve the preachers affected to Lin. Mr (doctor standish

FOL 3b

forme it and doubts not but happie successe will ensu our wrongs you shall) perceive ther's no hurt in the Bill, heer's a copie of it, I pray ye, heare it.

All with all) our harts, for Gods sake read it

(Lin) reads (to you) all the worshipfull Lords and maisters of this Cittie, that will take com passion ouer the poore people your neighbours, and also of the greate importa(bl)e h(ur)ts, losses and hinderaunces, wherof proceedeth extreame pouertie to all the K(in)gs subjects, that inhabite within this Cittie and subburbs of the same, ffor so (it) is that Aliens and straungers eate the bread from the fatherlesse children, and take the liuing from all the Artificers, and the entercourse from all Merchan(ts wherby pouertie is so much encreased, that every man bewayleth the miserie(of other, for crafts men be brought to beggerie, and Merchants to needines. wherfore, the premisses considered, the redresse must be of the comons, knit and vnited to one parte. And as the hurt and damage greeueth all men, so must all men see to their willing power for remedie, and not suffer the sayde Aliens in their wealth, and the naturall borne men of this region to come to confusion. 91

Doll.

Before God, tis excellent, and Ile maintaine the suite to be honest.

Sher. well, say tis read, what is your further meaning in the matter?

Geo.

what? marie list to me. No doubt but this will store vs with freends enow, whose names we will (clos)ely keepe in writing, and on May day next in the morning weele goe foorth a Maying, but make it the wurst May day for the straungers that euer they sawe: how say ye? doo ye subscribe, or are ye faintharted revolters

Doll. Holde thee George Bettes, ther's my hand and my hart, by the Lord Ile make a Captaine among ye, and doo somewhat to be talke of for euer after. 100

73 Dyce supplies our proceeding after to

76 Dyce supplies re before forme 79 reads] Dyce as if supplied.

⁷⁵ there is a slight trace of letters at the beginning of this line: Dyce marks one line lost at the turn of the page. 76 (?)-106 marked for omission; 104-6 perhaps in error. 76 &c. page covered with tracing paper.

⁷⁹⁻⁸⁰ the ends of these lines are obscured by blot in T's note which shows through from recto. 87 of] o altered? 80 passion damaged. 96 foorth Dyce foorthe

	3
Wil.	My maisters, ere we parte, lets freendly goe and drinke together, and sweare true secrecie vppon our liues.
Geo.	There spake an Angell, come, let[s] vs along then
	An Arras is drawne, and behinde it (as in Sessions) sit the L. Maior, Iustice Suresbie, and other Iustices, Sheriffe Moore and the other Sherife sitting by, Smart is the Plaintife, Lifter the prisoner at the barre.
L. Mai.	Hauing dispachte our weightier businesses,
	we may giue eare to pettie fellonies,
•	Mr. Sheriffe Moore, what is this fellowe?
Moore.	My Lord, he stands indyted for a pursse,
	he hath bin tryed, the Iurie is together.
L. Mai.	who sent him in?
Sure.	That did I my Lord,
	Had he had right, he had bin hangd ere this,
	the only captayne of the cutpursse crewe.
L. Mai.	what is his name?
Sure.	As his profession is, Lifter my Lord, one th(at) c(an) lift a pursse right c(unn)ingly.
L. Mai.	An(d is that) he accuses him?
Sure	Th(e s)ame my Lord, whom, by your honors leave,
	I (mu)st say somewhat too, because I finde,
	in some respectes he is well woorthie blame.
L. Mai.	Good Mr. Iustice Suresbie speake your minde,
	we are well pleasde to giue you audience.
Sure.	Heare me Smart, thou art a foolish fellowe,
	If Lifter be connicted by the lawe,
	As, I see not how the Iurie can acquit him:
	Ile stand too't, thou art guiltie of his death.
Moore.	My Lord, thats woorthe the hearing.
L. Mai.	Listen then good Maister Moore.
102 705] a final s has been crossed out in different (possibly modern) ink, cf. II 264.
104 Sc	ene ii.
106 Dy	ce supplies Recorder, Officers. after barre. 110 indyted] Dyce indited
n. xx).	the left margin is a word in what seems to be modern ink; apparently Lanehā but the ane is doubtful (cf.

p. xx).
112 L. Mai.] Dyce Mai 118 pursse] Dyce purse

160

```
Sure. I tell thee plaine, it is a shame for thee, with such a sum to tempte necessitie.
         No lesse then ten poundes Sir, will serue your turne.
         to (c)arie in your pursse about with ve.
         to crake and brag in Tauernes of your monie.
         I promise ye, a man that goes a broade,
         with an intent of trueth, meeting such a bootie
         may be proughte to that he never meante.
         what makes so many pilferers and fellons, but such fond baites that foolish people lay:
                                                                                     140
         to tempt the needie miserable wretche.
         (ten) poundes, odd monie, this is a prettie sum, to (bea)re about, whic(h were) more safe at home, (fore God twere well to fine y)e as much more /Lord Major and Moo(re to the releefe of the po )soners, whisper.
         to teache ye be your ow)ne.
                                             rightlie) seru'de Moore. Good my Lord, soothe a ( for once
                                                                                 FOL, 4ª
          only to trye conclusions in this case
L. Maior Content good Mr. Moore. / weele rise awhile, 151
          And till the Iurie can returne their verdict
          walke in the garden: how saye ye Iustices?
    All. we like it well my Lord, weele followe ve.
                                                             /ex. L. Maior and Iust(ices
 Moore. Nay Plaintife, goe you too, And Officers, /ex. Smart.
          stand you aside, and leave the prisoner to me awhile: Lifter, come hether.
   Lift. what is your woorships pleasure?
```

140 that] damaged. 141 miserable] middle letters damaged. 142 this] damaged.

145 Dyce supplies ore pri between po and soners, 148 no traces of this line remain; what look like such probably show through from recto: but the space would suggest that there was another line on the page, and Dyce shows the loss of one at the turn of the leaf.

149 &c. page covered with tracing paper. 154 followe] Dyce follow

Moore. Sirra, you knowe that you are knowne to me And I have often sau'de ye from this place since first I came in Office: Thou seest beside, that Iustice Suresbie is thy heavie freend, for all the blame that he pretends to Smarte: for tempting thee with such a summe of monie. I tell thee what, devise me but a meanes, to pick or cutt his pursse, and on my credit and as I am a christian and a man I will procure thy pardon for that Ieast.

Lift. Good Mr. Shreeue, seeke not my ouerthrowe, you knowe Sir, I haue manie heauie freends and more endictments like to come vppon me. you are too deepe for me to deale withall, you are knowne to be one of the wisest men that is in England. I pray ye Mr. Sheriffe, goe not aboute to vndermine my (life)

Moore. Lifter, I am tru(e subject to) my King, thou much mist(akste) me and for thou shalt not thinke,
I meane by this to hurt thy life at all:
I will maintaine the act when thou hast doone it.
Thou knowest there are such matters in my hands,
as if I pleasde to give them to the Iurie:
I should not need this way to circumuent thee.
All that I aime at, is a merrie iest:

Lift. I thanke your woorship, God preserve your life.

But Mr. Iustice Suresbie is gon in,

I knowe not how to c(om)e neere where he is.

performe it Lifter, and expect my best.

Moore. Let me alone for that, Ile be thy setter, Ile send him hether to thee presently,
vnder the couller of thine owne request, of private matters to acquainte him with.

Lift. If ye doo so Sir, then let me alone ffortie to one but then his pursse is gon.
Moore. well said, but see that thou diminish not

163-4 marked for omission.

163 for] Dyce By

1,0

130

190

		_
	one penie of the monie, but giue it me,
	It is the cunning act, that credits thee.
Lift.	I will, good M ^r . Sheriffe, I assure ye. ———— ex. Moore.
Ī	I see the purpose of this Gentleman is but to check the fol(lie) of the Iustice, for blaming oth(er)s in a desperate case,	0 wherin hims(elfe) may fall as soone as any
Ī	To saue my life it is a (goo)d aduenter:
	Silence there hoe: now (d)ooth the Iustice enter. / Ent. Iust. Suresbie.
	Now Sirra, now what is your will with me?
	wilt thou discha(rge thy co)nscience like an honest man?
	what sayst to (me sirr)a be breefe be breef.
Lift.	As breefe Sir as (I can)
	If ye stand f(ay)re, I will be bre(ef)e annon aside.
Sure.	Speake out and mumbl(e n)ot, wh(a)t saist thou Sirra?
Lift.	Sir, I am chargde as God shall be my comforte	0 with more then's true
Sure.	Sir Sir, ye are indeed, with more then's true, for you are flatly chargde with fellonie.
	you'r chargde with more then trueth and that is theft,
	more then a true man should be charged withall
	Thou art a varlet, that's no more then true, Trifle not with me, doo not, doo not Sirra, confesse but what thou knowest, I aske no more.
	There be Sir, there be, ift shall please your woorship,
	There be varlet what be there, tell me what there be?	0
	Come off or on, there be, what be there, knaue?
	There be Sir diuers very cunning fellowes, that while you stand and looke them in the face:
	will haue your pursse.
	Th'art an honest knaue.
	tell me what are they? where they may be ca(ug)ht
	I, those are they I looke for.

198-201 marked for omission. 203 a cross before the S.D. apparently in modern ink or pencil.

_	T 10.	. 15 . C . C:
	Lift.	you talke of me Sir
		Alas I am (a) punie: t(her)'s one indeed, goes by (my name he puts downe all for pursses	230
(
(
(as familiare as thou wilt my knaue	Fol. 4 ^b
(tis) this I long to (k)nowe.
i	Lift	And) you shall have your longing ere ye goe	aside
,	,	This fellowe Sir, perhaps will meete ye thus,
		Or thus, or thus, and in kinde complement,	/ action
		pretend acquaintaunce, somewhat doubtfully,	•
		And these embraces serue.
	Sure	I marie Lifter , wherfore serue they?	/ shrugging gladly.
		Only to feele	/- o 988 8
	Liji	whether you goe full vnder saile or no,	242
		Or that your lading be aboord your Barke.	414
	Cause		r no 3
		In playner English Lifter, if my pursse be storde o	1 110 :
		ye haue it Sir.
		Excellent, excellent.
	Lift.	Then Sir, you cannot but for manners sake,
		walke on with him, for he will walke your way:
		Alleadging either you have much forgot him,
		or he mistakes you.	250
		But in this time has he my pursse or no?
	Lift.	Not yet Sir, fye: / No nor I haue not yours.	/ Ent. Lord Maior &c.
		But now we must forbeare, my Lords returne.
	Sure.	A murren on't: Lifter, weele more annon.
		I, thou sayst true, there are shrewde knaues indeed	/ he sits downe.

230 Dyce shows two whole lines missing between this and 233; since 233 corresponds on the verso with 149 on the recto, and the latter is almost certainly the first line on the page, the hiatus may be taken as occurring at the lower edge, though a trace of 231 only is visible. Dyce supplies the speaker's name, Sure. to l. 232, but this is evidently a mere guess: it seems more probable that the new speech began on the verso with 233.

233 &c. page covered with tracing paper.

252 nor interlined. & Dyce adds Aside. (referring to the second half of the line), but it is not in the MS. He also places S.D. after 253.

But let them gull me, widgen me, rooke me, foppe me, yfaith yfaith, they are too sh(ort for) me. knaues and fooles meete w(hen pursse)s goe. wise men looke to their pursses w(ell) enough. Moore. Lifter, is it doone? 260 aside. Lift. doone Mr. Shreeue, and there it is. Moore. Then builde vppon my woord, Ile saue thy life. Recor. Lifter, stand to the barre, the Iurie haue returnd thee guiltie, thou must dye, according to the custome, looke to it Mr Shreeue. L. Maior. Then Gentlemen, as you are wunt to doo, because as yet we have no (buri)all place, what charitie your meaning('s) to bestowe, toward buriall of the prisoners now condemnde let it be giuen, there is first for me. 270 Recor. And thers for me. Another, And me. Sure. Bodie of me my pursse is gon. Moore. Gon Sir? what heere? how can that be? L. Maior. Against all reason, sitting on the benche? Sure. Lifter, I talkte with you, you have not lifted me? ha? Lift. Suspect ye me Sir? Oh what a world is this? Moore. But heare ye Mr. Suresbie, are ye sure ye had a pursse about ye? Sure. Sure Mr. Shreeue, as sure as you a(r)e there, 280 and in it seauen poundes odd mo(nie) on my faith. Moore. Seauen poundes odd monie? (w)hat were you so madd, beeing a wiseman, and a Ma(gis)trate to trust your pursse with suc(h a) liberall sum. Seauen poundes, odd monie (f) ore G(od it) is a shame: with such a summe to tempt (necessi)tie, I promise ye, a man that go(es abroade)

277 world] r interlined.

with an intent of tr(u)eth, meeting (suc)h a bootie,

200

may be prouokte to t(h)at he neuer tho(u)ght. what makes so man(y) pilferers and fellons, but these fond baite(s) that foolish people lay: to tempte the needie misera(ble) wretche Should he be taken now that has your pursse, Ide stand too't, you are guiltie of his death, for questionlesse, he would be cast by lawe. Twere a good deed to fine ye as much more to the releefe of the poore prisoners, to teache ye lock your monie (vp) at home.

Sure. well Mr. Moore v(ou a)re a merie man, I finde ye Sir, I finde ye well enough.

300

Moore. Nay, ye shall see Sir, trusting thus your monie, and Lifter here in triall for like case. But that the poore man is a prisoner, it would be now suspected that he had it. Thus may ye see what mischeefe often comes: by the fond cariage of such needlesse summes.

L. Maior. Bele(e)ue me Mr. Suresbie, this is straunge, you beeing a man so setled in assuraunce, will fall in that which you condemnd in other.

Moore. w(el) Mr. S(uresbie) the(re)s (your) pursse aga(y)ne, (and all your monie feare nothing of) M(oor)e wisedome still the doore).

310

Enter the Earles of Shrewes(burie and Surrie Sir Thomas Palmer Fol. 5a and Sir Roger Cholmeley.

Shrew. My Lord of Surrey, and Sir Thomas Palmer, might I with pacience tempte your graue aduise. I tell ye true, that in these daungerous times, I doo not like this frowning vulgare brow.

289 prouokte] Dyce wrought

313 Dyce indicates the loss of one line: there is room enough, though no trace remains.

314 Scene iii.

314 &c. page covered with tracing paper. 316-23 marked with a line and also a large cross by T. 317 aduise.] period doubtful, perhaps query-mark.

MEND Y	My searching eye did neuer entertaine,	320
	a more distracted countenaunce of greefe then I haue late obseru'de in the displeased commons of the Cittie.
Sur.	Tis straunge, that from his princely clemencie,
	So well a tempred mercie and a grace,
	to all the Aliens in this fruitefull land,
	that this highe-creasted insolence should spring,
	from them that breathe from his maiestick bountie, that fatned with the trafficque of our countrey:
	alreadie leape into his subjects face.	330
Pal.	yet Sherwin hindred to commence his suite against de Bard, by the Ambassadour by supplication made vnto the King.
	who having first entic'de away his wife,
	and gott his plate, neere woorth foure hundred pound, to greeue some wronged Cittizens, that found,
	this vile disgrace oft cast into their teeth:
	of late sues Sherwin, and arrested him for monie for the boording of his wife.
Sur.	The more Knaue Bard, that vsing Sherwins goods,	340
	dooth aske him interest for the occupation:
	I like not that my Lord of Shrewesburie.
	Hees ill bested, that lends a well pac'de horsse,
	vnto a man that will not finde him meate.
Cholme	. My Lord of Surrey will be pleasant still.
	I beeing then imployed by your honors to stay the broyle that fell about the same, wher by perswasion I enforc'de the wrongs,
	and vrgde the greefe of the displeased cittie:
	He answerd me and with a sollemne oathe	350
	that if he had the Maior of Londons wife,
	he would keepe her in despight of any [Englishe] MÃ

320 marginal note by T. y^{ts}] Dyce y^t 352 $m\tilde{a}$] added by T.

0/18/11/11/19/	- 13
Tis good Sir Thomas then for you and me,
·
- The state of the 360
· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
	370
1 · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · 380 is not informed of this base abuse,

364 lombard] interlined by T. 368 Lombard] interlined by T. 372-85 marked with a line, and 372-8 with a cross as well; both apparently by T.

/ Enter a Messenger

and dayly wrongs are offered to his subjects for if he were, I knowe his gracious wisedome, would soone redresse it.

```
Shrew. Sirra, what newes?
    Cholme. None good I feare Mess. My Lord, ill newes, and wursse I feare will followe if speedily it be not lookte vnto.
             The Cittie (i)s in an vproare and the Maior, 390 is threatned if he (come ou)t of his (house ( a) number poo(re artifi fearde what this) would come vnto.
                                                                                             FOL. 5b
             this) followes on the doctours publishing
            ) the bill of wrongs in publique at the Spittle.
    Shrew). that doctor Beale may chaunce beshrewe himselfe for reading of the bill Pal. Let vs goe gather forces to the Maior, for quick suppressing this rebellious route.
                                                                                                  400
       Sur. Now I bethinke my selfe of Maister Moore, one of the Sheriffes, a wise and learned Gentleman, and in especiall fauour with the people.
             He backt with other graue and sober men, may by his gentle and perswasiue speeche perhaps preuaile more then we can with power.
     Shrew. Beleeue me, but your honor well aduises.
             Let vs make haste, or I doo greatly feare:
             some to their graues this mornings woorke will beare.
                                                                             exeunt.
                     Enter Lincolne, Betses, Williamson, Sherwin and other armed, doll in a shirt
ENTER LINCOLNE
                          of Maile, a head piece, sword and Buckler, a crewe attending.
BETTS WILLIAMSON
Doll. Peace there I say, heare Captaine Lincolne speake, 412
              Keepe silence, till we knowe his minde at large.
    388-(?) 393 marked for omission.
                                    388 wursse] Dyce wurse 392 Dyce supplies cers after artifi
    393 Dyce indicates the loss of one line: no trace remains, but even more may have disappeared.
    394 &c. page covered with tracing paper.
408 haste] interlined. or] Dyce for 395 doctours] Dyce doctors
    410 Scene iv.
    410-12 marginal direction by C. 410 Dyce supplies two before Betses 412-52 marked for omission. Dyce does not print this scene, but gives variants from it in the revised version, II 1-64 (fol. 7<sup>a</sup>).
```

432 bumbast | st damaged.

All. | Agreed, agreed, speake then braue Captaine Lincolne. Lin. Come gallant bloods, you, whose free soules doo scorne to beare th'enforced wrongs of Aliens. Add rage to resolution, fire the houses of these audacious straungers. This is St. Martins and yonder dwelles Mewtas a wealthie Piccarde, at the greene gate, De Barde, Peter van Hollock, Adrian Martine, 420 with many more outlandish fugitiues. Shall these enjoy more priueledge then we in our owne countrie? lets then become their slaves. Since iustice keeps not them in greater awe weele be our selues rough ministers at lawe. All. ffire the houses, fire the houses. Doll. I, for we may as well make bonfires on May day, as at Midsommer, weele alter the day in the Calender, and set it downe in flaming letters. Sher. Stay, that would much endaunger the whole Cittie wherto I would not the least prejudice 430 Doll. No nor I neither, so may mine owne house be burnd for companie, Ile tell ye what, weele drag the straungers out in to Moore feildes, and there bumbast(them till they stinck againe. Geo. Let some of vs enter the straungers houses. and if we finde them there, then bringe them foorth. / ex. some and Sher. Doll. If ye bringe them foorth before ye finde them, Ile neuer allowe of that. Will Now Lads, how shall we labour in our safetie? I heare the Maior hath gathered men in Armes and that Sheriffe Moore an houre agoe receiu'de some of the privie Councell in at Ludgate, 440 fforce now must make our peace or else we fall twill soone be knowne we are the principall Doll. And what of that? if thou bee'st afrayd husband, goe home againe and hide thy head, for by the Lord Ile haue a little sporte now I am at it. Geo. Lets stand vppon our Guarde, and if they come receive them as they were our enemies. / En: Sher. & the rest.

