A virtuous woman is the crowne of her husband, but she that maketh him ashamed, is as corruption in his bones. Proverb. 12. 4.

Imprinted at London by John Windet.

1594.

To all the constant Ladies & Gentlewomen of England that feare God.

ARDON me (sweete Ladies,) if at this present, I deprive you of a just Apology in defence of your constant Chastities, deserved of many of you, and long sithence promised by my selfe, to some of you: and pardon mee the sooner, for that I have long expected that the same should have beene perfourmed by some of your selves, which I know are well able, if you were but so wellwilling to write in your owne praise, as many men in these dayes (whose tounges are tipt with poyson) are too ready and over willing, to speake and write to your disgrace. This occasion had bene most fit, (publishing now the praise of a constant wife) if I had bene but almost ready. But the future time may agayne reveale as fit a meanes heereafter for the perfourmance of the same: if so it seeme good to him that moderateth all. Concerning this booke which I have presumed to dedicate to the safe protection of your accustomed courtesies; if yee aske me for the persons: I am altogether ignorant of them, and have set them downe, onely as I finde them named or disciphered in my author. For the trueth of this this action, if you enquire, I will more fully deliver my opinion hereafter. Touching the substance of the matter it selfe, I thinke verily that the nature, woordes, gestures, promises, and very quintessence, as it were, is there lively described, of such lewd chapmen as use to entise silly maides and assayle the Chastity of honest women. And no doubt but some of you, that have beene tried in the like case, (if ever you were tryed,) shall in some one part or other acknowledge it to bee true. If mine Author have found a Brytaine Lucretia, or an English Susanna, envy not at her prayse (good Ladies) but rather endevor to deserve the like. There may be as much done for any of you, as he hath done for his AVISA. Whatsoever is in me, I have vowed it wholy, to the exalting of the glory of your sweete sex, as time, occasion and ability shall permit. In the meane time I rest yours in all dutifull affection, and commend you all to his protection, under whose mercy we enjoy all.

Yours most affectionate, Hadrian Dorrell.

To the gentle & courteous Reader.

A T is not long sithence (gentle Reader) that my very good frend and chamber fellow M. Henry Willlobie, a yong man, and a scholler of very good hope, being desirous to see the fashions of other countries for a time, departed voluntarilly to her Majesties service. Who at his departure, chose me amongst the rest of his frends, unto whome he reposed so much trust, that he delivered me the key of his study, and the use of all his booke till his returne. Amongest which (perusing them at leysure) I found many pretty & witty conceites, as I suppose of his owne dooing. One among the rest I fancied so much, that I have ventered so farre upon his frendship, as to publish it without his consent. As I thinke it not necessary, to be over curios in an other mans labour, so yet something I must say for the better understanding of the whole matter. And therefore, first for the thing it selfe, whether it be altogether fayned, or in some part true, or altogether true; and yet in most part Poetically shadowed, you must give me leave to speake by conjecture, and not by knowledge. My conjecture is doubtfull, and therfore I make you the Judges. Concerning the name of AVISA, I think it to be a fained name, like unto Ovids Corinna; and there are two causes that make mee thus to thinke. First, for that I never heard of any of that name that I remember; and next for that in a

The Epistle

in a voide paper rolled up in this boke, I found this very name AVISA, written in great letters a prety distance a sunder, & under every letter a word beginning with the same letter, in this forme.

A.	V.	I.	S.	A.
Amans.	vxor.	inviolata.	semper.	amanda.

That is in effect. A loving wife, that never violated her faith, is alwaies to be beloved. Which makes me conjecture that he minding for his recreation to set out the Idea of a constant wife, (rather describing what good wives should doe then registering what any hath done) devised a womans name, that might fitly express this womans nature whom he would aime at : desirous in this (as I conjecture) to imitate a far off, ether Plato in his Common wealth, or More in his Utopia. This my surmise of his meaning, is confirmed also by the sight of other odd papers that I found, wherein he had, as I take it, out of Cornelius Agrippa, drawen the severall dispositions of the Italian, the Spanyard, the French man, the German, and the English man, and how they are affected in love. The Italian dissembling his love, assaileth the woman beloved, with certain prepared wantonesse : hee praiseth her in written verses, and extolleth her to the Heavens.

The Spanyard is unpatient in burning love, very mad with troubled lasciviousnesse, hee runneth furiously, and with pittyfull complaintes, bewailing his fervent desire, doth call upon his Lady, and worshippeth her, but having obtained his purpose maketh her common to all men.

The Frenchman endevoreth to serve, he seeketh to pleasure his woman with songes and disports &c.