418-21 a large cross in left margin, possibly by B (cf. II 18-20).

441 must] interlined.

435 Sher.] Dyce Sherwin

472

Lin.	How now? haue ye found anie?
Sher.	Not one, th'are fled.
Lin.	Then fire the houses, that the Maior beeing busie,
	about the quenching of them, we may scape. 450
	Burne downe their kennelles let vs s() away, least that this prooue to vs an ill May daye. exeunt.
	Enter (t)hree or foure Prentises of trades, with a paire of Cudgelles.
Harry.	Come, lay downe the Cudgelles. / Hoh Robin, you met vs well at Bunhill, to haue you with vs a Mayng this morning?
Robin.	ffaith Harrie, the head drawer at the Miter by the great Conduite, calld me vp, and we went to breakefast into St Annes lane. But come, who beginnes?
	In good faith I am cleane out of practise: when wast at Garrets schoole Harrie?
Har.	Not this great while, neuer since I brake his vshers head, when he plaid his s(cho)llers prize at the Starre in Bread streete, I vse all to George Philpots at D(ow gate, hees the best back sworde man in England.
	Bate me an Ace of that, quoth Bolton.
	Ile not bate ye a pinne on't Sir, for, by this cudgell tis true.
	I will cudgell that oppinion out of ye: did you breake an vshers head Sir?
	I marie did I Sir.
	I am very glad on't, you shall breake mine too and ye can.
	Sirra, I pre thee what art thou?
Kit.	w(hy), I am a Prentise as thou art, seest thou now: Ile play with thee at blunt
	(heere) in Che(ape)side, and wh(en) t(ho)u hast doone, if thou beest angrie, Ile fight
>	\langle with thee at in Moore feildes \rangle I ha\langle ue \rangle a swoord to serue my turne in a fa\langle uor \rangle \com\langle Iulie, \langle to \rangle seru\langle e

[Here one or more original leaves are lost.]

450 of] doubtful, possibly at

451 kennelles] s doubtful. s....] badly damaged, apparently straighte or straite

453 Scene v.

454-(?)472 marked for omission. 468 at] interlined. 470 Dyce supplies sharpe after at 472 Dyce indicates the loss of one line: no trace remains, but even more may have disappeared.

FOL. 10^a

To persist in it, is present (deat)h. bu(t if) you yee(ld yourselues), no doubt, what (punish ment you (in simplicitie haue incurred, his highnesse in mercie will moste (graciously pardon.

All. we yeeld, and desire his highnesse mercie.

/they lay by their weapo(ns

Moore. No doubt his maiestie will graunt it you
But you must yeeld to goe to seuerall prisons, till that his highnesse will be further knowne.

All. Moste willingly, whether you will haue vs.

*480

Shrew. Lord Maior, let them be sent to seuerall prisons, and there in any case, be well intreated.

My Lord of Surrie, please you to take horsse, and ride to Cheape side, where the Aldermen, are with their seuerall companies in Armes. will them to goe vnto their seuerall wardes, bothe for the stay of further mutinie, and for the apprehending of such persons: as shall contend.

Sur. I goe my noble Lord.

ex. Sur.

*490

Shrew. weele straite goe tell his highnesse these good newes. withall (Shreeue Moore) Ile tell him, how your breath: hath ransomde many a subject from sad death.

---- cx. Shrew. & Cholm

L. Maior. Lincolne and Sherwine, you shall bothe to Newgate, the rest vnto the Counters.

Pal. Goe, guarde them hence, a little breath well spent, cheates expectation in his fairst euent.

Doll. well Sheriffe Moore, thou hast doone more with thy good woordes, then all they could with their weapons: giue me thy hand, keepe thy promise now for the Kings pard don, or by the Lord Ile call thee a plaine Conie catcher.

•500

Lin. ffarewell Shreeue Moore, and as we yeeld by thee

473 For fols. 6-9 see later among Additions.

473 Scene vi.

473-5 marked for omission.

474 (in] sic, parenthesis not closed. highnesse] the letters ness, still legible in the facsimile, are now broken away in the MS. will ld altered from se

483 take] k altered? 499 me] interlined.

so make our peace, then thou dealst honestly. ---- they are led away.

L. Maior. Maister Shreeue Moore, you have preseru'de the Cittie, from a moste daungerous fierce comotion. ffor if this limbe of riot heere in St Martins. had joynd with other braunches of the cittie. that did begin to kindle, twould have bred, great rage, that rage, much murder would have fed.

[Pal.] |not Steele but eloquence hath wrought this good.

[Sh .] you have redeemde vs from much threatned blood. Moore. My Lord, and bretheren, what I heere have spoke, my countries looue, and next, the Citties care:

> enioynde me to, which since it thus preuailes, thinke, God hath made weake Moore his instrument. to thwart seditions violent intent.

I thinke twere best my Lord, some two houres hence, we meete at the Guilde hall, and there determine, that thorow euery warde, the watche be clad in Armour, but especially prouide that at the Cittie gates, selected men, substantiall Cittizens doo warde to night, for feare of further mischeife.

L. Major. It shall be so.

but youd me thinks my Lord of Shrewesburie.

Shrew. My Lord, his maiestie sends loouing thankes, to you, your bretheren, and his faithfull subjects your carefull Cittizens. But Mr. Moore, to you,

502 there is a marginal addition by B referred to this place by a guiding line:

I and saue vs from the gallowes eles a deales debble | honnestlye (a deales debble) Dyce a deules debble which he interprets as 'a devil's dibble' though the sense of this is not apparent. deales is very probably on graphic grounds and is supported by *502. debble or dobble seems most likely a corruption of devil used adverbially.)

The addition is now written down the right margin: a first attempt to write it across the margin above the S.D.

Ent. Shrew.

in *502 failed and was smudged out.

506 ioynd] Dyce ioind

509-10 marked for omission. Dyce prints these lines without comment as part of the Lord Mayor's speech. 510 the speaker's name was presumably Shrew. who is not on the stage; hence perhaps the omission. threatned | second t altered? 515 seditions] might be seditious 522 mischeife ei altered? 523 the rules round the S.D. may have been added by C.

*510

+520

		a rougher, yet as kinde a salutation, your name is yet too short, nay, you must kneele, a Knights creation is thys Knightly steele. Rise vp Sr. Thomas Moore. I thanke his highnesse for thus honoring me. This is but first taste of his princely fauour, for it hath pleased his high maiestie, (noating your wisedome and deseruing meritt,) to put this staffe of honor in your hand,	*530 for he hath chose you of his privile Councell. My Lord, for to denye my Soueraignes bountie, were to drop precious stones into the heapes whence first they came, [from whence they'd nere returne,] to vrdge my imperfections in excuse, were all as stale as custome. No my Lord, my service is my Kings, good reason why: since life or death hangs on our Soueraignes eye.	*540
ı	L. Maior.	His maiestie hath honord much the cittie in this his princely choise.
	Moore.	My Lord and bretheren, (though I (departe for m)y looue (sha)ll rest
ı	•	(I now must) sleepe (in courte), sounde sleepes forbeare,	Fol. 10 ^b
		the Chamberlain to state is publique care. yet in this rising of my private blood:	*552
	ENTER CROFTS	my studious thoughts shall tend the citties good. / Ent. Croftes	-
		How now Croftes? what newes?

Croftes. My Lord, his highnesse sends expresse commaunde, that a record be entred of this riott,

539 were] first e altered from h
544 pencil cross at end.
548 there are some traces of darker ink about the middle of the lacuna, which probably indicate a deletion.
549 Dyce indicates the loss of a line: there is no trace, but it must presumably have occurred at the bottom of 551 Chamberlain] the C which is still legible though damaged in the facsimile has disappeared wholly from the MS.

553 S.D. in left margin added by C.

*560

And that the cheefe and capitall offendours be theron straite arraignde, for him selfe intends to sit in person on the rest to morrowe at westminster. Shrew. Lord Major, you heare your charge. Come good Sir Thomas Moore, to Court let's hve you are th'appeaser of this mutinie. Moore. My Lord farewell, new dayes begets new tides Life whirles bout fate, then to a graue it slydes. — exeunt seuerally. Enter Mr. Sheriffe, and meete a Messenger.

Sheriff. Messenger, what newes?

Mess. Is execution yet performde? Sheriff. Not yet, the Cartes stand readie at the stayres, and they shall presently away to Tibourne.

*570

Messe. Stay Mr. Shreeue, it is the Councelles pleasure, for more example in so bad a case, a libbit be erected in Cheapside, hard by the Standerd, whether you must bring Lincolne, and those that were the cheefe with him, to suffer death, and that immediatly.

/ Ent. Officers ex. Mess.

Sheriff. It shalbe doone Sir. Officers, be speedie call for a libbit, see it be erected, others make haste to Newgate, bid them bring, the prisoners hether, for they heere must dye, Away I say, and see no time be slackt.

580

Off. we goe Sir.

Sheriff. Thats well said fellowes, now you doo your dutie —— ex. some seuerally, others set vp the Iibbit God for his pittie help these troublous times The streetes stopte vp with gazing multitudes, commaund our armed Officers with Halberds, make way for entraunce of the prisoners.

Dyce supplies with Officers after Sheriffe 568 there is a small cross in the same ink as the text before the speaker's name.

575-6 Dyce omits S.D. 577 Dyce supplies S.D. Ex. Mess. after Sir. 583-96 marked for omission. 583 others] s covered by mounting parts of the state o 580 heere Dyce here 583 others] s covered by mounting paper.

Let proclamation once againe be made, that euery housholder, on paine of deathe keep in his Prentises, and euery man. *590 stand with a weapon readie at his doore, as he will answere to the contrary. Off. Ile see it doone Sir. - exit. enter another Officer. Sheriffe. Bring them away to execution, the writt is come abooue two houres since, the Cittie will be fynde for this neglect. Off. Thers such a preasse and multitude at Newgate, they cannot bring the Cartes vnto the stayres to [bring] take the prisoners in. Sheriff. Then let them come on foote, *600 we may not dally time with great comaund. Off. Some of the Benche Sir, thinke it very fit that stay be made, and give it out abroade the execution is deferd till morning. And when the streetes shall be a little cleerd, to chaine them vp, and suddenly dispatch it. / The Prisoners are brought Sheriff. Stay, in meane time me thinkes they come along. in well guarded. See, they are comming, so, tis very well. Bring Lincolne there the first vnto the tree. Lin. I knewe the first Sir, did belong to me. - CLO. I FOR I CRY LAG This the olde prouerbe now compleate dooth make, SIR that Lincolne should be hangd for Londons sake. A Gods name, lets to woorke: ffellowe, dispatche, / he goes vp.

597 preasse] Dyce presse 598 vnto] Dyce onto 599 bring] g unfinished.
602 cross as in *568.
605 be] interlined.
606 brought] ht covered by mounting paper.

I was the formoste man in this rebellion and I the formoste that must dye for it.

602 cross as in *568. 605 be interlined. 606 brought | ht covered by mounting paper 607 Stay, in | in possibly deleted.

610-11 marginal addition by B. An attempt was first made to write the addition immediately opposite *609, but this was smudged out: the words clo I cry Lag are however still clearly visible.

610 lag Dyce printed lug which is equally possible as far as the form of the letter is concerned: lag

610 lag] Dyce printed lug which is equally possible as far as the form of the letter is concerned: lag however is clearly right on the ground of sense and is supported by the deleted first attempt which has Lag quite clearly.

613 lets] Dyce let vs

Doll. Brauely Iohn Lincolne, let thy death expresse, that as thou liu'dst a man, thou dyedst no lesse.

Lin. Doll williamson, thine eyes shall witnesse it.

Then to all you that come to viewe mine end,
I must confesse, I had no ill intent,
but against such as wrongd vs ouer much.
And now I can perceiue, it was not fit, that private men should carue out their redresse, which way they list, no, learne it now by me obedience is the best in eche degree.
And asking mercie meekely of my King,
I paciently submit me to the lawe.
But God forgive them that were cause of it.
and as a Christian, truely from my hart:
I likewise crave (they) wo(uld forgive me) too.

*630

FOL. 11ª

+620

that others by example (of the same) hencefoorth be warned (to) attempt the like gainst any alien that repaireth heth(er) fare ye well all, the next time that we meete I trust in heaven we shall eche other greete.

Doll. ffarewell Iohn Lincolne, say all what they can: thou liu'dst a good fellowe, and dyedst an honest man.

Sheriff. Bring williamson there forwarde.

Doll. Good Mr. Shreeue, I have an earnest suite, and as you are a man deny't me not.

Sheriff. woman, what is it? be it in my power, thou shalt obtayne it.

Doll. Let me dye next Sir, that is all I craue, you knowe not what a comforte you shall bring to my poore hart to dye before my husband.

/ he leapes off

CLO WOLD I WEARE SO FARRE ON MY IURNEY
THE FIRST STRETCHE IS THE WORSTE ME THINKS

*642

⁶¹⁷ dyedst] t altered? 631 Dyce indicates the loss of a line, and some trace is visible.

^{632 &}amp;c. page covered with tracing paper as far as 683 inclusive.

⁶³⁶ heaven] second e altered? 638-41 marginal addition by B.

⁶⁴¹ worste Dyce werste

Sheriff. Bring her to death, she shall have her desire.

Doll. Sir, your free bountie much contents my minde, Commend me to that good Shreeue Mr. Moore, and tell him had't not bin for his perswasion, Iohn Lincolne had not hung heere as he does. we would first haue lockt vp in Leaden hall, and there bin burnt to ashes with the roofe.

Sheriff. woman, what M^r. Moore did, was a subjects dutie, and hath so pleasde our gracious Lord the King, that he is hence remoou'de to higher place, and made of Councell to his Maiestie.

Doll, well is he woorthie of it by my troth. an honest, wise, well spoken Gentleman, vet would I praise his honestie much more. if he had kept his woord, and sau'de our lives, but let that passe, men are but men, and so, woords are but wordes, and payes not what men owe. Now husband, since perhaps the world may say, that through my meanes thou comste thus to thy end: heere I beginne this cuppe of death to thee, because thou shalt be sure to taste no wursse. then I have taken, that must goe before thee. what though I be a woman, thats no matter, I doo owe God a death, and I must pay him. Husband, give me thy hand, be not dismayed, this charre beeing charde, then all our debt is payd. Only two little babes we leave behinde vs. and all I can bequeathe them at this time, is but the looue of some good honest freend: to bring them vp in charitable sorte. what maisters, he goes vpright that neuer haltes,

A SUITE TO YOU TOO

WHAT IS YTT

THAT AS YOU HAUE 650

HANGD LINCOLNE FIRST &

WILL HANGE HIR NEXTE

SO [THAT] YOU WILL NOTT

HANGE ME AT ALL

NAYE YOU SET OPE THE

COUNTER GATES AND YO(U

MUST HANGE THE FOLYE

WELL THEN SO MUCH FOR YT

*660

+670

647-58 marginal addition by B. Dyce supplies speakers' names, alternatively Sher. and Clo., without indication that they are not in the MS.

⁶⁵² Dyce supplies bin after have 658 he] interlined. y'] Dyce it

⁶⁵⁷ Dyce supplies for after hange folye] Dyce foly 663 payes] Dyce paies 664 Now] Dyce You and they may liue to mend their parents faultes. Will, why well sayd wife, yfaith thou cheerst my hart, giue me thy hand, lets kisse, and so lets part. he kisses her on the ladder. *680 Doll. The next kisse williamson, shalbe in heaven.

Now cheerely Lads, George Bets, a hand with thee, and thine too Rafe, and thine good honest Sherwin. Now let me tell the women of this towne, No straunger vet brought doll to lying downe. So long as I an Englishman can see, Nor ffrenche nor dutche shall get a kisse of me. And when that I am dead, for me yet say, I dyed in scorne to be a straungers preye.

within. Pardon, Pardon, pardon, pardon Roome for the Eale of Surrey, roome there roome.

Sur. Saue the mans life, if it be possible.

Sheriff. It is too late my Lord, hees dead alreadie. Sur. I tell ye Mr. Sheriffe, you are too forwarde, to make such haste with men vnto their death, I thinke your paines will merit little thankes since that his Highnesse is so mercifull, as not to spill the blood of any subject. Sheriff. My noble Lord, would we so much had knowen, the Councelles warrant hastened our dispatche, it had not else bin doone so suddenly:

Sur. Sir Thomas Moore humbly vppon his knee, did begge the liues of all, since on his woord they did so gently yeeld. The King hath graunted it, and made him Lord high Chauncellour of England, according as he woorthily deserues. Since Lincolnes life cannot be had againe, then for the rest, from my dread Soueraignes lippes, I heere pronounce free pardon for them all.

All. God saue the King, God saue the King,

a great shout and noise. Enter Surrey.

*700

*710

*690

/ flinging (vp cappes

689 Dyce supplies within after noise

691 Eale sic for Earle: Dyce Erle

FOL. 11b

+720

·730

my good Lord Chauncellour and the Earle of Surrey.

Doll. And doll desires it from her very hart,

Moores name may live for this right noble part.

And w(hen)soere we talke of ill May day:

(praise Moore

Sur. I(n ho)pe his highnesse clemencie (and) mercie, w(h)ich in the armes of milde and meeke compassion would rather clip you, as the loouing Nursse oft dooth the waywarde Infant, then to leaue you, to the sharp rodd of Iustice so to drawe you, to shun such lewde assemblies, as beget vnlawfull riots and such trayterous acts, that striking with the hand of private hate. maime your deare countrie with a publique wounde.

Oh God, that mercie, whose maiestick browe, should be vnwrinckled, and that awefull justice, which looketh through a vaile of sufferaunce vppon the frailtie of the multitude should with the clamours of outragious wrongs, be stird and wakened thus to punishment.

But your deserved death he dooth forgive. who gives you life, pray all he long may live

All. God saue the King, God saue the King,

my good Lord Chauncellour and the Earle of Surrey. --- exeunt.

(THIS) MUSTBENEWE (WRITT)EN

A table beeing couered with a greene Carpet, a state Cushion on it, and the Pursse and Mace lying thereon Enter Sir Thomas Moore and his man Randall with him, attyred like him.

Moore. Come on Sir, are you readie?

714 day: Dvce daie

715 the word after Moore is almost certainly whose: various other tall letters are visible, but nothing can be made out clearly: the line presumably rimed. The rule which presumably marked off the speech has disappeared. 716 &c. page covered with tracing paper as far as 760 inclusive. 726-30 (? for 725-30) marked for omission. • 735 Scene viii a.

735-96 marked for omission and heavily crossed out.

735-6 the marginal note, which is now partly illegible, is in an uncertain hand, possibly B.

Ran. | yes my Lord, I stand but vppon a fewe pointes, I shall have doone presently, Is it your honors pleasure that I should [be] growe proude now? Moore. I. I must have thee proude, or else thou'lt nere be neere allyed to greatnesse: obserue me Sir. The learned Clarke Erasmus is arriv'de within our Englishe Courte, this day I heare. he feasteth with an Englishe honourd Poett the Earle of Surrey, and I knowe this night the famous Clarke of Roterdame will visite Sir Thomas Moore, therfore Sir, act my parte, there, take my place furnishte with pursse and Mace. Ile see if great Erasmus can distinguishe 750 merit and outward ceremonie: obserue me Sirra, Ile be thy glasse, dresse thy behauiour according to my cariage, but beware thou talke not ouermuch, for twill betray thee. who prates not oft, seemes wise, his witt fewe scan, whilste the tounge blabs tales of th'imperfect man. Ran. I conceiue your Lordship, and haue learnde your shift so well, that I must needes be apprehensive]. The waites playes within Moore. This Musique telles vs, that the Earle is come with learnde Erasmus. Now my Lord Chauncellour, 760 Act like a formall Player our graue parte. Ran I pray ye my Lord, let me comaund ye to leaue me, if I doo it not in kew, let your Lordship bannishe me from the wearing of a golde chaine for euer. Moore. They come now, set thy countenaunce, act thy parte with a firme boldnesse, and thou winnest my hart. Musique, enter Surrey, Erasmus and attendants. Sur. Now great Erasmus, you approache the presence, of a moste learned woorthie Gentleman.

740 growe] interlined. 742 greatnesse:] n interlined. 745 honourd] Dyce honoured
748 act my] Dyce acting 757 Lordship] ship interlined.
749 furnishte] Dyce furnisht 758 apprehensive.] some mark after the final e has been crossed out.
761-96 till lately covered by fol. 11*: consequently not printed by Dyce.

This little Ile holdes not a truer freend

a feigned florishe to his woorthie meritt. Hees great in studie, thats the statists grace, that gaines more reuerence then the outward place. Reporte my Lord hath crost the narrow Seas, and to the seuerall partes of Christendome hath borne the fame of your Lord Chauncellour. I longd to see him, whom with loouing thoughts I in my studie oft haue visited. Is yond Sir Thomas? Sur. It is Erasmus. Now doo you viewe the honorablest Scholler, the moste religious Politician, the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. Eras. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.		Ivnto the Artes: nor dooth his greatnesse add	*770 that gaines more reverence then the outward place. Reporte my Lord hath crost the narrow Seas, and to the severall partes of Christendome hath borne the fame of your Lord Chauncellour. I longd to see him, whom with loouing thoughts I in my studie oft have visited. Is yond Sir Thomas? Sur. It is Erasmus. Now doo you viewe the honorablest Scholler, the moste religious Politician, the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. Eras. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.
Reporte my Lord hath crost the narrow Seas, and to the seuerall partes of Christendome hath borne the fame of your Lord Chauncellour. I longd to see him, whom with loouing thoughts I in my studie oft haue visited. Is yond Sir Thomas? Sur. It is Erasmus. Now doo you viewe the honorablest Scholler, the moste religious Politician, the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. Eras. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.		Hees great in studie, thats the statists grace, and to the seuerall partes of Christendome hath borne the fame of your Lord Chauncellour. I longd to see him, whom with loouing thoughts I in my studie oft haue visited. Is yond Sir Thomas? Sur. It is Erasmus. Now doo you viewe the honorablest Scholler, the moste religious Politician, the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. Eras. Eras. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.		that gaines more reuerence then the outward place.
hath borne the fame of your Lord Chauncellour. I longd to see him, whom with loouing thoughts I in my studie oft haue visited. Is yond Sir Thomas? Sur. Sur. Now doo you viewe the honorablest Scholler, the moste religious Politician, the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. Eras. Eras. Eras. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.	Eras.	Reporte my Lord hath crost the narrow Seas,
I longd to see him, whom with loouing thoughts I in my studie oft haue visited. Is yond Sir Thomas? It is Erasmus. Now doo you viewe the honorablest Scholler, the moste religious Politician, the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. Eras. Eras. It hinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.		and to the seuerall partes of Christendome
I in my studie oft haue visited. Is yond Sir Thomas? It is Erasmus. Now doo you viewe the honorablest Scholler, the moste religious Politician, the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. Eras. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.		hath borne the fame of your Lord Chauncellour.
Is yond Sir Thomas? It is Erasmus. Now doo you viewe the honorablest Scholler, the moste religious Politician, the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. Eras. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.		I longd to see him, whom with loouing thoughts
Now doo you viewe the honorablest Scholler, the moste religious Politician, the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. Eras. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.		I in my studie oft haue visited.
Now doo you viewe the honorablest Scholler, the moste religious Politician, the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. Eras. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.		Is yond Sir Thomas?
the moste religious Politician, the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.	Sur.	It is Erasmus.	•780
the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state. That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.		Now doo you viewe the honorablest Scholler,
That Studie is the generall watche of England, In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.
In it, the Princes safetie, and the peace, that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.		the woorthiest Councellour that tends our state.
that shines vppon our comon weale, [is] are forgde. vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.		That Studie is the generall watche of England, vppon the golden Anuile of his braine. who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.
who cures the Realme, such care attends the great, that minde and bodie must together sweate. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.
that minde and bodie must together sweate. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.
Eras. His Lordship hath some weightie busines sure, for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.
for see, as yet he takes no notice of vs. I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.
I thinke twere best I doo my dutie to him in a short Latine speeche.	Eras.		•790 in a short Latine speeche.
		·
		·
Sur. It will doo well,	Sur.
hees the best linguist that we have in England.
\ Cum tua virtus, (amplissim\ \) \ \doctissime que vir\) \	>	Cum tua virtus, (amplissim()doctissime que vir) (

[Here one or more original leaves are lost.]

772 statists] i altered. 786 are] interlined. 792 I thinke] I doubtful. 793 in] doubtful. 796 considerable traces, apparently of two further words, remain, but not enough to lead so far to the restoration of the reading. The word next after vir is almost entirely indecipherable, but may possibly end in as; the next probably begins peruen

Methinkes this straunge and Ruffinlike disguise, Fol. 14^a fits not the follower of a secretarie. Faulk. My Lord, I weare my haire vppon a vow. Shrew. But for no penaunce of your sinnes I feare. †800 Sur. No, hees no haire-cloth man, though he weare haire. Moore. ffaulkener, how long ist since you cutt your locks? Faulk. Three yeares my Lord. Moore. How long wilt be before your vow expire? Faulk. As many yeares as since my haire was cut. Moore. Sure, vowes are holy things, if they be made to good intent, and Sir, you shall not say, you were compelde by me to breake your vowe. But till the expiration of the same, because I will not have ye walke the streetes, †810 for euery man to stand and wunder at, I will comitt ve prisoner vnto Newgate. Except meane time, your conscience giue you leaue, to dispense with the long vow that you have made Away with him. Sur. A Cell moste meete for such a votarie. Faulk. well Sir, and I may perhaps be bailde er't be long, and yet weare my haire Moore. And Mr. Sheriff of London, --- they lead him out: heere in his highnesse name we give you charge, continuall watche be kept through out the cittie, †820 for the suppressing of these mutinies. And if heerafter any that belong, either to my Lord of winchester or Elie, doo come into your Cittie with a weapon, or abooue two of either faction. shall be seene walking in the streetes together or meete in Tauerne or in Ordinarie, they be comitted presently to prison.

797 For fols 11*, 12, 13, 13* see among Additions. Scene viii b. 797-876 heavily crossed out: there is no actual line down the edge-822 heerafter] Dyce hereafter

Sur.	And cause to be proclaimd about the Cittie,
	that no man whatsoeuer, that belongs,	†830 either to my Lord of winchester or Elie, doo walke without the liuerie of his Lord, either in cloke or any other garment, nter Mr. Morris.
Moris.		&. ex. Sherif and the rest.
Moor.	welcome Mr Morris, what newes Sir?	3
Moris.	I come moste humbly to entreate your honor, in the behalfe of a poore man of mine.
Moore.	what, the votarie, that will not cut his haire,
	vntill the expiration of his vow?	†8 ₄ 0
Moris.	My lord, beeing sorie for his rude behauiour,
	he hath cut his haire, and dooth conforme him selfe [to honest decencie] in his attire.
Moore.	where is the fellow? I am glad to heare it.
Moris.	heere my good Lord.	Faukener is brought
Moore.	you mock me surely, this is not the man.
Faulk.	yes indeed my Lord, I am he.
Moore.	Thou art not sure.
	the other was an vglie filthie knaue, thou, a good featurde and well fauourd man.	†8 5 0
	why see what monsters you will make your selues, by cherishing a lothsome excrement, t'abuse the goodly ymage of a man, whom God did frame so excellent a creature.
	well, be a peaceable and ciuill man,
	I doo dischardge thee.
	I humbly thanke your honor.
Moris.	And my selfe
	[shall rest moste] thankfull for this gracious fauour.
Moore.	wilt please your honors now to keepe your way:	†86o
	I feare the Lordes are hindered by our stay.	exeunt Lordes.

834 th'offenders.] Dyce the offenders 840 vow?] v altered? 843 decencie] cenc doubtful. 849-76 till recently covered by fol. 13*: consequently not printed by Dyce.

Moris.	See Sir what your Ruffian tricks come too, you thinke the eye of wisedome doo's not see,
	into the brainsick follies of vaine heades,
	but with your swaggering, you can bear't away.	•
Faulk.	Sir, I confesse I haue bin much misgouernde, and led by ydle spleenes, which now I see,
	are like them selues, meere sottishe vanitie.
	when () the Iayle I better ()llde to minde the graue rebukes of my Lord Chauncell(†87 0 and lookte into my selfe with more res( then my rashe heate before would let m( I caused a Barber presently be sent f( and moou'de your woorship then () for me.
	but when I fall into (:
	casheere me (
	Enter St. Thomas Moore, Mt. Roper, and Seruing me	en setting (stooles). Fol. 14
Moore.	Come my good fellowes, stirre, be dilligent,
	Sloth is an ydle fellowe, leaue him now,	†8 86
	the time requires your expeditious seruice.
	Place me heere stooles, to set the Ladyes on.
	Sonne Roper, you have given order for the banquet.
Ro.	I haue my Lord, and euery thing is readie.	/ Enter his Lady.
Moore.	Oh welcome wife, giue you direction,
	how women should be plac'de, you knowe it best.
	ffor my Lord Maior, his bretheren, and the rest,
	Let me alone, men best can order men
La.	I warrant ye my Lord, all shalbe well
	Ther's one without that stayes to speake with ye,	†89¢
	And bad me tell ye that he is a Player.
Moore.	A Player wife? one of ye bid him come in,	ex. one.
	Nay stirre there fellowes, fye, ye are to slowe.

⁸⁶³ doo's] 's inserted. 871-3 in each case the last letter is doubtful.
877 clear traces of this line appear under the mending paper, but it was probably the last of the page.
878 Scene ix.

1920

See that your lights be in a readines, the Banquet shalbe heere. Gods me Madame, leaue my Lady Maioresse? bothe of vs from the boord? and my Sonne Roper too? what may our guests thinke? La. My Lord, they are risen, and sitting by the fire. Moore. why yet goe you and keepe them companie, It is not meete we should be absent bothe. /ex. La. ent. Player. welcome good freend, what is your will with me? Player. My Lord, my fellowes and my selfe, are come to tender ye our willing seruice, so please you to commaund vs. Moore. what, for a play, you meane? whom doo ve serue? Player. My Lord Cardinalles grace. Moore. My Lord Cardinalls players? now trust me, welcome. you happen hether in a luckie time, to pleasure me, and benefit your selues. 4010 The Maior of London, and some Aldermen, his Lady, and their wives, are my kinde guests this night at supper. Now, to have a play, before the banquet, will be excellent, how thinke you Sonne Roper?

Ro. Twill doo well my Lord, and be right pleasing pastime to your guests.

Moore. I pre thee tell me, what playes haue ye?

Player. diuers my Lord: the Cradle of Securitie, hit nayle o'th head, impacient pouertie,
the play of foure Pees, diues and Lazarus, Lustie Iuuentus, and the mariage of witt and wisedome.

Moore. The mariage of witt and wisedome? that my Lads, Ile none but that, the theame is very good, and may maintaine a liberall argument.

To marie wit to wisedome, asks some cunning, Many haue witt, that may come short of wisedome.

907 a pencil cross at end.

1930

1940

4050

weele see how Mr. Poet playes his part, and whether witt or wisedome grace his arte. Goe, make him drinke, and all his fellowes too, how manie are ye?

Player. ffoure men and a boy Sir.

Moore. But one boy? then I see. ther's but fewe women in the play.

Player. Three my Lord: dame Science, Lady vanitie, and wisedome she her selfe

Moore. And one boy play them all? bir Lady, hees loden. well my good fellowe get ye straite together, and make ye readie with what haste ye may. Prouide their supper gainste the play be doone. else shall we stay our guests heere ouer long. make haste I pray ye.

Player. we will my Lord. ---- ex. Ser. &. player.

Moore. where are the waytes? goe, bid them play, to spend the time awhile. / How now Madame! / En. Lady.

La. My Lord th'are coming hether.

Moore. Th'are welcome: wife, Ile tell ye one thing, Our sporte is somewhat mended, we shall haue a play to night: the mariage of witt and wisedome, And acted by my good Lord Cardinalles players. how like ye that wife?

La. My Lord, I like it well. See, they are comming.

The waytes playes, Enters Lord Major, so many Aldermen as may, WAITES PLAY the Lady Maioresse in Scarlet, with other Ladyes and Sir Thomas HERE. Moores daughters, Seruaunts carying lighted Torches by them.

Moore. Once agayne welcome, welcome my good Lord Major.

935 Lord] d touched up. 936 wisedome] Dyce Wisdome 937 vir] r altered in darker ink. 946 coming] Dyce coming 954-5 marginal direction added by C. 955 Lady] y, already damaged in facsimile, has wholly disappeared in the MS. Ladyes] Dyce Ladies 956 Moores] s, already damaged in facsimile, has wholly disappeared in the MS. Sernau Seruaunts]

Dyce Seruauntes 957 agayne] Dyce againe

And bretheren all for once I was your brother, and so am still in hart. It is not state, that can our looue from London seperate. †960) naught but pride. FOL. 15a But they that cast an eye still whence they came. knowe how they rose, and how to vse the same. L. Maior. My Lord, you set a glosse on Londons fame. and make it happie euer by your name. Needs must we say, when we remember Moore, Twas he that droue rebellion from our doore. with graue discretions milde and gentle breath. sheelding a many subjects lives from death. 1970 Oh how our Cittie is by you renownde, And with your vertues our endeuours crownde. Moore. No more my good Lord Maior: but thanks to all, that on so short a summons, you would come to visite him that holdes your kindnesse deere. Madame, you are not merie with my Lady Majoresse. And these fayre Ladyes, pray ye seate them all, And heere my Lord, let me appoint your place the rest to seate them selues: Nay, Ile wearie ye, you will not long in haste to visite me. †980

La. Good Madame sit, in sooth you shall sit heere.

La. Mai. Good Madame pardon me, it may not be.

La. In troth Ile haue it so, Ile sit heere by yee, Good Ladyes sit, more stooles heere hoe.

La. Mai. It is your fauour Madame makes me thus, presume abooue my merit.

La. when we come to you, then shall you rule vs, as we rule you heere. Now must I tell ye Madame, we have a play, 958 all] ll, already damaged in facsimile, has wholly disappeared in the MS. 961 Dyce indicates the loss of a line: traces remain.

962 there is a blot before naught; possibly a deletion.

972 endeuours Dyce endeauours to welcome ye withall: how good so ere, that knowe not I, my Lord will haue it so.

4000

Moore, wife, hope the best, I am sure theyle doo their best. they that would better, comes not at their feaste. My good Lord Cardinalles players, I thanke them for it, play vs a play, to lengthen out your welcome, [my good Lord Major, and all my other freends.] They say it is the mariage of wit and wisedome,

A theame of some importe, how ere it prooue: but if Arte faile, weele inche it out with looue.

what, are they readie?

11000

Ser. My Lord, one of the Players craues to speake with you.

Moore, with me? where is he?

Enter Inclination the vise, readie.

Incli. heere my Lord.

Moore. How now? what's the matter?

Incli. we would desire your honor but to stay a little, one of my fellowes is but run to Oagles, for a long beard for young witt, and heele be heere presently.

Moore. A long beard for young witt? why man, he may be with out a beard till he come to mariage, for witt goes not all by the hayre: when comes witt in?

Incli. In the second Scene, next to the Prologue my Lord.

Moore, why play on till that Sceane come, and by that time witts beard will be growne, or else the fellowe returned with it. And what part plaist thou?

Incli. Inclination the vice my Lord.

41012

Moore. Gramercies, now I may take the vice if I list: and wherfore hast thou that bridle in thy hand?

Incli. I must be bridled annon my Lord.

Moore. And thou beest not sadled too, it makes no matter, for then witts inclination may gallop so fast, that he will outstrip wisedome, and fall to follie.

Incli. Indeed so he does to Lady vanitie: but we have no follie in our play.

Moore. Then ther's no witt in't, Ile be sworne: ffollie waites on witt, as the shaddow(e on the bodie, and where witt is ripest, there follie still is readiest. But beginne I pre thee, weele rather allowe a beardlesse witt, then witt all bearde to haue 41022 no braine.

> 996 the line is crossed out in rather darker ink. 1002 a pencil cross after he? 1021 to] o altered or touched up.

Incli. Nay, he has his apparell on too my Lord, and therfore he is the readier to enter. Moore. Then good Inclination beginne at a venter. My Lord Maior: witt lacks a beard, or else they would beginne, Ide lend him mine, but that it is too thinne. Silence, they come. The Trompet soundes, enter the Prologue. Pro. Now for as much as in these latter dayes, throughout the whole world in euery land; 11030 vice dooth encrease and vertue decaves. Iniquitie hauing the vpper hand. we therfore intend good gentle Audience, a prettie short Enterlude to play at this present, desiring your leave and quiet silence, to shewe the same as is meete and expedient. It is called the mariage of witt and wisedome, A matter right pithie and pleasing to heare, (wherof in breefe we) will (shewe) the (whole summe But I must begon, for (witt dooth) appeare. exit FOL. 15b Enter Witt ruffling, and Inclination the vice. Witt. In an arbour greene, a sleepe where as I lay, 11042 The birdes sang sweetely in the midst of the day, I dreamed fast of mirthe and play, In youth is pleasure, in youthe is pleasure. Me thought I walked still to and fro, And from her companie I could not goe, But when I waked, it was not so, In youth is pleasure, in youth is pleasure. Therfore my hart is surely plight, 11050 Of her alone to have a sight,

Moore. In youth is pleasure, in youth is pleasure.

Marke ye my Lord, this is witt without a bearde, what will he be, by that time he comes to the commoditie of a bearde?

1024 Dyce supplies Inclin. after exit which is my ioy and harts delight,

1028 soundes,] d altered.

1031 dooth] Dyce doth

41060

11070

Incli. Oh Sir, the ground is the better on which she dooth goe. ffor she will make better cheere with a little she can get;

then many a one can with a great banquet of meat.

Witt. And is her name wisedome?

Incli. I Sir, a wife moste fitt, for you my good maister, my daintie sweet Witt.

Witt. To be in her companie, my hart it is set.

therfore I pre thee to let vs begon:

for vnto wisedome Witt hath Inclination.

Incli Oh Sir, she will come her selfe euen annon.

ffor I tolde her before where we would stand

And then she sayd she would beck vs with her hand.

Back with those boyes, and saucie great knaues, / florishing his dagger.

what, stand ye heere so bigge in your braues?

my dagger about your coxecombes shall walke, if I may but so much as heare ye chat or talke.

Witt. But will she take paines to come for vs hether?

Incli. I warrant ye, therfore you must be familiare with her.

when she commeth in place,

you must her embrace, somewhat hansomely,

Least she thinke it daunger,

because you are a straunger, to come in your companie.

Witt. I warrant thee Inclination, I will be busie,

Oh how witt longs to be in wisedomes companie.

Enter Lady Vanitie singing, and beckning with her hand.

11080

Van. Come hether, come hether, come hether come:

Such cheere as I haue, thou shalt haue some.

Moore. This is Lady Vanitie Ile holde my life:

beware good witt, you take not her to wife.

Incli. what, vnknowne honestie, a woord in your eare, you shall not be gon as yet I sweare. / she offers to depart.

Heer's none but your freends, you need not to fray,

this young Gentleman looues ye, therfore you must stay.

1068 those] Dyce these

1082 cheere] Dyce chere

Witt. I trust in me she will thinke no daunger, for I looue well the companie of fayre women:

11000

41100

FOL. 17^a

And though to you I am a straunger, yet Witt may pleasure you now and then.