The Germane & Englishman being nigher of nature, are inflamed by little and little, but being enamored, they instantly require with arte, and entice with giftes &c. Which severall rall qualities are generally expressed by this Author in the two first trials or assaultes made by the noble man, and the lustie Cavalieros, Captaines, or Cutters &c. Signifying by this generalitie that our noble men, gentlemen, captaines, and lusty youthes have of late learned the fashions of all these countries, how to sollicit their cause, & court their Ladies, and lovers, & this continueth from the second Canto, to the ende of the two and twentieth.

To the Reader.

After this he comes to describe these natures againe in particular examples more plainly, and beginneth first with the French man under the shadow of these Letters, D. B. from the three and twentieth Canto unto the end of the three and thirtieth. Secondly the Englishman or Germane, under these Letters, D. H. from the 34. Canto unto the ende of the forty three. Lastly the Spanyard and Italian, who more furiously invadeth his love, & more pathetically indureth then all the rest, from the forty four Canto to the ende of the booke. It seemes that in this last example the author names himselfe, and so describeth his owne love, I know not, and I will not bee curious.

All these are so rightly described according to their nature, that it may seeme the Author rather meant to shewe what suites might be made, and how they may be aunsweared, then that there hath bene any such thing indeede.

These thinges of the one side leade me to thincke it altogether a fained matter, both for the names and the substance, and a plaine morall plot, secretly to insinuate, how honest maides & women in such temptations should stand upon their guard, considering the glory & praise that commendes a spotlesse life, and the blacke ignominy, and foule contempt that waieth upon a wicked and dissolute behaviour.

Yet of the other side, when I do more deeplye consider of it,
and

The Epistle

& more narrowly weigh every particular part, I am driven to thinke that there is some thing of trueth hidden under this shadow. The reasons that move me are these, First in the same paper where I found the name of AVISA written in greate letters, as I said before, I found this also written with the Authors owne hande, videlicet. Yet I would not have Avisa to be thought a politike fiction, nor a truethlesse invention, for it may be, that I have at least heard of one in the west of England, in whome the substaunce of all this hath bene verified, and in many thinges the very wordes specified: which hath indured these and many more, and many greater assaultes, yet, as I heare, she standes unspotted, and unconquered.

Againe, if we marke the exact descriptions of her birth, her countrie, the place of her abode; and such other circumstances, but especially the matter and manner of their talkes and conferences, me thinkes it a matter almost impossible that any man could invent all this without some ground or foudnation to build on.

This inforceth me to conjecture, that though the matter be handled poetically, yet there is some thing under these fained names and showes that hath bene done truely. Now judge you, for I can give no sentence in that I know not. If there bee any such constant wife, (as I doubt not but there may bee) I wish that there were more would spring from her ashes, and that all were such. Whether my Author knew, or heard of any such I cannot tell, but of mine owne knowledge, I dare to sweare, that I know one, A.D. that either hath, or would, if occasion were so offered, indure these, and many greater temptations with a constant mind and seiled heart. And therfore here I must worthely reprehend the envious rage, both of Heathen poets, and of some Christian and English writers, which so farre debase the credite and strength of the whole sexe, that they feare not with lying toungs wickedly to publish, that there are none at all that can continue constant, if they bee tried. Hereof sprang these false accusing speeches of the old Poets.

Ludunt formosae, casta est, quam nemo rogauit.

Faire wenches love to play.

And they are onely chast, whome no man doth assay.

And againe

Rara avis in terris, nigroq; simillima cygno,

Foemina casta volat.

A rare-seene bird that never flies, on earth ne yet in aire,

Like blackish Swan, a woman chast ; if she be yong and faire.

This false opinion bred those foule-mouthed speeches of Frier Mantuan, that upbraides all women with fleeting unconstancy. This made Ariosto and others to invent, and publish so many lewd and untrue tales of womens unfaithfulnes. And this is the cause, that in this booke ye shall so often find it objected against AVISA by all her sutors, that no woman of what degree so ever can be constant if she be much requested, but that the best will yeeld. But the best is, this common and course conceit is received but onely among common, lewd, & carelesse men, who being wickedly themselves, give sentence of all others, according to the loose and lawlesse humours wherewithall they feele their owne straying and wandring affections to be infected. For they forsooth, because in divers and sundrie places, (as they often wickedly boast) they may for an Angell and a great deale lesse, have hired nagges to ride at their pleasure, such as make a sinnefull gaine of a filthy carkasse; because in other countries, where stewes and brothelhouses are winckt at, they see oftentimes, the fairest and not the meanest flocke to the fellowship of such filthy freedome, Thinke present-ly, that it is but a mony matter, or a litle-intreatie, to over-throw throw the chastity of any woman whatsoever. But if all women were in deede such as the woman figured under the name of AVISA either is, or at least is supposed to bee, they should quickly restore againe their auncient credite and glory which a few wicked wantons have thus generally obscured. In the twentie and seven Canio, I find how D.B. persuadeth with A. that it is little sinne or no fault to love a frend besides her husband. Whereupon, inquiring more of the matter I have heard some of the occupation verifie it for a trueth: That among the best sort, they are accompted very honest women in some cities now, that love but one frend besides their husband, and that it is thought amongst them a thing almost lawfull. If this be true, (as I hardly thincke it to bee true, because wicked men feare not to report any untrueths) but if it be true, I feare least the ripenesse of our sin cry to the Lord for vengeance against us, that tremble not at the remembrance of Gods judgements, that have bound a heavy curse & woe upon the backe and conscience of them, That speake good of evill, and evill of good. That is, such as are growne to that pointe, that they are no longer ashamed of their sinne, nor care for any honesty, but are become wilfully desperate in the performance of all kind of impiety.