Van. who you? nay you are such a holy man, that to touche one you dare not be bolde: I thinke you would not kisse a young woman, if one would give ye twentie pound in golde.

Witt, yes in good sadnesse Lady, that I would,

I could finde in my hart to kisse you in your smock.

Van. My back is broade enough to beare that mock.

ffor it hath bin tolde me many a time:

that you would be seene in no such companie as mine.

Witt. Not Witt in the companie of Lady Wisedome?

Oh Ioue for what doo I hether come?

Incli. Sir, she did this nothing else but to prooue, whether a little thing would you mooue, to be angrie and frett:

what and if one sayd so,

let such trifling matters goe,

and with a kinde kisse come out of her debt.

Is Luggins come yet with the beard? / Enter an other player. 41110

Player. No faith, he is not come, alas, what shall we doo?

Incli. fforsooth we can goe no further, till our fellowe Luggins come, [s] for he plays good Councell, and now he should enter, to admonishe Witt, that this is Lad(y Vanitie, and not Lady Wisedome.

Moore. Nay, and it be no more but so, ye shall not tarie at a stand for that, weele not haue our play marde for lack of a little good Councell: till your fellowe co(me Ile geue him the best councell that I can, pardon me my Lord Maior, I lo(ue to (be) merie witt,) th(ou art nowe on) the bowe hand, 1107 and interlined. 1116 lack] Dyce lacke Moore. (oh

III7 geue] the first e is highly probable, though covered with a small blot of modern ink: Dyce give III8 the rule which presumably marked off the speech has disappeared.

III9 For fol. 16 see among Additions. Moore.] Dyce omits. In the

In the lacuna is a smudge of black (? modern) ink.

And blindely in thine owne oppinion doost stand. 11120 I tell thee, this naughtie lewde Inclination, Does lead thee amisse in a very straunge fashion. This is not Wisedome, but Lady Vanitie, therfore list to good councell, and be ruled by me. Introth my Lord, it is as right to Lugginses part, as can be, speake Witt. Moore. Nay, we will not have our audience disappointed, if I can help it. Witt. Art thou good Councell, and wilt tell me so? wouldst thou have Witt from Lady Wisedome to goe? Thou art some deceiver, I tell thee verily, In saying that this is Lady Vanitie. 11130 Moore. Witt, judge not things by the outwarde showe, the eye oft mistakes, right well you doo knowe. Good councell assures thee vppon his honestie, that this is not Wisedome, but Lady Vanitie. Enter Luggins with the bearde. Incli. Oh my Lord, he is come, now we shall goe forwarde. Moore. Art thou come? well fellowe, I have holpe to save thine honestie a little, Now, if thou canst give witt any better councell then I have doone, spare no(t there I leave him to thy mercie. But by this time, I am sure our banquet's readie, 11140 My Lord, and Ladyes, we will taste that first, And then they shall begin the play againe, which through the fellowes absence, and by me, in sted of helping, hath bin hindered. Prepare against we come: Lights there I say, thus fooles oft times doo help to marre the play. ---- exeunt. ma. players. Witt. ffye fellowe Luggins, you serue vs hansomely, doo ye not thinke ye. Lug. why, Oagle was not with in, and his wife would not let me haue the beard, an(d by my troth I ran so fast that I sweat againe. Incli. doo ye heare fellowes? would not my Lord make a rare player? Oh, he would 1124 therfore] Dyce Therefore 1136 Incli.] I touched up. 1144 sted] d touched up. 1146 ma.] i.e. manent. Dyce supplies and enter one of them who plays the Clown after players vpholde a companie beyond all hoe, better then Mason among the Kings players: did ye marke how extemprically he fell to the matter, and spake Lugginses parte, almoste as it is in the very booke set downe.

Witt. Peace, doo ye knowe what ye say? my Lord a player? let vs not meddle with any such matters: yet I may be a little proude, that my Lord hath answerd m(e in my parte, but come, let vs goe and be readie to begin the play againe.

Lug. I, thats the best, for now we lack nothing. [exeunt.]

ENTER TO THE PLAYERS WTH A REWARD Enter the Earles of Shrewesburie, Surrey, Bishop of Rochester and other Lordes, seuerally, dooing curtesie to eche other, Clark of the Councell waiting bareheaded.

Sur. Good morrowe to my Lord of Shrewesburie.

Shrew The like vnto the honourd Earle of Surrey.

yond comes my Lord of Rochester.

Rochest. Good morrowe my good Lordes

Sur. Clarke of the Councell, what time ist of day?

Clarke. Past eight of clock my Lord.

Shrew. I wunder that my good Lord Chauncellour, dooth stay so long, considering ther's matters of high importaunce to be scand uppon.

Sur. Clarke of the Councell, certefie his Lordship the Lordes expect him heere.

11170

41180

Rochest. It shall not need.

yond comes his Lordship.

Enter Sr. Thomas Moore, with Pursse and Mace borne before him. /

Moore. Good morrowe to this faire assemblye.

Come my good Lords, let's sit. / Oh serious square, / they sit.

vppon this little borde is dayly scande

the health and preservation of the land.

we the Phisitians that effect this good,

now, by choise diett, annon, by letting blood.

Our toyle and carefull watching, brings the King in league with slumbers, to which, peace dooth sing.

1152 matter,] r altered? 1152-3 Lugginses] Dyce Lugginsses

1157 the S.D. is crossed out in darker ink.

1158 Scene x

1158-9 marginal direction and reference mark (to fol. 16, VI) added by C.

1159 severally, raltered? 1177 borde raltered? 1178 preservation Dyce preservation

Auoyde the roome there. what busines Lords to day?

Shrew. This my good Lord.

About the entertainement of the Emperour, gainst the perfidious ffrenche into our [our] pay.

Sur. My Lords, as tis the custome in this place, the youngest should speake first, so, if I chaunce, in this case to speake youngly, pardon me. I will agree, ffraunce now hath her full strength as having newe recovered the pale blood which warre sluic'de foorth, and I consent to this, that the conjunction of our Englishe forces with armes of Germanie, may sooner bring this prize of conquest in. But then my Lordes, As in the morrall hunting (twixt the) Lyon, and other be(astes force iovnd frighted the weaker sharers from their partes. So if the Empires Soueraigne chaunce to put, his plea of partnership into warres Courte, Swoordes should discide the difference, and our blood: in private teares lament his entertainement.

FOL. 17b 11200

41190

Shrew. To doubt the wurst is still the wise mans sheeld, that armes him safely, but the worlde knowes this, the Emperour is a man of royall faith. His looue vnto our Soueraigne, brings him downe, from his emperiall seate, to marche in pay vnder our English fflagge, and weare the crosse, like some high order on his manly breast. Thus seruing, hees not Maister of him selfe, but like a Collonell, comaunding other, is by the Generall ouer-awed him selfe.

41210

1197 As] Dyce Its

1203 private] the u seems to have been touched up, possibly in modern ink.

1204 Tol Taltered.

¹¹⁹⁹ their] it looks as though the h had been altered, but probably it is only a dark blot showing through from the recto.

Rochest. yet my good Lord.

Shrew. Let me conclude my speeche.

As subjects share no portion in the conquest of their true Soueraigne other then the meritt, that from the Soueraigne guerdons the true subject: So the good Emperour in a freendly league of amitie with England, will not soyle his honor with the theft of Englishe spoyle.

11220

Moore There is no question, but this entertainement:

will be moste honorable, moste comodious.

I have oft heard good Captaines wish to have riche Soldiours to attend them, such as would fight bothe for their lives and livings. Such a one, is the good Emperour: I would to God, we had ten thousand of such able men, hah, then there would appeare, no Courte, no Cittie but where the warres were: they would pay them selves.

†1230

Then to preuent in ffrenche warres, Englands losse: let Germaine flagges wave with our Englishe crosse.

Enter Sir Thomas Palmer.

Pal. My Lordes, his Maiestie hath sent by me these Articles enclosde, first to be viewde, and then to be subscribed to: I tender them, in that due reuerence which befitts this place.

/ with great reuerenc(e

Moore. Subscribe these Articles? stay, let vs pause, our conscience first shall parley with our lawes.

My Lord of Rochester, viewe you the paper.

11240

Rochest. Subscribe to these? now good Sir Thomas Palmer, beseeche the King that he will pardon me.

My hart will check my hand whilste I doo write, subscribing so, I were an hipocrite.

Pal. doo you refuse it then my Lord?

1215 speeche.] second e altered from c?

1233 Thomas] Taltered. 1235 enclosde, Dyce enclos' de 1237 reverence] c covered by mounting paper, final e gone.

1240 Rochester,] comma doubtful.

Rochest.	I doo Sir Thomas.
Pal.	Then heere I summon you foorth with t'appeare, before his maiestie, to answere there this capitall contempt.
Rochest.	I rise, and parte,	11250
	in liew of this, to tender him my hart. / he riseth.
	wilt please your honor to subscribe my Lord?
Moore.	Sir, tell his highnesse, I entreate
	some time for to bethinke me of this taske.
	In the meane while, I doo resigne mine office, into my Soueraignes hands. ALL []ALTR'
Pal.	Then my Lord,
	heare the prepared order from the King.
	On your refusall, you shall straite departe
	vnto your house at Chelsey , till you knowe	11260
	our Soueraignes further pleasure.
Moore.	Moste willingly, I goe.
	My Lordes, if you will visite me at Chelsey , weele goe a fishing, and with a cunning nett, not like weake filme, weele catche none but the great.
	ffarewell my noble Lordes: why this is right, good morrowe to the Sunne, to state good night. —— ex. Moore.
	will you subscribe my Lordes?
Sur.	Instantly good Sir Thomas,
	weele bring the writing vnto our Soueraigne. / they write.	11270
Pal.	My Lord of Rochester,
n 1	you must with me, to answere this contempt.
Koches.	This is the wurst,
0	who's fre(ed from) life, is from all care exempt. — ex. Ro. & Pal.
Sur.	(now let vs to our Soueraign)e.

1247-75 crossed out by T; a large cross mark in the margin may or may not be his. The line really runs through the text, not down the side.

1247 heere] second e altered from a?

1256 marginal note by T: all is clear; at the beginning of the second word a long letter s or f has been crossed out, a has been altered, it is clear, the rest is badly written and quite doubtful: Dyce all altered: the meaning, that the whole passage is to be altered, is the only certain point.

(

tis straunge) that my (lord) Chauncellour should refuse the dutie that the lawe of God bequeathes

FOL. 18²

vnto the King.

Shrew. Come, let vs in, no doubt, his minde will alter, and the Bishops too,

†1280

Errour in learned heads hath much to doo.

Enter the Lady Moore, her two daughters, and Mr. Roper, as walking(

Ro. Madame, what ayles yee for to looke so sad.

Lady. Troth Sonne, I knowe not what, I am not sick, and yet I am not well: I would be merie but somewhat lyes so heavie on my hart: I cannot chuse but sigh. / You are a Scholler,

I pray ye tell me, may one credit dreames? Ro. why ask you that, deare Madame?

Lady. Because to night, I had the straungest dreame, that ere my sleep was troubled with.

11290

Me thought twas night,

And that the King and Queene went on the Themes, in Bardges to heare musique: My Lord and I were in a little boate me thought, Lord, Lord, what straunge things liue in slumbers? And beeing neere, we grapled to the Bardge that bare the King. But after many pleasing voyces spent, in that still moouing musique house: me thought. the violence of the streame did sever vs quite from the golden fleet, and hurried vs, vnto the bridge, which with vnused horror. we entred at full tide, thence some flight shoote, beeing caried by the waves: our boate stood still iust opposite the Tower, and there it turnde, and turnde about, as when a whirle-poole sucks

†1300

the circkled waters: me thought that we bothe cryed, 1281 learned] r interlined. Dyce supplies s.D. Exeunt. after doo 1282 Scene xi. walking] the end of the word has been damaged since the facsimile was made.

1303 flight | sic: Dyce slight till that we sunck, where arme in arme we dyed.

Ro.	Giue no respect, deare Madame to fond dreames,
	they are but slight illusions of the blood.	†1310
Lady.	Tell me not all are so, for often dreames, are true diuiners, either of good or ill.
	I cannot be in quiet, till I heare,
	how my Lord fares.
Ro. aside.	Nor I. / Come hether wife
	I will not fright thy mother, to interprete
	the nature of a dreame: but trust me sweete, this night I have bin troubled with thy father:
	beyond all thought.
Ro. wife.	Truely and so haue I.	11320
	Me thought I sawe him heere in Chelsey Churche, standing vppon the Rood loft, now defac'de.
	And whilste he kneeld and prayd before the ymage,
	it fell with him into the vpper quier,
_	where my poore father lay all stainde in blood.
Ro.	Our dreames all meet in one conclusion
	ffatall, I feare.
_	what's that you talke? I pray ye let me knowe it.
	Nothing good mother.
Lady.	This is your fashion still, I must knowe nothing.	†1330
	Call Maister Catesbie, he shall straite to Courte, and see how my Lord does: I shall not rest,
	vntill my hart leaue panting on his breast.
	Enter S ^r . Thomas Moore merily, Servaunts attending.
•	See where my father comes, ioyfull and merie.
Moore.	As Sea men, having past a troubled storme, daunce on the pleasant shoare: So I, Oh I could speake now like a Poett. Now afore God, I am passing light, wife, giue me kinde welcome, thou wast wunt to blame
	my kissing, when my beard, was in the stubble,	†1340
	1315 aside.] Dyce as if supplied. 1324 vpper quier,] Dyce vpper-quier 1333 leaue] might be leane pencil cross at end.

	But, I haue bin trimde of late, I haue had,
	a smoothe Courte shauing, in good faith I haue,	/ daughters kneele.
D	God blesse ye: Sonne Roper, giue me your hand.
	your Honor's welcome home.
	Honor? ha ha: And how doost wife?
	He beares him selfe moste straungely.
	will your Lordship in?
Wioore.	Lordship? no wife, that's gon,
7 7.	the ground was slight that we did leane vppon.
Laay.	Lord that your Honor nere will leave these Iests,	†1350
7.5	In faith it ill becomes yee.
IVI oore.	Oh go(od) wife.	T 10h
	Honor and Iests are bothe together fled,	Fol. 18 ^b
7 . 7	The meriest Councellour of England's dead.
_	whose that my Lord?
	Still Lord? / the Lord Chauncellour wife.
	Thats you.
Moore.	Certaine, but I haue chaungde my life.
	Am I not leaner then I was before,
	the fatt is gon: my title's only Moore.	†1360
	Contented with one stile, Ile liue at rest, they that haue many names, are not still best.
r 1	I have resignde mine office: count'st me not wise?
-	Oh God.
Moore.	Come, breed not female children in your eyes.
	the King will haue it so.
-	what's the offence?
Woore.	Tush let that passe, weele talke of that annon.
	The King seemes a Phisitian to my fate,
D	His princely minde, would traine me back to state.	†1370
	Then be his patient my moste honord father.
Wioore.	Oh Sonne Roper.

1370 me] e altered from y 1371 moste] e altered.

[Vbi turpis est medicina, sanari piget.]

No wife, be merie, and be merie all, you smilde at rising, weepe not at my fall. Let's in, and heere ioy like to private freends, since dayes of pleasure have repentant ends. The light of greatnesse is with triumph borne:

It sets at midday oft, with publique scorne.

exeunt.

Enter the Bishop of Rochester, Surrey, Shrewsburie, Lieutenant +1380 of the Tower, and warders with weapons.

Rochest. Your kinde perswasions, honorable Lords, I can but thanke ye for, but in this brest there liues a soule, that aimes at higher things, then temporarie pleasing earthly Kings. God blesse his Highnesse, euen with all my hart, we shall meete one day, though that now we part.

Sur. we not misdoubt your wisedome can discerne, what best befits: it: yet in looue and zeale; we could entreate, it might be otherwise.

†1390

Shrew. No doubt your fatherhood will by your selfe, consider better of the[s] present case, and growe as great in fauour as before.

Rochest. ffor that, as pleaseth God, in my restrainte from worldly causes, I shall better see into my selfe, then at proude libertie. The Tower and I will privately conferre, of things, wherin at freedome, I may erre. But I am troublesome vnto your Honors; and holde ye longer then becomes my dutie. Mr. Lieutenant, I am now your charge And though you keep my bodie, yet my looue, waites on my King and you, while ffisher liues.

11400

Sur. ffarewell my Lord of Rochester, weele pray for your release, and labour't as we may.

1380 Scene xii.

1380 Shrewsburie Dyce Shrewsbury

1389 besits : it :] sic.

	Shrew	. Therof assure your selfe, so doo we leaue yee,
		And to your happie private thoughts bequeath yee. —	ex. Lords.
	Rochest.	Now Mr. Lieutenant, on, a Gods name goe,
		And with as glad a minde goe I with you:
		As euer trewant bad the schoole adiewe.	exeunt. +1410
		Enter S ^r . Thomas Moore, his Lady, daughters, M ^r . I	Roper, Gentlemen( and Seruaunts, as in his house at Chelsey.	•
	Moore.	God morrowe good sonne Roper, sit good Madame,	/ lowe stooles vppon an humble seate, the time so craues, rest your good hart on earth, the roofe of graues.
		you see the floore of greatnesse is vneuen,
		the Cricket and high throane alike neere heauen.
		Now daughters, you that like to braunches spred,
		and giue best shaddowe to a priuate house:
		Be comforted my Girles, your hopes stand faire,	†1420
		vertue breedes gentrie, she makes the best heire.
b	oth daugh.	God morrow to your honor.
	Moore.	Nay, good night rather,
		your honor's creast-falne with your happie father.
	Ro.	Oh what formalitie, what square observaunce:
		liues in a little roome, heere, publique care, gagges not the eyes of slumber: heere, fierce riott, ruffles not proudely in a coate of trust, whilste like a Pawne at Chesse, he keepes in ranck
		with Kings and mightie fellowes, yet indeed	11430 those men [th\ tha\)t stand on tip toe, smile to see (him pawne his fortunes
	Moore.	(True sonne	Fol. 19 ²
		Nor does the wanton tongue heere skrewe it selfe into the eare, that like a vise, drinkes vp the yron instrument.
	1411 Scen
	1413 sit]	Dyce Sitt 1416 vneuen,] Dyce uneuen 1422 both daugh oubt the words those men were repeated and deleted.	.] rather too high.
	1432 the	rule which presumably marked off the speech has disappeared.
	1433 &c.	page covered with tracing paper.

Lady, we are heere at peace. Moore. Then peace good wife.

Lady. ffor keeping still in compasse, (a straunge poynte in times newe nauigation,) we have sailde beyond our course.

11440

Moore. haue doone.

Lady, we are exilde the Courte.

Moore. Still thou harpste on that,

Tis sinne for to deserue that banishment, but he that nere knewe Courte courtes sweete content.

Lady. Oh but deare husband.

Moore. I will not heare thee wife,

The winding laborinth of thy straunge discourse, will nere haue end. Sit still, and, my good wife, entreate thy tongue be still: or credit me, thou shalt not vnderstand a woord we speake weele talke in Latine.

Humida vallis raros patitur fulminis ictus. More rest enioves the subject meanely bred, then he that beares the Kingdome in his head. Great men are still Musitians, else the world lyes, they learne lowe [noates] straines after the noates that rise.

Ro. Good Sir, be still your selfe, and but remember, How in this generall Courte of short liu'de pleasure the worlde, creation is the ample foode, that is digested in the mawe of tyme. If man him selfe be subject to such ruine, How shall his garment then, or the loose pointes, that tye respect vnto his awefull place: auoyde distruction? / Moste honord father in lawe, the blood you have bequeath'de these severall hartes

to nourishe your posteritie, stands firme

1457-8 marked for omission. 1458 deleted word doubtful. 1465 respect | s altered?

1457 Great men] doubtful. straines interlined. 1460 liu'de Dyce liu'd

11450

11460

As as with iov you led vs first to rise So with like harts weele lock preferments eyes.

11470

Moore. Close them not then with teares, for that ostent, giues a wett signall of your discontent. If you will share my fortunes, comfort then. an hundred smiles for one sighe: what, we are men. Resigne [wett] wett passion to these weaker eyes, which prooues their sexe, but grauntes nere more wise. Lets now survaye our state: Heere sits my wife, and deare esteemed issue, yonder stand my loouing Seruaunts, now the difference twixt those and these. Now you shall heare me speake, like Moore in melanchollie. / I conceiue, that Nature hath sundrie mettalles, out of which she frames vs mortalles, eche in valuation out prizing other. Of the finest stuffe, the finest features come, the rest of earth, receive base fortune even before their birthe. Hence slaves have their creation and I thinke, Nature prouides content for the base minde, vnder the whip, the burden and the toyle, their lowe wrought bodies drudge in pacience. As for the Prince, in all his sweet gorgde mawe, and his ranck fleshe that sinfully renewes the noones excesse in the nights daungerous surfeits, what meanes or miserie from our birth dooth flowe. Nature entitles to vs. that we owe. But we beeing subject to the rack of hate. falling from happie life to bondage state hauing seene better dayes, now know the lack of glorie, that once rearde eche high fed back.

†1490

11480

1469 As as sic: Dyce emend. And as 1471-1501 marked for omission. 1471 a double cross in left margin, presumably referring to fol. 6 (I). 1475 deleted word doubtful. 1476 Dyce supplies it after grauntes

1480 twixt ? w altered from h

But that in your age did nere viewe better, 11500 challendge not ffortune for your thriftlesse debter. Catesbie. Sir, we have seene farre better dayes, then these. Moore. I was the patrone of those dayes, and knowe, those were but painted dayes, only for showe, then greeue not you to fall with him that gaue them. Pro hæris generosis seruis gloriosum mori. deare Gough, thou art my learned Secretarie, you Mr. Catesbie Steward of my house, the rest (like you) have had fayre time to growe in Sun-shine of my fortunes. But I must tell ye, 11510 Corruption is fled hence with eche mans office. Bribes that make open traffick twixt the soule, and netherland of Hell, deliuer vp their guiltie homage to their second Lordes then liu(in)g thus vntainted, you (are well Trueth (is) no Pilot for the lan(d of hell Fol. 19b Enter a seruaunt my) Lord, there are new lighted at the gate, the Earles of Surrie of Shrewesburie, and they expect you in the inner Courte. 11520 Moore. Entreate their Lordships come into the hall. (L)ady. Oh God, what newes with them? Moore. why how now wife? They are but come to visite their olde freend. Lady. Oh God, I feare, I feare. Moore. what shouldst thou feare fond woman? Iustum si fractus illabatur orbis inpauidum ferient ruinæ. Heere let me liue estraungde from great mens lookes, they are like golden fflyes on leaden hookes.

1500 Dyce supplies you after But 1506-16 marked for omission.

1506 Pro hæris] first four letters doubtful; Pro is obscured by the omission mark, and hæris is rather faint: Dyce omitted altogether and without notice: hæris is, of course, for eris ^{1517 &}amp;c. page covered with tracing paper.

1519 Dyce supplies and after Surrie
1521 Dyce supplies S.D. Exit Ser. after hall.

Enter the Earles, Downes with his Mace, and attendants. 11530 Shrew. Good morrowe good St. Thomas. Sur. Good day good Madame. / kinde salutations. Moore welcome my good Lordes. what ayles your Lordships looke so melanchollie? Oh I knowe you live in Courte, and the Courte diett, is only freend to phisick. Sur. Oh Sir Thomas, Our woordes are now the Kings, and our sad lookes, the interest of your looue. / we are sent to you, from our milde Soueraigne, once more to demaund, 11540 If voule subscribe vnto those Articles, he sent ye th'other day, be well aduisde, ffor on mine honor Lord, graue doctor ffisher Bishop of Rochester, at the selfe same instant, attachte with you, is sent vnto the Tower, for the like obstinacie, his Maiestie, hath only sent you prisoner to your house. But if you now refuse for to subscribe, a stricter course will followe. Lady. Oh deare husband. 11550 both daugh. deare father. / kneeling and weeping. Moore. See my Lordes, this partner, and these subjects to my fleshe: prooue rebelles to my conscience: But my good Lordes if I refuse, must I vnto the Tower? Shrew. you must my Lord, heere is an officer. readie for to arrest you of high treason. Lady & daugh. Oh God, oh God. Ro Be pacient good Madame. Moore. I Downes, ist thou? I once did saue thy life, †1560 when else by cruell riottous assaulte thou hadst bin torne in pieces: thou art reseru'de, to be my Sumner to yond spirituall Courte. Giue me thy hand good fellowe, smooth thy face, the diet that thou drinkst, is spic'de with mace, and I could nere abide it, twill not disgest, twill lye too heauie man, on my weake brest.

+1570

11580

11590

Shrew. Be breefe my Lord, for we are limitted vnto an houre.

Moore. vnto an houre? tis well,

[the bell (earths thunder) soone shall toale my knell.]

Lady. Deare loouing husband, if you respect not me, yet thinke vppon your daughters. / kneeling.

Moore. wife, stand vp, I have bethought me, and Ile now satisfye the Kings good pleasure / pondering to him selfe.

both daugh. Oh happie alteration.

Shrew. Come then, subscribe my Lord.

Sur. I am right glad of this your fayre converssion.

Moore. Oh pardon me,

I will subscribe to goe vnto the Tower, with all submissive willingnes, and therto add my bones to strengthen the foundation of Iulius Cæsars pallace. Now my Lord, Ile satisfye the King, even with my blood, Nor will I wrong your pacience: freend, doo thine office.

Dow. Sir Thomas Moore, Lord Chauncellour of England, I arrest you in the Kings name of high treason.

Moore. Gramercies, freend, [and let vs]

To a great prison, to discharge the strife, commenc'de twixte conscience and my frai

commenc'de twixte conscience and my frailer life Moore now must marche. Chelsey, adiewe, adiewe, straunge farewell, thou shalt nere more see Moore true, for I shall nere see thee more: Servauntes farewell, wife mar(re) no(t) thyne indifferent face, be (wi)se, M(oores widd hus)band, he must make thee rise.

1570 Moore.] e altered? 1574 vp,] comma doubtful. 1578 right] r altered from g? 1587 name] interlined.

1593 a cross at end apparently in modern ink or pencil.

¹⁵⁸⁸ and let vs] reading not quite certain: the following words may be now on

had almost (parted) with a (teare ne, possesse my vertue, that I nere gaue, possesse my vertue, possesse my	FOL. 20 ^a ore thus lightly walkes to a quick graue. Is loquuntur ingentes stupent. It to prison, to heaven through ayre. Enter the warders of the Tower with Halbards. It a guarde there. In an gives a straite comaund, It is be avoyded from the bridge. In an house I heare.
s loquuntur ingentes stupent. vay in minde you my course in prayer: I to prison, to heaven through ayre. ———————————————————————————————————— vay in minde you my course in prayer: I to prison, to heauen through ayre. ————————————————————————————————————
I to prison, to heauen through ayre. ———————————————————————————————————— Enter the warders of the Tower with Halbards. e a guarde there. enant giues a straite comaund, e be auoyded from the bridge. nce is he comitted, who can tell? nam house I heare.
e a guarde there. enant giues a straite comaund, e be auoyded from the bridge. nce is he comitted, who can tell? nam house I heare.
enant giues a straite comaund, e be auoyded from the bridge. nce is he comitted, who can tell? nam house I heare.
e be auoyded from the bridge. nce is he comitted, who can tell? nam house I heare.
nce is he comitted, who can tell?
nam house I heare.
1
le were waitting there an houre agoe.
long, heele not get neere the wharffe,	11610
a croude of Boates vppon the Themes.
spoken with out offence to any,
r more vertuous Gentleman bred in England.
ne poore will burie him in teares.
ard a man since I was borne,
ly bewailde of euery one. Enter a poore woma	an.
nes this woman? whether doost thou presse?
an will be trod to death annon.
est thou heere?	† 1620
with that good man Sir Thomas Moore.
with him? hees not Lord Chauncellour.
with him? hees not Lord Chauncellour.
	with that good man Sir Thomas Moore.

^{1608, 1619} Dyce is wrong in stating that the MS. has the numeral 2 before these lines.
1609 waiting Dyce waiting
1611 Themes.] Dyce Thames 1612 1. Dyce 2
1615 2.] wrongly altered to 3 in different ink by a reviser who, like Dyce, misread the scribe's figures: Dyce 3 1618 3.] Dyce omits.

¹⁶²² I.] Dyce 2

I.	Therfore if thou hast a petition to deliuer, thou mayst keepe it now, for any thing I knowe.
wo.	I am a poore woman, and haue had (God knowes,)
	a suite this two yeare in the Chauncerie,
	And he hath all the euidence I haue, which should I loose, I am vtterly vndoone.
ı.	ffaith, and I feare thoult hardly come by am now,	† 1630
	I am sorie for thee euen with all my hart.
	Enter the Lords with Sir Thomas Moore, and attendants, and enter Lieutenant and Gentleman Porter.
2.	woman stand back, you must auoyde this place,
	the Lords must passe this way into the Tower.
Moore.	I thanke your Lordships for your paines thus farre,
	to my strong house.
wo.	Now good Sir Thomas Moore, for Christes deare sake,
	deliuer me my writings back againe,
	that doo concerne my title.	+1640
Moore.	what, my olde client, are thou got hether too?
	Poore sillie wretche, I must confesse indeed,
	I had such writings as concerne thee neere,
	But the King has tane the matter into his owne hand,
	he has all I had, then [s] woman sue to him,
	I cannot help thee, thou must beare with me.
wo.	Ah gentle hart, my soule for thee is sad, farewell the best freend that the poore ere had. ——exit woman.
Gent. Por.	Before you enter through the Tower gate,
	your vpper garment Sir belongs to me.	+1650
	Sir you shall haue it, there it is. / he gives him his cap.
Gent. Por.	The vpmoste on your back Sir, you mistake me.

1624 1.] Dyce 2 1630 1.] Dyce 2

am] a may have been altered from u: either would stand for 'em now,]?no altered from m

1634 2.] an attempt seems to have been made in different ink either to make the numeral clearer or else to cross it out (on the erroneous supposition that it repeated that in †1629), it is impossible to be sure which: Dyce omits.

1641 are | sic.

Moore. Sir, now I vnderstand ye very well but that you name my back. Sure else my Cap had bin the vppermoste. Shrew. ffarewell kinde Lord, God send vs merie meeting. Moore. Amen my Lord. Sur. ffarewell deare freend, I hope your safe returne. Moore. My Lord, and my [moste] deare fellowe in the Muses ffarewell, farewell moste noble Poett, 11660 Lieu. Adewe moste honord Lords. ex. Lords Moore. ffayre prison, welcome, yet me thinkes, for thy fayre building, tis too foule a name. Many a guiltie soule, and many an innocent. haue breathde their farewell to thy hollowe roomes. I oft have entred into thee this way. yet I thanke God, nere with a clearer conscience then at this houre. This is my comforte yet, how hard so ere my lodging prooue, the crye of the poore suter, 11670 fatherlesse Orphane or distressed widdowe.

On then a Gods name to our cloa(s)e aboade:

shall not distube me in my quiet sleepe.

God is as s(trong heere as he is abroade Enter Butler, (Brewer), Porter, and horssekeper, (seuerall wayes Fol. 20b

exeu\nt

But). Robin Brewer, how now man? what cheere?

Brew. ffaith Ned Butler, sick of thy disease, and these our other fellowes heere Rafe Horssekeeper and Gyles Porter, sad, sad, they say my Lord goes to his triall to day.

Horss. To it man? why he is now at it, God send [it] him well to speed. +1680

Por. Amen, euen as I wishe to mine owne soule, so speed it with my honorable Lord and Maister Sir Thomas Moore.

But. I cannot tell, I have no thing to doo with matters abooue my capacitie, 1653 vnderstand Dyce understand very v altered from w?

1658 returne.] n altered. 1672 distube | sic, for disturbe, which Dyce prints.

1675 Scene xv.

1677 Butler, raltered.

11700

†171¢

but as God iudge me, if I might speake my minde, I thinke there liues not a more harmelesse Gentleman in the vniuersall worlde.

Brew. Nor a wiser, nor a merier, nor an honester, goe too, Ile put that in vppon mine owne knowledge.

Por. Nay, and ye bate him his due of his housekeeping, hang ye all, ye haue man(y Lord Chauncellours comes in debt at the yeares end, and for very house keeping? †1690 horsse. well, he was too good a Lord for vs, and therfore (I feare) God him selfe wil(I take him: but Ile be hangd if euer I haue such an other seruice.

Brew. Soft man, we are not discharged yet, my Lord may come home againe, and all will be well.

But. I much mistrust it, when they goe to rayning once, ther's euer foule weather (Ent. Gough & Catesbie for a great while after. But soft, heere comes Mr. Gough and Maister with a paper.

Catesbie, now we shall heare more.

horss. Before God they are very sad, I doubt my Lord is condemnde.

Por. God blesse his soule, and a figge then for all worldly condemnation.

Gough. well sayd Gyles Porter, I commend thee for it, twas spoken like a well affected Seruaunte, of him that was a kinde Lord to vs all.

Cate. which now no more he shall be, for deare fellowes, now we are maisterlesse, though he may liue, so long as please the King: but lawe hath made him, a dead man to the world, and given the Axe his head, but his sweete soule to live among the Saintes.

Gough. Let vs entreate ye, to goe call together, the rest of your sad fellowes: by the Roule, y'are iust seauen score, and tell them what ye heare a vertuous honorable Lord hath doone, euen for the meanest follower that he had. This writing found my Ladie in his studie this instant morning, wherin is set downe eche seruaunts name, according to his place, and office in the house. On euery man,

1697 pencil cross at end.

1700 sayd] Dyce said

Gyles] Dyce Giles

he franckly hath bestowne twentie Nobles the best and wurst together, all alike, which Mr. Catesbie heere foorth will pay ve. Cate. Take it, as it is meante, a kinde remembraunce, 11720 of a farre kinder Lord, with whose sad fall, he gives vp house, and farewell to vs all. Thus the fayre spreading Oake falles not alone, but all the neighbour plants and vnder trees: are crusht downe with his weight. No more of this, Come and receive your due, and after goe, ffellow-like hence, copartners of one woe. ——— exeunt. Enter Sir Thomas Moore, the Lieutenant, and a seruaunt attending as in his chamber in the Tower. Moore. Mr. Lieutenant, is the warrant come. 11730 If it be so, a Gods name, let vs [see] knowe it. Lieu. My Lord, it is. Moore. Tis welcome Sir to me, with all my hart, his blessed will be doone. Lieu. Your wisedome Sir, hath bin so well approou'de, And your favre pacience in imprisonment, hath euer shewne such constancie of minde. and christian resolution in all troubles: As warrants vs. you are not vnpreparde. Moore. No Mr. Lieutenant, I thanke my God, 11740 I have peace of conscience, though the world and I, are at a little oddes: But weele be euen now I hope, ere long: when is the execution of your warrant? Lieu. To morrowe morning. Moore. So Sir, I thanke ye, I haue not liu'de so ill, I feare to dve. Mr. Lieutenant, I have had a sore fitt of the stone to night, But, the King hath sent me such a rare receipte 1722 to] o altered or touched up. 1725 weight.] period doubtful. 1728 Scene xvi.

1739 warrants Dyce warrante

I thank him, as I shall not need to feare it much.

1766 the first deleted letter seems to be l or b, the last y or possibly h is clearly the last on fol. 20b.

Lieu. In life and death, still merie Sr. Thomas Moore. 11750 Moore. Sirra fellowe, (reache me the vrina)ll, / hee giues it him. ha, let me see. grauell in the water) FOL. 21a > T(he) man were likely to liue long enough(So pleasde the King: / heere fellowe, take it. Ser. Shall I goe with it to the doctor Sir? Moore. No, saue thy labour, weele cossen him of a fee, Thou shalt see me take a dramme to morrowe morning, shall cure the stone I warrant, doubt it not. Mr. Lieutenant, what newes of my Lord of Rochester? +1760 Lieu. yesterday morning was he put to death. Moore. The peace of soule sleepe with him, he was a learned and a reuerend Prelate. and a riche man beleeve me. Lieu. If he were riche, what is Sr. Thomas Moore, that all this while hath bin [] Lord Chauncellour? Moore. Say ye so Mr. Lieutenant? what doo you thinke, a man that with my time had held my place: might purchase? Lieu. Perhaps my Lord, two thousand pound a yeare. 11770 Moore. Mr. Lieutenant, I protest to you, I neuer had the meanes in all my life to purchase one poore hundred pound a yeare. I thinke I am the poorest Chauncellour that euer was in England, though I could wishe, for credit of the place, that my estate were better. Lieu. Its very straunge. Moore. It will be found as true. I thinke Sir, that with moste parte of my coyne, 1751 hee ee altered from is 1753 Dyce indicates the loss of a line; this must have happened at the top of fol. 21a for +1751

I haue purchased as straunge comodities, †1780 as euer you heard tell of in your life. Lieu. Commodities my Lord? might I (with out offence) enquire of them? Moore. Croutches (Mr Lieutenant) and bare cloakes. ffor halting Soldiours, and poore needie Schollers, haue had my gettings in the Chauncerie. To thinke but what acheate the crowne shall have. by my attaindour. I pre thee, if thou beest a Gentleman, get but a copie of my Inuentorie. That parte of Poett that was given me, 11790 made me a very vnthrift. ffor this is the disease attends vs all, Poets were neuer thriftie, neuer shall. / Enter Lady Moore mour ning, daughters, Mr. Roper Lieu. Oh noble Moore. My Lord, your wife, your sonne in lawe, and daughters. Moore. Sonne Roper, welcome, welcome wife and Girles. why doo you weepe? because I liue at ease? did you not see, when I was Chauncellour, I was so clovde with suters every houre. I could not sleepe, nor dine, nor suppe in quiet. †1800 Heer's none of this, heere I can sit and talke, with my honest Keeper halfe a day together laugh and be merie, why then should you weepe? Ro. These teares my Lord for this your long restraint hope had dried vp, with comfort that we yet, although imprisond, might have had your life. Moore. To live in prison, what a life were that? The King (I thanke him) looues me more then so. To morrowe I shall be at libertie.

Lady. Ah husband, husband, yet submit your selfe, after I have dispachte my busines.

to goe euen whether I can,

1787 acheate] or a cheate (Dyce); either is a possible reading.

1799 cloyde] Dyce clogde

41810

haue care of your poore wife and children

Moore. wife, so I have, and I doo leave you all, to his protection, hath the power to keepe you, safer then I can, the father of the widdowe and the Orphane.

Ro. The world (my Lord) hath euer held you wise, And't shall be no distaste vnto your wisedome:

to yeeld to the oppinion of the state.

Moore. I haue deceiu'de my selfe, I must acknowledge; and as you say Sonne Roper, to confesse the same: it will be no disparagement at all.

Lady. His Highnesse shall be certefyed therof, immediatly.

Moore. Nay heare me wife, first let me tell ve how, I [had] thought to have had a Barber for my beard, now I remember, that were labour lost, the headsman now shall cut off head and all.

Ro. wife. ffather, (h)is Maiestie vppon your meeke submission, will yet (they say) receive (you to his) grace:

) in as gre(at credit as you were before has appoynted me to doo a little busines. If that were past, my Girle thou then shouldst see, what I would say to him about that matter. But I shall be so busic vntill then:

Moore

I shall not tend it.

daugh. Ah my deare father.

Lady. deare Lord and husband.

1824 certefyed | y altered: Dyce certefied offring Dyce Offering 1826 the second deleted letter is doubtful.

haue had a] had interlined. 1828-9 the words head and meeke are damaged in the MS. by an injury which does not appear in the facsimile.

1829-30 the greater part of the words Maiestie vppon and say) receive has disappeared from the MS, owing to an injury which in the facsimile has only somewhat damaged uppon and receive 1830 grace: the e: still visible in the facsimile has disappeared from the MS.

1832 Dyce only prints the speaker's name in this line: this has now disappeared, but the second half line probably reads wench. faith, my Lord the King, though the last letter alone is quite certain.

†1820

/ offring to depar(t

)g,

11830

FOL. 21b

Moore. Be comforted good wife, to liue and looue my children, 41840 for with thee leave I all my care of them. Sonne Roper, for my sake, that have loou'de thee well, And for her vertues sake, cherishe my childe. Girle, be not proude, but of thy husbands looue, Euer retaine thy vertuous modestie. That modestie is such a comely garment, as it is neuer out of fashis: sits as faire. vppon the meaner woman, as the Empresse. No stuffe that golde can buye, is halfe so riche, Nor ornament that so becomes a woman. 11850 Liue all, and looue together, and therby, you give your father a riche Obsequye. both daugh. your blessing deare father. Moore. I must be gon, (God blesse you,) to talke with God, who now dooth call. Lady. A my deare husband, Moore. Sweet wife, good night, good night, God send vs all his everlasting light. Ro. I thinke before this houre. More heavie harts nere parted in the Tower. Enter the Sheriffes of London and their Officers at one doore, the warders with their Halbards at an other. †1862 I. Sher. Officers, what time of day ist? Offi. Almoste eight a clock 2. Sher. we must make then, least we stay to long. 1. Ward. Good morrowe Mr. Shreeues of London, Mr. Lieutenant, willes ye repaire to the limits of the Tower there to receive your prisoner.

I. Sher. Goe back, and tell his woorship, we are readic.

1847 fashis:] sic, the draft from which the scribe copied must have had fashio: Dyce emend. fashion sits] Dyce fits (the sense being the same).
1861 Scene xvii.

1865 Dyce supplies haste after make 1869 Dyce is wrong in stating that the MS. reads 2 Sher.

1866 1.] Dyce 2

11870

†188o

11890

11900

2. Sher.	Goe bid the Officers make cleare the way, there may be passage for the prisoner.
	Enter Lieutenant and his Guarde with Moore.
Moore.	yet God be thanked, heer's a faire day toward,
	to take our iourney in: Mr. Lieutenant,
	It were faire walking on the Tower leades.
Lieu.	And so it might have likte my Soueraigne Lord,
	I would to God you might have walkte there still. / he weepes
Moore.	Sir, we are walking to a better place.
	Oh Sir, your kinde and loouing teares, are like sweete odours to embalme your freend.
	Thanke your good Lady, since I was your guest,
	She has made me a very wanton in good sooth.
	Oh I had hopte we should not yet have parted.
Moore.	But I must leaue ye for a little whyle, within an houre or two, you may looke for me.
	But there will be so many come to see me,
	that I shall be so proude, I will not speake.
	And sure my memorie is growne so ill,
	I feare I shall forget my head behinde me.
Lieu.	God and his blessed Angelles be about ye, heere Mr. Shreeues, receiue your prisoner.
Moore	Good morrowe Mr. Shreeues of London to ye bothe,
	I thanke ye that ye will vouch safe to meete me,
	I see by this you have not quite forgot,
	that I was in times past as you are now:
	a Sheriffe of London.
	Sir, then you knowe our dutie dooth require it.
Moore.	I knowe it well Sir, else, I would haue bin glad,
	you might haue sau'de a labour at this time.
	Ah M ^r . Sheriffe, you and I have bin of olde acquaintaunce, you were a pacient Auditor of mine,
	when I read the divinitie lecture at St. Lauraunces.

2. Sher. Sr. Thomas Moore, I have heard you oft, as many other did, to our great comforte.

Moore. Pray God you may so now, with all my hart.

And as I call to minde,
when I studyed the lawe in Lincolnes Inne,
I was of Councell (w)ith ye in a cause.

)Sher. I (was abou)t t(o say so good sir thomas

Fol. 22a

11011

Moore. Oh, is th(is) the place?

I promise ye it is a goodly Scaffolde.

In sooth, I am come about a headlesse arrand, ffor I haue not much to say, now I am heere. well, let's ascend a Gods name

In troth me thinkes your stayre is somewhat weake, I pre thee honest freend, lend me thy hand, to help me vp: As for my comming downe, let me alone, Ile looke to that my selfe.

41919

Moore. My Lords of Surrey and of Shrewesburie, giue me your hands yet before we ye see, though it pleaseth the King to raise me thus high, yet I am not pe for the higher I mounte, the better I can see my freends about me. I am now farre voyage, and this straunge woodden horse must beare me thether: yet I ceiue by your lookes you like my bargaine so ill, that ther's not one of ye all dere wenter with me. Truely heers a moste sweet Gallerie, I like the ayre of it better then my Garden at Chelsey. By your pacience good people, that have prest the into my bed chamber: if youle not trouble me, Ile take a sound sleepe heere.

As he is going vp the stayres, enters the Earles of Surrye & Shre(wsburie walking.

1903 Moore, comma doubtful.

1906-7 in the MS. to minde, and studyed the are damaged by an injury which does not appear in the facsimile.

1907-8 in the MS. from the e of lawe to the first n of Inne is damaged and from the h of with to the s of cause almost wholly destroyed by an injury which in the facsimile has only damaged lawe in and ye and Inne

1909 Dyce has 2 Sher. which seems probable, but his readings of numerals are not to be trusted. was about] badly damaged.

1910 a few traces of descenders are visible, but nothing consecutive can be made out.

1922 Dyce supplies roud after p 1923 Dyce supplies on a after now

1924 Dyce supplies I per after yet, but the I is visible.

Shrew. My Lord, twere good you'ld publishe to the worlde, your great offence vnto his maiestie.

11930

Moor giues him his gowne.

Moore. My Lord, Ile bequeathe this legacie to the hangman, and doo it instantly. I confesse his maiestie hath bin euer good to me, and my offence to his highnesse, make(se. me of a state pleader, a stage player, (though I am olde, and haue a bad voyce) t(of act this last Sceane of my tragedie. Ile send him (for my trespasse) a reueren(defined, somewhat balde, for it is not requisite any head should stand couerd to sof high maiestie. If that content him not, because I thinke my bodie will then do(of me small pleasure, let him but burie it, and take it.

Sur. My Lord, my Lord, holde conference with your soule, you see my Lord, the time of life is short.

Moore. I see it my good Lord: I dispachte that busines the last night, I come hether only [by the hangman.] to be let blood, my doctor heere telles me it is good for the head ache. †1941

Hang. I beseeche ye my Lord forgiue me. Moore. fforgiue thee honest fellowe? why?

Hang. ffor your death my Lord.

Moore O, my death? I had rather it were in thy power to forgiue me, for thou hast the sharpest action against me, the lawe (my honest freend) lyes in thy hands now.

his pursse.

Heers thy fee, and my good fellowe, let my suite be dispachte presently: for tis all one payne to dye a lingering death, and to liue in the continual mill oft a lawe-suite. But I can tell thee, my neck is so short, that if thou shoulds(thehead an hundred noble men like my selfe, thou wouldst nere get credit by it Therefore (looke ye Sir) doo it hansomely, or of my woord thou shalt neuer deale with me heerafter.

Hang. Ile take an order for that my Lord.

Moore. One thing more, take heed thou cutst not off my beard: Oh, I forgot, execution past vppon that last night, and the bodie of it lies buried in the Tower.

Come, let's to the block.

Hang. My Lord, I pray ye put off your doublet.

Moore. No my good freend, I haue a great colde alreadie, and I would be lothe to take more, point me meete the block, for I was nere heere before Hang. To the Easte side my Lord.

+196

1932 highnesse] interlined above maiestie crossed out. 1940 dispachte] Dyce dispatchte

1941 the side note is crossed out in darker ink. 1944 pencil cross at end. 1947 Heers] Dyce hers 1656-64 marked for omission and crossed out.

	Moore.	Then to the Easte,
		we goe to sighe, that ore, to sleep in rest.
		No eye salute my trunck with a sad teare,
		Our birth to heaven should be thus: voyde of feare. ——— exit.
-		Stay, ist not possible to make a scape from all this strong guarde? it is There is a thing within me, that will raise and eleuate my better parte boue sight of these same weaker eyes. And Mr. Shreeues, for all this troupe of steele that tends my death,
		I shall breake from you, and flye vp to heauen,	11970
		Lets seeke the meanes for this.
	Hang.	My Lord, I pray ye put off your doublet.
	-	Speake not so coldely to me, I am hoarse alreadie,
		I would be lothe good fellowe to take more,
		Point me the block, I nere was heere before.
	Hang.	To the Easte side my Lord.
	Moore.	Then to the Easte,
		we goe to sigh, that ore, to sleepe in rest.
		Heere Moore forsakes all mirthe, good reason why,
		the foole of fleshe must with her fraile life dye.	†198 0
		No eye salute my trunck with a sad teare,
		Our birthe to heaven should be thus: voide of feare. ——— exit.
	Sur.	A very learned woorthie Gentleman
		Seales errour with his blood. Come, weele to Courte.
		Lets sadly hence to perfect vnknowne fates, whilste he tends prograce to the state of states.

ffinis.

1967 better] b altered from p
1982 Dyce supplies with Hangman, &c. after exit 1984 weele] w altered from l?
1985 vnknowne] no altered.
1986 whilste] i altered, perhaps in darker ink.
1987 Fol. 22b blank.

FOL. 6ª

10

20

Moore Now will I speake like Moore in melancholy ffor if greefes power could wth her sharpest darts pierce my firme bosome; heres sufficient cause to take my farewell of mirths hurtles lawes. Poore humbled Lady, thou that wert of late placde wth the noblest women of the land Invited to their angell companies seeming a bright Starre in the [heaven of] Courtly Sphere why shouldst thou like a widow sit thus low and all thy faire consorts [shun] moove from the clowds that ouerdreep thy beautie and thy worth Ile tell thee the true cause, the Court like heauen examines not the anger of the [king;] Prince and being more fraile composde of guilded earth shines vpon them on whom the [Prince] king doth shine smiles if he smile, declines if he decline Yet seeing both are mortall Court and king shed not one teare for any earthly thing ffor so God pdon me in my saddest hower thou hast no more occasion to lament nor these, nor those, my exile from the court no nor [my mortall d] this bodyes tortur wert imposde as commonly disgraes of great men are the forewarnings of a hastie death [Beleeue me] than to behold me after many a toyle honord wth endlesse rest. Perchance the king

Addition I.

This insertion has not been properly fitted into its context and appears in quite a wrong part of the MS. It clearly belongs to sc. xiii, where it is presumably intended to replace †1471-1516, on fol. 19a, which (except †1502-5) are marked for omission and preceded by a reference sign.

I-71 in hand A, not found elsewhere.

I like Moore in] Moore interlined: Dyce like man in 2 if interlined.

7 Invited valtered from u 10 shun un doubtful, possibly ou moove valtered from u 12 thee the the interlined.

14 more interlined.

15 on o altered from u bind interlined.

19 in interlined. 22 wert | t altered from e 15 on o altered from v king interlined.

23 disgraes | sic, for disgraces, which Dyce prints.

seeing the Court is full of vanitie has pittie least our soules shuld be misled and sends vs to a life contemplatiue. O happy banishment from worldly pride 30 when soules by private life are sanctifide wife: O but I feare some plot against [hi] your life Moore: why then tis thus; the king of his high grace seeing my faithfull seruice to his state intends to send me to the king of heauen for a rich present: where [if soules] my soule shall proue a true remembrer of his majestie. Come pre thee mourne [, since] not: the worst chance is death and that brings endlesse joy for fickle breath./ wife: Ah but your children. 40 Moore: Tush let them alone, say they be stript from this poore painted cl(oth this outside of the earth; [what have they] left houselesse, bare they have mindes instructed how to gather more there's no man thats ingenuous can be poore. And therefore doo not weep my little ones though [all] you loose all the earth; keep your soules eeuen and you shall finde inheritance in heaven. But for my seruants theres my cheefest care [In you I] Come hether faithfull Steward be not greeude that in thy pson I discharge both thee 50 and all thy other ffellow Officers ffor my great Master hath discharged mee. [So for the rest, my Gentlemen and y] If thou by seruing me hast sufferd losse

28 soules shuld] sic. 32 deleted letters doubtful. 37 majestie.] sic. 39 brings] the scribe wrote breeds and then altered eed to ing thus making the word into brings but left the reading rather doubtful. Another hand, using blacker ink, then interlined another brings and appears to have made an unsuccessful attempt to cross out the original reading. The interlined brings has probably been gone over a second time with thicker ink of the same colour and a very scratchy pen.

joy] sic.

44 there's] Dyce Theres 46 ecuen] sic. 52 great] g altered. 53-61 marked for omission.

then benefit thy selfe by leauing mee. I hope thou hast not: for such times as theese bring gaine to Officers who euer leese Great Lords have onely name; but in the[ir] fall Lord Spend-alls Stuart's master gathers all But I suspect not thee admit thou hast Its good the seruants saue when Masters wast./ But you poore Gentlemen that had no place t'inrich your selues but by loathd briberie wch I abhord, and neuer found you loude thinke when an oake fals vnderwood shrinkes downe and yet may liue though brusd, I pray ye striue to shun my ruin for the ax is set euen at my root to fell me to the ground. the best I can doo to prefer you all [wt] wth my meane store expect, for heaven can tell that Moore loues all his followers more than well./

[End of Addition I.]

55 thy | y altered from ee 56 not interlined.

59 something at the beginning of the line has been crossed out, first by the scribe and again later in black ink gathers] s inserted in black ink.

61 good] od altered from d 63 your] y altered.

65-71 written up the left margin with a reference mark.
66 though] g inserted partly covering u 71 Moore 71 Moore second o altered from r

Fol. 6b blank.

clo come come wele tickle ther turnips wele bu(tter ther) boxes shall strangers Rule the Roste [yes] but wele baste [yt] the roste come come a flawnt a flaunte

FOL. 7ª

gorge brother giue place and heare Iohn lincolne speake

clo I lincolne my leder and doll [his] my true breder wth the rest of our crue shall Ran tan tarra ran. doo all they what they can shall we be bobd braude no shall we be hellde vnder no. we ar fre borne and doo take skorne to be [so.] vsde soe / doll pease theare I saye heare captaine lincolne speake. kepe silens till we know his minde at large.

IO

clo [come on than] then largelye dilliuer speake bullie and he that presumes to [speak before ye] interrupte the in thie orratione this for him [capatene]

lincol then gallant bloods you whoes fre sowles doo skorne to beare the inforsed wrongs of alians ad rage to Ressolutione fier the howses of theis audatious strangers: This is St martins and yonder dwells mutas a welthy piccardye at the greene gate de barde peter van hollocke adrian Martine wth many more outlandishe fugetiues shall theis enioy more priueledge then wee in our owne cuntry. lets become ther slaiues

20

ADDITION II.

This insertion, comprising fols. 7–9, is a composite work of three different scribes, working however in conjunction. Fol. 7 contains a somewhat elaborated draft of sc. iv (fol. 5^b, 412–52). The original scene is marked for deletion and the new draft obviously intended to take its place. Sc. iv was originally followed by the prentice scene (sc. v), of which only the opening remains (fol. 5^b, 453–72), and which was entirely cancelled in revision. On the verso of ol. 7, in a second hand, is a scene (sc. v³) which may or may not be a revision of some original scene which has entirely disappeared in the hiatus between fols. 5 and 10. Fols. 8^a, 8^b, 9^a (9^b being blank) contain the revision, in third hand, of the beginning of the insurrection scene (sc. vi). The original draft of the opening of this scene has lisappeared, the latter part is contained in fol. 10, *476–565. Note that it is *476 that follows continuously upon II. 270, *473–5 being marked for deletion as forming part of the original prose speech by More rendered in verse by the reviser.

1-64 in hand B. 2 deletion of yes not quite certain: Dyce retains it. 4 gorge] Dyce George 5 my true] my interlined. 11 then largelye dilliuer] interlined. 14 alians] Dyce aliens 17 mutas] t altered from l in darker ink by C?

18-20 a cross in right margin, apparently in same ink as text, cf. fol. 5^b, 418-21.

19 barde] Dyce Bard
22 slaiues] the dot of the i has been crossed out in modern ink: Dyce slaues

50

- since Iustis kepes not them in greater awe wele be our Selues Rough ministers at lawe.
- clo vse no more swords nor no more words but fier the howses braue captaine curragious fier me ther howses
- doll I for we maye as well make bonefiers on maye daye as at midsomer wele alter the daye in the callinder and sett itt downe in flaming letters
- sher stave no that wold much indanger the hole cittie wher too I wold not the leaste prejudice.
- doll no nor I nether so maie mine owne howse be burnd for companye ile tell ye what wele drag the strangers into more feldes & theare bumbaste them till they stinke a gaine
 - clo and thats soone doone for they smell for feare all redye.
- Geor let some of vs enter the strangers houses and if we finde them theare then bringe them forthe
 - doll but if ve bringe them forthe eare ye finde them Ile neare alowe of thatt
 - clo now marsse for thie honner dutch or frenshe so yt be a wenshe ile vppon hir
- WILLIA now lads howe shall we labor in or saftie I heare the maire hath gatherd men in armes and that shreue more an hower a goe Risseude some of the privye cownsell in at ludgate forse now must make our pease or eles we fall twill soone be knowne we ar the principall
 - doll and what of that if thow beest a fraide husband go home a gaine and hide thy hed for by the lord Ile haue a lyttill sporte now we ar att ytt

[Lin] Geor lets stand vppon or swords and if they come

24 Rough] Dyce roughe

25, 26 howses] Dyce houses but u and w are almost indistinguishable in B. 25 words raltered.

26 small pencil cross at end. 27 bonefiers o altered. 31 leaste Dyce least 33 tell] e altered. 35 doone] oo badly formed, more like ar or ow Dyce supplies S.D. Exeunt Sherwin, Clowne, and others. after hir 32 maie] interlined. 41 hir h altered.

42 Willia] written in darker ink by C over Linco of B. howe] Dyce sure

48 thow Dyce thou 51 swords] Dyce swerds 44 shreue | shr altered.

70

Resseaue them as they weare our eninemyes

clo a purchase a purchase we have found we ha founde doll what

clo nothinge nott a frenshe fleminge nor a fleming frenshe to be founde but all fled in plaine inglishe

Linco how now have you found any

Sher no not one theyre all fled

Lincol then fier the houses that the major beinge busye aboute the quenshinge of them we maye skape burne downe ther kennells let vs straite awaye leaste this dave proue to vs an ill maye daye

clo fier fier ile be the firste

if hanginge come tis welcome thats the worste

MANETT CLOWNE /

(En)ter At on dore Sr Thomas moore and Lord maire: Fol. 7b Att an other doore S' Iohn Munday Hurt.

I. Major. S' Iohn. what Sr Iohn muday are you hurt

A little knock my lord [her] ther was even now a sort of prentises playing at Cudgells I did Comaund them to ther mrs howses but one of them Backt by the other crew wounded me in the forhead wth his Cudgill and now I feare me they are gon to Ioine

wth Lincolne Sherwine and ther dangerous traine

Moore. the Captaines of this Insurection have tane them selves to armes, and cam but now to both the counters wher they have releast

52 eninemyes] sic, for enemyes but the i has been crossed out in modern ink: Dyce ennemyes Dyce supplies S.D. Re-enter Sherwin, Clowne, and others. after this line.

55 fleminge] Dyce Fleming 56 be] interlined. 63-5 written up right margin with a reference line. 59 maior] Dyce Maier 64 hanginge] Dyce hanging

65 added in a different hand, C? The most likely explanation of this, as it stands, obviously wrong addition, seems to be that C intended to continue with a revision of sc. v (fol. 5^b, 453 &c.) and to carry the Clown over from the one to the other. If so the intention was abandoned. Dyce supplies S.D. Exeunt.

66 Scene va.

66-122 in hand C. 68-75 marked for omission.

69 her] er doubtful, the word was crossed out by the scribe and has been further deleted in 73 forhead | h altered from r? a different ink.

sundrie Indetted prisoners. and from thence I heere y^t they are gonn Into S^t martins wher they Intend to offer violence to the amazed Lombards therfore my lord If we expect the saftie of the Cittie [twere] tis time that force or parley doe encownter wth thes displeased men.

Enter A messenger

L. maior. how now what newes

Mess. my Lord the rebells have broake[n] open newegate from whence they have deliverd manie prisoners both fellons and notorious murderers that desperatlie cleave to ther Lawles traine

L Maior. vpp wth the draw bridge gath som forces to Cornhill and cheapside. And gentle men. If dilligence be vsde one every side A quiet Ebb will follow this rough tide

Enter Shrowsberie Surrie Palmer, Cholmley

Shro. Lord maior his ma^{tie} receaving notice.

of this most dangerous Insurection.

hath sent my lord of Surry and my self S^r Thomas palmer and o^r followers to add vnto o^r forces o^r best meanes

for pacifying of this mutinie
In gods name then sett one wth happie speed

the king laments If one true Subject bleede

Surr. I heere they meane to fier the Lumbards howses oh power what art thou in a madmans eies thou makst the plodding Iddiott Bloudy wise

Moore. my Lords I dowt not but we shall appease wth a calm breath this flux of discontent

Palme. to call them to a parley questionles

87 the deletion of n not quite certain: Dyce omits it.

100 o' forces] Dyce emend. your forces

105 thou] Dyce is wrong in stating that the MS. reads then 109 the speaker's name is written rather too low: Dyce prefixed it to 110, thus ignoring the speechdivision lines.

-

001

		may fall out good. tis well said mr moore	110
	Moor.	letts to thes simple men for many sweat
		vnder this act that knowes not the lawes debtt w ^{ch} hangs vppon ther lives. for sillie men.
		plodd on they know not [ow] how. [like a fooles penn] that ending showes not any sentence writt linckt but to common reason or sleightest witt thes follow for no harme but yett Incurr self penaltie wth those that raisd this stirr
		A gods name one to calme or privat foes
		wth breath of gravitie not dangerous blowes exeunt	120
		Enter Lincoln, Doll. Clown, Georg betts williamson others
		And A sergaunt at armes Lincolne	Peace heare me, he that will not see (a red) hearing a(t) a harry	Fol. 8 ^a grote, butter at a levenp(enc)e a p(ounde meale at) nyne shillings a ·Bushell and Beeff at fower (nobles a stone lyst) to (me)
	other GEO BETT	yt will Come to that passe yf stra(ingers be su)fferd marke him
	Linco	our Countrie is a great eating Country, argo they eate more in our Countrey then they do in their owne
0	ther BETTS CLOW	by a half penny loff a day troy waight
	Linc	they bring in straing rootes, which is meerly to the vndoing of poor	1 30
		prentizes, for what [a watrie] or sorry psnyp to a good hart	130
	Toth WILLIAN	trash trash; they breed sore eyes and tis enough to infect the
	[om] William	Cytty wt the palsey
	Lin	nay yt has infected yt w' the palsey, for theise basterd; of dung
	Lill	as you knowe they growe in Dvng haue infected vs, and yt is our as you knowe they growe in Dving hade infected vs, and yt is our

III thes Dyce the 121 Scene vi.

[other] BETT Linc

125 Beeff] first e altered.

123 harry] Dyce Herry (but probably wrong).
126 Geo bett] inserted by C. marke] Dyce Mark

127 Linco] in two minims only, but the first is dotted. 129 betts clow] inserted by C.

131 the deletion should have been of watrie or and it is so treated by Dyce.

¹¹³⁻¹⁶ marked for omission, but a subsequent mark after 113 may be intended to make the omission begin at 114 only. 114 the first deletion seems to be of o and beginning of w120 blowes w altered.

¹²³⁻²⁷⁰ in hand D. Fol. 8 has first been mended with tracing paper and has then been pasted over on both sides with the same. The numerous alterations in the speakers' names are by C.

¹³² willian] sic, inserted by C: Dyce William 134 dung un has one minim too many.

, ,
	infeccion will make the Cytty shake which ptly Coms through the eating of psnyps	-
[o] CLOWN BETTS	trewe and pumpions togeather what say (ye to the) mercy of the king do you refuse yt
	you (would haue vs) vppon thipp woold you no marry do we not, we	T 40
23.11	accept of the kings mercy but wee will showe no mercy vppõ
	the st(raungers)
seriaunt	you ar the (simplest) thing that eu' stood in such a question ou now prenti prentisses symple downe wth him
• •	prentisses symple prentisses symple.
	Enter the L. maier Surrey
	Shrewsbury
[Sher] MAIOR	hold in the king name hold frendy masters Countrymen
	peace how peace I [sh] Charg you keep the peace	150
-	my maisters Countrymen
	The noble Earle of Shrowsbury letty hear him
GE bettr	weele heare the earle of Surrey
Linc	the earle of Shrowsbury
bett ç	weele heare both
all	both both both both
Linc	Peace I say peace ar you men of Wisdome [ar] or what ar you
Surr	But] what you will haue them but not men of Wisdome
	weele not heare my L of Surrey, [] no no no no	160
139 Enter interline	nserted by C; it is not quite certain whether the preceding o has been deleted ed by C: Dyce omits. you] Dyce ye 141 showe] w altered?

¹⁴⁴ how say you inserted by D. you Dyce ye now prenti interlined by D. prenti reading doubtful: Dyce prentisses (but the whole word is certainly not there).

¹⁴⁵ a cross at the end probably in modern ink or pencil.

¹⁴⁷ Dyce (Corrigenda) supplies Palmer, Cholmley, and Moore after Shrewsbury

¹⁴⁸ maior inserted by C.

¹⁴⁹⁻⁵⁰ the rule which should come between these lines appears to have been omitted.

¹⁵⁰ the second deleted letter is doubtful.

¹⁵² williamson] written by C, the first five letters covering D's Sher

¹⁵³ Ge] added by C.
154 Shrowsbury] Dyce Shrewsbury
160 the deleted word may be all (it has been crossed out in darker ink).

	Shrewsbury shr
	moor
		thus will they bere downe all th(ings)
ı	Linc	Shreiff moor speakes shall we heare shreef moor speake
ı	Doll	Letty heare him (a) keepes a plentyfull shrevaltry, and a made my Brother Arther watch(ins) Seriant S(af)es yeoman letg heare shreeve moore
	all	Shreiue moor more Shreue moore
	moor	(even) by the rule you have among you sealues	Fol. 8b (comand sti)ll audience
	all	(Surrey S)ury	171
	all	(moor moor)
ľ	Lincolne betts	peace peace scilens peace.
	moor	You that have voyce and Credyt wt the [Mv] number Comaund them to a stilnes
	Lincolne	Lincolne a plaigue on them they will not hold their peace the deule
	100	Cannot rule them
	Moor	8
		to Leade those that the deule Cannot rule
		good masters heare me speake	180
	Doll	I byth mas will we moor thart a good howskeeper and I thanck thy good worship for my Brother Arthur watchins all peace peace
	moor look what you do offend you Cry vppõ that is the peace, not (of you heare) present had there such fellowes, lyv(d w)hen you wer babes that coold haue topt the p(eace) as nowe you woold the peace wherin you have till nowe growne vp had bin tane from you, and the bloody tymes
		coold not have brought you to [] the state of men	190

161 inserted later by D. shr] Dyce Shrewsbury 162 obedyenc] Dyce obedyence 166 watchins] the last three letters are obscured by a smudge of darker ink. yeoman] o altered in darker ink.

178 Moor] Dyce Moore 178 Moor] Dyce Moore 182 watchins] ϵ altered from beginning of h? 190 two short words appear to be deleted.

	alas poor thingy what is yt you haue gott
	although we graunt you geat the thing you seeke [D] Bett	marry the removing of the straingers web cannot choose but much [helpe] advauntage the poor handycraftes of the Cytty moor	graunt them remoued and graunt that this yor [y] noyce hath Chidd downe all the matie of Ingland ymagin that you see the wretched straingers their babyes at their backy, and their poor lugage plodding tooth port and cost for transportacion and that you sytt as king; in your desyres	200 aucthoryty quyte sylenct by yor braule and you in ruff of yor [yo] opynions clothd what had you gott, I'le tell you, you had taught how insolenc and strong hand shoold prevayle how ordere shoold be quelld, and by this patterne not on of you shoold lyve an aged man for other ruffians as their fancies wrought with sealf same hand sealf reasons and sealf right woold shark on you and men lyke ravenous fishes
	woold feed on on another	210
Doll	before god that as trewe as the gospell
[Bettr] LINCOLN	nay this a sound fellowe I tell you lets mark him
MOOR	Let me sett vp before yor thoughts good freind?
	on supposytion which if you will marke you shall prease howe horrible a shape yor ynnovation beres, first tis a sinn which oft thappostle did forwarne vs of vrging obedienc to aucth-	ory(ty

193 D] doubly deleted, first by D and then in darker (modern?) ink.

and twere [] no error yf I told you all you wer in armes gainst g(

¹⁹⁴ handycraftes] e doubtful, Dyce omits, but there is something between t and s

¹⁹⁵ noyce] y altered from w? 196 matie] sic, without any mark of contraction. 204 insolenc] Dyce insolence 212 lincoln] inserted by C. 210 a cross at the end probably in modern ink or pencil.

Dyce supplies is after this (unnecessarily).

²¹⁷ obedienc] Dyce obedience aucthoryty] Dyce authority 213 moor] added by C.

²¹⁸ g] Dyce your and supplies sovereign (but there is no possible room for such an addition, and the first letter is certainly g not y; moreover the context imperatively requires god).

all moo

	marry god forbid that Fol. 9a
)	nay certainly you ar
	for to the king god hath his offyce lent of dread of Iustyce, power and Comaund hath bid him rule, and willd you to obay and to add ampler matie. to this he [god] hath not [le] only lent the king his figure his throne [his] sword, but gyven him his owne name calls him a god on earth, what do you then rysing gainst him that god himsealf enstalls but ryse gainst god, what do you to yor sowles in doing this o desperat [ar] as you are.
	wash your foule mynds wt teares and those same hands that you lyke rebells lyft against the peace lift vp for peace, and your vnreuerent knees [that] make them your feet to kneele to be forgyven [is safer warrs, then euer you can make]
	[whose discipline is ryot; why euen yor [warrs] hurly] [in in to yor obedienc.]
	[cannot peeed but by obedienc] TELL ME BUT THIS what rebell captaine as mutynes ar incident, by his name can still the rout who will obay [th] a traytor or howe can well that polamation sounde when ther is no adicion but a rebell to quallyfy a rebell, youle put downe straingers kill them cutt their throts possesse their howses and leade the matie of lawe in liom

220 ar] Dyce are

226 pencil cross at beginning. his has certainly been crossed out, and something may have been written over it: Dyce and

233 an interlineation intended to come before your has been erased; it may have been intended to replace and

235-7 all the deletions, except that of warrs in 236, are in darker ink by C.
236 hurly] (ur doubtful) apparently added to replace warrs deleted. in in to yo' obedienc.] interlined by D above the second half of the line. obedienc.] Dyce obedience

237 obedienc] Dyce obedience tell me but this] interlined by C above what precedes.
238 mutynes] n interlined: Dyce mutynies 240 sounde] un wants a minim. 244 matie sic, without any mark of contraction. 241 ther r altered from ir

260

270

all

moor

to slipp him lyke a hound; [saying] [alas alas] say nowe the king as he is clement, yf thoffendor moorne shoold so much com to short of your great trespas as but to banysh you, whether woold you go. what Country by the nature of yor error shoold give you harber go you to ffraunc or flanders to any Iarman pvince, [to] spane or portigall nay any where [why you] that not adheres to Ingland why you must need, be straingers, woold you be pleasd to find a nation of such barbarous temper that breaking out in hiddious violence woold not afoord you, an abode on earth whett their detested knyves against yor throtes spurne you lyke dogge, and lyke as yf that god owed not nor made not you, nor that the elaments wer not all appropriat to [ther] yor Comforty. but Charterd vnto them, what woold you thinck to be thus vsd, this is the straingers case and this your momtanish inhumanyty fayth a saies trewe letts vs do as we may be doon by [all] LINCO weele be ruld by you master moor yf youle stand our freind to pcure our pdon Submyt you to theise noble gentlemen entreate their mediation to the kinge

[End of Addition II.]

and thers no doubt, but mercy may be found. yf you so seek it 245 alas alas] interlined by D, crossed out by C. 248 pencil cross at end. 250 gyve] Dyce geve ffraunc] Dyce Fraunce 251 spane Dyce Spaine 260 yor interlined.

gyve vp yor sealf to forme obay the maiestrate

254 barbarous] second r altered. 262 pencil cross at end. 263 all] belongs to 264 where Dyce places it. momtanish] the interpretation 'mawmtanish, Mahometanish' is unsatisfactory: Dyce emend. mountanish and H. Bradley conj. (privately) moritanish inhumanyty] Dyce inhumanytye 264 vs] crossed out in modern ink: Dyce omits.

265 Linco] inserted by C. master] Dyce Maister 269 gyve] Dyce Geve yor sealf] Dyce yoursealfe 270 may] Dyce maie yor] or badly formed.

it] there is certainly some word after seek but the exact form is doubtful: Dyce omits. Fol. 9b blank.

Enter moore

It is in heaven that I am thus and thus And that weh we prophanlie terme or fortuns Is the provision of the power aboue fitted and shapte Iust to that strength of nature weh we are borne good god good god that I from such an humble bench of birth should stepp as twere vp to my Countries head And give the law out ther I in my fathers lif to take prerogative and tyth of knees from elder kinsmen and him bynd by my place to give the smooth and dexter way to me that owe it him by nature, sure thes things not phisickt by respecte might turne or bloud to much Coruption. but moore, the more thou hast ether of honor office wealth and calling wch might [acce] accite thee to embrace and hugg them the more doe thou in serpents natures thinke them feare ther gay skinns wth thought of ther sharpe state And lett this be thy maxime, to be greate Is when the thred of hazard is once Spuñ A bottom great woond vpp greatly vndonn.

FOL. 11*b

IO

20

[End of Addition III.]

ADDITION III.

This insertion is on a piece of paper pasted on to the lower part of fol. II^b, and covering *761-96 of the deleted sc. viii a. From its position it would seem that the addition was intended to stand at the beginning of the revised sc. viii (fol. 12^a) but the necessary alteration in the s.D. has not been made, and the additional speech has no connexion with what follows. It might of course be treated as an independent scene (cf. V), but such does not appear to have been the intention of the scribe. If it is intended to form part of what follows it is of course a subsequent addition. Dyce inserts it, making the necessary alterations in the s.D.

Fol. 11*a blank. 1-22 in hand C.

1 Enter] Dyce omits. 2 heaven] Dyce Heauen 6 Dyce supplies withal after borne

9 out might be ont lif Dyce life 15 Coruption.] Dyce corruption

21 hazard Dyce hayday Spuñ Dyce spoun

Enter Sr Thomas moore and his man Atired like him

FOL. 12a

Moore. Com on sir are you redy

Randall. yes my Lord I stand but one a few points. I shall have donn presentlie. before god I have practised yor Lordshipps shift so well. that I thinke I shall grow prowd my Lord

Moore. tis fitt thou shouldst wax prowd. or ells thoult nere be neere allied to greatnes. observe me Sirra the Learned Clarke Erasmus is arived wthin or english court. Last night I heere he feasted wth or honord English poet the Earle of Surrey. and I learnd to day the famous clarke of Rotherdam will visett St Thomas moore, therfore sir take my seate you are Lord Chauncelor. dress yot behaviour according to my carriage but beware you talke not over much for twill betray thee who prates not much seemes wise his witt few scan while the [tog] tongue Blabs tales of the Imperfitt man. Ile see If greate Erasmus can distinguishe meritt and outward Cerimony

Rand. If I doe not deserve a share for playing of yor Lo. well. lett me be yeoman vsher to yor Sumpter and be banisht from wearing of a gold chaine for ever

Moore. well sir Île hide or motion act my part wth a firme Boldnes and thou winst my hart how now whats the matter.

Enter The Shreiue wth Fawkner a ruffin and officers

Faulk. Tugg me not Ime noe beare, sbloud If all the and officers doggs in paris garden, hung at my tale. Ide shake em of wth this, that Ile

ADDITION IV.

This insertion originally filled three and a half pages and was all in one hand: subsequently a secon hand made an addition in the blank space left at the end. It replaces a passage in the original (sc. viii) which begs on fol. 11^b, *735, filled one or more original leaves which have disappeared between fols. 11 and 14, and the who of fol. 14^a, ending at †876. It is not clear whether this was all one scene in the original draft or not, but for purpos of numbering it may be assumed that it was, since the revised version is continuous. In that case the chief alter tion made by the reviser seems to have been the division of the Faukner portion into two parts and the insertion the Erasmus portion between them.

1-211 in hand C.

19 Erasmus mu has one minim too many.

26 beare.] b altered.

27 shake k altered.

20 pencil cross at end.

		$\overline{}$ appeere. before noe king Cirstned but my good Lord Chauncelor
Shre.	weele cristen you sirra. bring him forward.
Toore	how now what tumults make you	:
ffall.	the azurd heavens protect my noble Lord chauncelor
Toore.	what fellowes this.
Shre.	A Ruffian my Lord that hath sett half the Cittie in an vpprore
Falk.	my Lord.
Shre.	ther was a fray in paternoster row. and because they would not be pted. the street was choakt vpp wth carts.
fauk.	my noble Lord paniar Allies throat was open.
Moore	Sra hold yor peace
fauk	Ile prove the street was not choakt. but is as well as ever it was since It was
	A streete	4
	this fellow was a principall broacher of the broile fawk.	Sbloud I bro[]cht none. It was broacht and half ronn out before I had a lick at it and would be brought before noe Iustice but yor honor
	I am haild my noble Lord
Toore.	no eare to choose for every triviall noice
	but mine. and in so full a time. away you wronge me m ^r shreve. dispose of him at yor owne plesure. send the knave to newgate Fauk.	[sbloud] to newgate sbloud Sr Thomas moore. I appeale? from	5 newgate to any of the two worshippfull counters fellow whose man are you that are thus lustie
auk.	my names Iack fawkner. I serve next vnder god and my prince mr morris secritary to my Lord of winchester
loore.	A fellow of yor haire is very fitt. to be a secretaries follower

Fauk. I hope so my Lord. the fray was betweene the Bishopps men of Eelie and winchester, and I could not in honor but pte them. I thought it stood not with my reputation and degree. to com to my Questions and aunswers. befor A a Citty Iustice. I knew I should to the pott

31 ffall.] altered: Dyce Falk azurd] Dyce azurde alk azurd] Dyce azurde 42 brocht] c interlined above a letter (u or a?) deleted.
45 Fauk.] Faltered from f 50 appeale?] i. e. appeale! 53 next] interlined.
56 Eelie] sic. 58 befor] Dyce before 58-9 A a] sic: Dyce a 42 brocht | c interlined above a letter (u or a?) deleted. 43 pencil cross at end. ritary] Dyce secretary

Moore. thou hast byn ther It seemes to late all redie FOL. 12b) Fauk I know yor honor is wise, and so forth, and I desire to be only [ch] cattachizd or examind by you my noble Lord chauncelor Moore Sirra. sirra you are a busie dangerous ruffian. 63 Fauk, Ruffian, Moore. how long have you worne this haire Fauk I have worne this haire ever since I was borne Moore vou know thats not my Question but how long hath this shagg fleece hung dangling on thy head Fauke. how long my Lord, why somtimes thus Long somtimes Lowere as the fates & humors please. Moore. So Quick sir wth me. ha? I see good fellow, thou lovest plaine dealing, sirra tell me now when [whe] were you last at Barbars, how longe time have you vppon yor head woorne this shagg haire Fauke, My Lord Iack faukner tells noe Esops fabls, troth I was not at Barbars this three yeires. I have not byn Cutt nor will not be cutt. vppon a foolish vow. wch as the destanies shall derect I am sworne to keepe Moore, when comes that yow out Fauk. why when the humors are purgd not this three years Moore vowes are recorded in the court of heaven. for they are holly acts. yong man I charge thee 80 and doe advize thee start not from vt vow and for I will be sure thou shalt not shreve besids because It is an odious sight to see a man thus hairie, thou shalt lie In Newgate till thy vow and thy three years be full expired. Away wth him

Fauke my Lord

Moor. Cut of this fleece and lie ther but a moneth

Fauke. Ile not loosse a haire to be Lord Chauncelor of Europe

Moore to newgate then. Sirra great sinns are Brede

61 the second deleted letter is unfinished. 72 have] v altered? 74 fabls.] Dyce fables 78 this] Dyce theis 82 shreve] Dyce conj. swerve 83 besids] Dyce Besides 89 Fauke.] Dyce Fauk loosse] Dyce loose

IIO

in all that Body wher thers a foule head. away wth him. exeunt

Enter Surry Erasmus and Attendaunts.

Surry. now great Erasmus you approch the prence of a most worthy Learned gentleman. this Little Ile holds not a trewer frend vnto the arts. nor doth his greatnes add A fained florish to his worthie pts

hees great in studie thats the statists grace that gaines more Reverence then the outward place.

Erasmus. [It is Erasmus] Report my Lord hath Crost the narrow seas and to the severall pts of Christendom hath borne the same of yor Lord chauncelor I long to see him whom wth loving thoughts I in my studie oft have visited

Is that Sr Thomas moore

Surry. It is Erasmus

now shall you vew the honorablest scholler the most religious pollititian. the worthiest Counsailor that tends or state that study is the generall watch of England In it the princes saftie and the [state] peace that shines vppon or Comon wealth are forgd by Loiall Industrie

Erasmus. I dowt him not to be as neere the lif of Excellence as you proclaime him when his meanest servaunts are of some waight you saw my lord his porter give entertainment to vs at the gate in Latten. good phrase, whats the m^r then, when such good pts shine in his meanest men.

120

91 Dyce supplies all except Randall. after exeunt

92 Attendaunts] Dyce Attendants 102 same] sic, for fame, which Dyce prints.

108 religious rel altered. 115 lif Dyce life

¹⁰⁷ vew] reading doubtful: v and w are clear, and between them is what might be either e or o, but is more like the latter; then above this is a mark which may be meant either to turn o into e or if the letter is already e to indicate an i before it: Dyce view

Surry. his Lo hath som waightie Busines for see as yett he takes noe notice of vs

FOL. 13a

Erasmus. I thinke twere best I did my dutie to him in a short Latin speech. Qui in Celiberima] patria natus est ett Gloriosa] plus habet negotij et in [funem] Lucem veniat quam qui Rand. I pry thee good Erasmus be Covered. I have for sworne speaking of latting as I am true Counsailor Ide tickle you with a speech, nay Sitt Erasmus, sitt good my Lord of Surry. Ile make my Lady Com to you annon If she will and give you entertainment

Erasmus. Is this Sr Thomas Moore

Surry. oh good Erasmus you must Conceave his vaine hees ever furnisht with the Rand. yes faith my learned poet doth not lie for that matter. I am nether more Enter s' Thomas nor less then mery S' Thomas allwaies, wilt supp wth me. by god I lov a parlous wise fellow that smells of a pollititian. better then a long progres moore.

Surry. we are deluded, this is not his Lordshipp

Rand. I pray you Erasmus how longe will the holland cheese in yor [Couteyrie] Countri keepe wthout maggetts.

Moore. foole painted Barbarisme retire thy self Into thy first creation thus you see my loving learned frends how far respecte waites often on the Cerimonious traine of bace Illitterate welth whilst men of schooles shrowded in povertie are cownted fooles pdon thou reverent germaine I have mixt so slight a Iest to the faire Entertainment of thy most worthy self. for know Erasmus mirth wrinckls vpp my face and I still Crave

124 Celiberima] a altered; final m? deleted.

125 Gloriosa] a altered; final m? deleted. negotij] Dyce negotii et] Dyce emend. ut

127 Dyce supplies else before as. interlined : em altered.

137 Couteyrie] The original reading was probably Contey then n being treated as u had a mark placed over to give the reading un and the last three letters, which are however doubtful, were added; the scribe no doubt th intended to delete ey but seeing the confusion he had produced altered his mind and struck out the whole wo Countrie] interlined.

140 Dyce supplies the S.D. Exit Randal. after creation 143 bace] Dyce base Illitterate] Dyce illitter 144 counted Dyce counted 148 Cravel C altered from g

		When that forsaks me I may [have] hugg my grave
E	rasmus.	yor honors mery humor is best phisick	et tu Erasmus an	150
Г		vnto yor able Boddy, for we learne	Diabolus
ı		wher mellancholly choaks the passages
П		of bloud and breth the errected spirit still lengthens or dayes wth sportfull exercise studie should be the saddest time of lif
		the rest a sport exempt from thought of strife
В	Moore.	Erasmus preacheth gospell against phisicke.
ı		my noble poet
k	Surry.	oh my [noble] Lord you tax me
П		in that word poet of much Idlenes		160
н		It is a studie that maks poore or fate
ı		poets were ever thought vnfitt for state
п	Moore.	o give not vp faire poisie sweet Lord to such Contempt. that I may speake my hart
		It is the sweetest heraldrie of art
П		that setts a difference tweene the tough sharpe holly and tender Bay tree
н	Surry	yett my lord. It is become the very Lagg in number to all mechanick sciences
R	Moore.	why Ile show the reason		170
П		this is noe age for poets they should sing to the lowd Canon Heroica facta qui faciunt reges heroica Carmina lawdant and as great subjects of ther pen decay

149 forsaks] Dyce forsakes hugg] interlined.

150 honors Dyce honers Dyce supplies aut after et and after an presumably intending substitution.

154 lengthens] g altered from t 155 lif] Dyce life 161 maks] Dyce makes

163 give] ? v altered from u168 Lagg in] reading very doubtful; the first letter can hardly be anything but a badly formed L, the second is most certainly a, the third certainly g, the fourth is badly blotted and may have been deleted, it looks most like g, hile above it are marks resembling the dot of an i and an Italian c; then after a blank, and rather close to the ext word, is something blotted or deleted, which may conceivably be in though it looks more like n; it seems most kely that the apparent deletions and interlineations are due to blots or sets off from the opposite page (there is at ast one other mark in the neighbourhood presumably due to that cause): Dyce logic (doubtfully).

173 reges second e altered?

[heere.]

even so vnphisickt they doe melt away Enter mr Morris Com will yor Lordshipp in? my deere Erasmus Ile heere vou mr moris presentlie. my Lord I make you mr of my howse weele Banquett heere wth fresh and staid delights the muses musick heer shall cheere or sprites neate witt 180 the cates must be but meane wher scollers sitt. for thar (ma)de all wth courses(o Moor. how now mr morris FOL. 13 moriss. I am a suter to yor Lordshipp in behalf of a servaunt of mine. moore. the fellow wth Long haire good mr moris Com to me three years hence and then Ile heere you moris I vnderstand yor honor but the foolish knave has submitted him self to the mercy of a Barber, and is wthout redy to make a new vow befor your Lordshipp. heerafter to live Civell moore, nay then letts talke wth him pray call him in Enter Faukner, and Fauk. bless yor honor a new man my lord. officers Moore. why sure this not he Fauk. and yor Lordshipp will [yor L] the Barber shall give you a sample of my head I am he Infaith my Lord, I am ipse, Moore, why now thy face is like an honest mans thou hast plaid well at this new cutt and wonn Fauk. no my lord Lost all that [god] ever god sent me Moore god sent thee Into the world as thou art now wth a short haire. how quickly are three years ronn out in Newgate Fauk. I think so my lord, for ther was but a haires length betweene my going thether, and so long time Moor Because I see som grace in thee goe free Discharge him fellowes farewell mr moris [Enter a messenger] thy head is for thy shoulders now more fitt thou hast less haire vppon it but more witt exit Moris. Did not I tell thee allwaies of thes Locks Fauk. And the locks were on againe all the goldsmiths in cheapside should not 180 Dyce supplies the S.D. Exeunt Surrey, Erasmus, and Attendants. after witt 181 the rule that should mark off the speech is wanting. 188 live Civell Dyce leve cavell 187 befor Dyce before 182 Moor.] Dyce omits. 206 not] of doubtful.

191 Dyce supplies is after this (unnecessarily).

pick them open. shart. if my haire stand not an end when I looke for my face in a glass. I am a polecatt heers a lowsie Iest but if I notch not that rogue tom barbar that makes me looke thus like a Brownist. hange me. Ile be worss to the nitticall knave. then ten tooth drawings [w] heers a head wth a pox

210

Morr: what ailst thou? art thou mad now.

Faulk. mad now? nayles yf losse of hayre Cannot mad a man what Can? I am deposde: my Crowne is taken from mee Moore had bin better a Scowrd More ditch, than a notcht mee thus, does hee begin sheepe sharing wth Iack Faulkner?

Morr: nay & you feede this veyne Sr, fare you well.

Falk: why fare well Frost. Ile goe hang my Selfe out for the poll head, make a Sarcen of Iack?

Morr: thou desperate knave, for that I See the divell, wholy getty hold of thee.

Falk: the divelly a dambd rascall

Morr: I charge thee wayte on mee no more: no more, call mee thy mr.

Falk: why then a word mr Morris.

Morr. Ile heare no wordes, Sr, fare you well.

Falk: Sbloud farewell:

Morr: why doest thou follow [vou] mee:

Falk: because Ime an Asse, doe you sett yor shavets vpon mee, & then cast mee off? must I condole? have the fates playd the fooles veepes. am I theire Cutt? Now the poore Sconce is taken, must Iack march wth bag & baggage?

230

220

Morr: you Coxcomb.

Falk: nay you ha poacht mee, you ha given mee a hayre, it here here.

207 an] sic. for] ? or altered from ro 211 drawings] Dyce 212 ailst] Dyce ails thou?] query-mark substituted for period. 212-42 in hand E. 211 drawings Dyce draweings man —] the dashes here and in 218 are mere flourishes to 213 now?] query-mark substituted for period. 214 deposde:] colon substituted for comma. mee] Dyce me

215 Scowrd] r altered from a: Dyce scowred 218 for Dyce of 229 shavets Dyce shavers mee, Dyce me 231 weepes. Dyce Weapes 233-5 marked for omission.

235 here.] Dyce heare

Morr: Away you kynd [foole] Asse, come Sr, dry yor eyes, keepe yor old place & mend theis fooleryes.

Falk: I care not to bee tournd off, and twere a ladder, so it bee in my humor, or the fates becon to mee; nay pray Sr, yf the destinyes 8

Spin mee a fyne thred, Falkner flyes another pitch: & to avoyd the headach, hereafter before Ile bee a hayremonger Ile

bee a whoremonger. — Exeu(

[End of Addition IV.]

236 Asse,] Asse interlined, first s doubtful; comma after foole traceable under the caret-mark belonging to Asse 239 yf] interlined. 240 The reference mark (presumably to V I) is partly torn away.

⊕ Mess T Goodal

Enter A Messenger to moore.

FOL. 13

my honorable lord the maior of london [his lady] accompaned wth his lady and her traine are coming hether, and are hard at hand to feast wth you A seriaunts come before to tell yor Lordshipp of ther neer aproch

Moore why this is cheerfull &c'

why this is cheerfull newes frends goe and Come Reverend Erasmus whose delitious words express the very soule and lif of witt newlie toke sad leave of me wth teares trubled the sillver channell of the Themes wth glad of such a burden prowdlie sweld And one her bosom bore him toward the sea hees gon to roterdam. peace goe wth him he left me heavy when he went from hence But this recomforts me? The kind Lo maior his Britheren Aldermen wth ther faire wives will [fight this] feast this night wth vs. why soet should be

20

10

ADDITION V.

Lines 9-26 of this insertion were first written on a piece of paper which was pasted over the lower portion of fol. 14^a, covering †844-76 of the deleted sc. viii b. Subsequently 1-8 were written up the left margin, 1-5 on original leaf, fol. 14, and 6-8 on the additional slip, now fol. 13^a. Lines 1-7 are copied from the draft on fol. 16^b, VI 68-73. From 26 it is evident that the scribe intended his addition to come immediately before and to be continuous with the original sc. ix (fol. 14^b, †878), though he made no attempt to introduce the necessary alterations in the stage direction. Such a crude insertion is, however, impossible since it leaves no time for the dinner, and the only manner of using the addition is by making it into an independent scene (sc. viii^a), clearly contrary to the intention of the scribe. The position of the addition is attested by the reference mark, IV 240, V I.

1-26 in hand C.

1-2 it is not quite certain whether the marginal note is in the same hand as the text.

1 Mess] Dyce omits. 2 Goodal] second o doubtful: Dyce Goedal 3 accompaned] Dyce Accompanied 7 aproch] Dyce aproche

10 Erasmus] r altered? 11 lif] Dyce life

12 toke o altered from a in darker ink. me m altered from w in darker ink. Dyce supplies and after me

19 Britheren Dyce bretheren

20 fight] f certain, ig doubtful, ht probable; apparently the scribe was about to commit the Spoonerism fight this neast soet] i.e. soe't should] Dyce shuld moores mery hart lives by good Companie good gentlemen be carefull give great charge or diet be made daynty for the tast for of all people that the earth affords the Londoners fare richest at ther bourds Com my good fellowes &c'

[End of Addition V.]

25 Londoners] e altered.

26 Com] Dyce Come

Fol. 13*b blank.

ENTER A SERVINGMAN

FOL., 16a

Man wher be theis players

all heare Sir

Man my lord [in poste] is sent for to the courte. and all the guests doo after supper parte and for he will not troble you againe by Me for your Reward a sends 8 angills wth many thanks: but supp before you goe, yt is his will you should be farely entreatid follow I pray ye

10

witt this luggins [all] is your neclegens wanting witts beard brought things into dislike for other wies the playe had bin all seene wher now some curius cittisin [dislikte itt,] [dispraisd itt] disgraste itt and discomendinge ytt, all is dismiste, vice fore god a sayes true. but heare ye Sirs 8 angells ha my lord wold neuer giues 8. angells more or [el] les for 12d ether yt shold be 3ti. 5ti or tenn ti ther 20s wantinge suer witt twenty to one tis soe: I have a tricke my lord comes stand a side

20

lord maier and ladies and the Rest: be patiente the state hathe sent and I must nedes be gone [but frollicg on] lead on theare: : what seekst thou fellow. your lordship sent vs 8 angills by your man and I haue loste one heare amongst the rishes

Addition VI.

Of this addition 1-67 (sc. ixa) are quite clearly marked by C for insertion between scs. ix and x, fol. 172, †1157. 68-73 are a rough draft of a passage which re-appears as V 2-7.

I prefixed by C. 2-73 in hand B.

10 pray] Dyce praye
14 disgraste itt] interlined.
18 ether] first e doubtful, ? altered from o: Dyce other 19 Dyce sure

3 heare] Dyce Heere
7 Me] M altered from l? disgraste] Dyce disgraiste ther] Dyce emend. thers

ther Dyce emend. thers (unnecessarily).

suer] Dyce sure

21-35 marked for omission. The absence in this passage of speakers' names (which Dyce supplies) shows that this scribe at least wrote his text first and inserted his speakers afterwards (cf. *649-58 marg. and †1955-63). 23 frollicg on on doubtful, but so Dyce, who retains the deleted words.

40

8 angills hoo dilliuerd yt I sent them ten. I my lord dilliuerd yt. anon they shall have too more. thats more then we hard before my lord. am I a man of [Righte and] equetie equallie to deuide true Righte his [h]owne and shall I have disseauers in my house goe pull the cote ouer the variets eares. ther ar too many suche: [ile Make them fuer by one] giue them ther dewe. lead one awaye, [come fellowes goe wth me]

ENTER MOORE WTH ATTENDAUNTS WT PURSS & MACE

Lord In haist to cownsell whats the busnes now that all so late his highnes sends for me. what sekst thou fellow

witt nay nothinge, your lordship sent 8 angills by your man and I have lost too of them in the Rishes

Lord wytt looke to thatt. 8 angells I did send them tenn ho gauie yt them

Man I my lord I had no more aboute me but buy and buy they shall Risseaue the rest

Lord well witt twas wieslye donne thou plaist witt well endede not to be thus disseauid of thy Righte. am I a man by offis truely ordaind equally to deuide true Righte his owne and shall I have disseauers in my house then what availes my bowntie. when such seruants disseaue the pore [Risseauer] of what the m^r giues

26 hoo] there is a w prefixed in modern ink: Dyce whoo 31 disseauers] Dyce diseauers

diseauers 33-5 S.D. in hand C.
Make] M altered? 34 attenda 34 attendaunts] Dyce Attendants 33 ar] interlined.

36 Lord Laltered from m and d altered from e apparently; but the change may be the other way. cownsell Dyce counsell busnes Dyce busines

42 ho] Dyce Who (cf. l. 26). 42 ho] Dyce Who (cf. l. 26). gauie] sic. 46 disseauid] Dyce disseaued 47 ordaind] after the second d there is something deleted in modern ink; it seems likely that the scribe wrote ordained, but formed the last letter badly, altered e to d and omitted to delete his final d 48 true] the scribe seems to have begun by writing R, but it was sufficiently like a t for him to leave it unaltered when he decided that true was the desirable word. 50 my m has four minims. 51 Risseauer] au doubtful. what waltered? goe one and pull his cote ouer his [h]eares ther ar too manye such: give them ther Righte witt let thie fellowes thanke the twas well dunn thou now disserveste to match wth ladye wisdome

Vice god a mersye wytt: sir you had a maister Sir thomas more more but now we shall haue more

lugg god blesse him I wold ther weare more of his minde a loues our qualletie and yit hees a larnid man and knows what the world is

60

70

clo. well a kinde man and more loving then [or owne lorde,] many other, but I thinke we ha mett wth the first [

luggins first sarud his man that had or angills and he maye chaunce dine wth duke homphrye to morrow beinge turnde

FOL. 16^b

a waye to daye, come lets goe

clo and many such Rewards wold make vs all ride and horsse vs wth the best nags in smith felde /

my honnorable lord the maier of london accompanied wth his ladye and hir traine ar comynge and ar hard at hande to feaste wth you. a sargins come before [as sent] to tell your lordship [of his cominge] [that they are at]
of ther neare aproche / [hande /]

[End of Addition VI.]

52 eares] an initial h has been deleted both in old and modern ink.

53 them ther] r was apparently altered from i, the dot of which was allowed to remain till deleted in modern ink.

55 disserveste] the second e is apparently inserted and partly covers the following s. Dyce supplies the S.D. Exit Moore with Attend. after wisdome

56 Sir thomas more] interlined. 56-7 the rule between these lines was drawn in error.

58 more] interlined. minde] n altered, perhaps only touched up.

61 the last three words were immediately (and wisely) deleted by the writer, but they have been crossed out again in modern ink.
62 an erasure at end. The sense of 62-3 seems to be defective.
63 sarud Dyce serud

64 homphrye] first h altered; ry altered or perhaps touched up.

67 Dyce supplies S.D. Exeunt, after felde / 69-73 not printed by Dyce; cf. V 2-7.

73 Rest of fol. 16b blank.