But I leave this to the godly preachers to dilate more amply. And to returne to my purpose, although I must confesse that of all sortes of people, there have been and will be still some loosely and lewdly given, yet this can bee no excuse to lavishe tongues, to condemne all generally. For, I dare to venter my hand, and my head upon this point, that, let the foure moral vertues be in order set downe.

let all the ancient histories both ecclesiasticall and prophane be thorowly examined, and there will bee found women inough, that in the performance of all these vertues, have matched, if not overmatched men of every age, which I dare myselfe, to verifie in their behalves upon the venter and losing of my credite, if I had time and leisure. Among infinite numbers to give you a taste of one or two : for wisedome, and Justice, what say you to Placilla wife to the Emperour Theodosius ? She was wont every day in her owne person, to visite the sicke, the poore, and the maymed : And if at any time shée saw the Emperour declining from Justice to any hard course, shée would bid him Remember himselfe, from whence he came, & what he was, in what state hee had bene, and in what state he was now ; which if he would do, he should never wax proud nor cruell, but rather humble, mercyfull and just.

For temperance, how say you to the wife of one Pelagius, of Laodicea which being yong her selfe, and married to a young and lusty man, was yet notwithstanding contented willingly to forbeare carnall pleasure, during her whole life. I bring not this womans example, for any liking I have to her fact, being lawfully married, but rather, against the curious carpers at womens strength, to prove that some women have done that which few men can doe.

For Fortitude and temperance both, I finde, that in Antioche, there was a noble woman with her two daughters, rather then they would be defloured, cast themselves allwillingly into a great river, and so drowned themselves.

And also, that in Rome there was a Senatours wife, who when she heard, that there were messengers sent from Maxentius the tirant, to bring her unto him, perforce, to be ravished of him ; and seeing that her husband was not of ability and and power to defend her, she used this pollicy. Shee requested that they would give her leave to put on som better apparel & to attire herselfe more decently : which being graunted, and she gotten into a chamber by herselfe, she tooke a sword and perced her selfe to the hart, rather then she would be counted the Emperours whore.

By this may be seene what might be sayd in this argument, but leaving this to some other time, or to some other better able ; I returne to my author.

For the persons & matter, you have heard my conjecture, now for the manner of the composition, disposition, invention, and order of the verse, I must leave every mans sence to himselfe, for that which pleaseth me, may not fancy others. But to speake my judgement, the invention, the argument, and the disposition, is not common, nor (that I know) ever handled of any man before in this order. For the composition and order of the verse : Although hee flye not alofte with the winges of Astrophell nor dare to compare with the Arcadian shepheard, or any way match with the dainetie Fayry Queene ; yet shall you find his wordes and phrases, neither Tryviall nor absurd, but all the whole worke, for the verse, pleasant, without hardnesse, smooth without any roughnesse, sweet without tediousnesse, easie to be understood, without harrish absurdity : yeelding a gratioues harmony every where, to the delight of the Reader.

I have christened it by the name of Willoby his Avisa : because I suppose it was his doing, being written with his owne hand. How he will like my bouldness, both in the publishing, and naming of it, I know not. For the incouraging and helping of maides and wives to holde an honest and constant course against all unhonest and lewd temptations, I have doone that I have doone. I have not added nor detracted any thing from from the worke it selfe, but have let it passe without altering any thing: Onely in the end I have added to fill up some voyd paper certaine fragmentes and ditties, as a resolution of a chast and constant wife, to the tune of Fortune, and the praise of a contented mind, which I found wrapped altogether with this, and therefore knew not whether it did any way belong unto this or not.

Thus leaving to trouble your patience with farder delaies, I commit you to the good government of Gods spirit. From my chamber in Oxford this first of October.

Abell Emet in commendation of Willowies Avisa.

TO Willowby, you worthy Dames yeeld worthy prayse,
Whose silver pype so sweetly sounds your strange delayes,
Whose loftly style, with golden winges remountes your fame,
The glory of your Princely sex, the spotles name :
O happy wench, who so she be if any be,
That thus deservd thus to be praisd by Willowie.
Shall I beleeve, I must beleeve, such one there is,
Well hast thou said, long maist thou say, such on[e] there is ;
If one there be, I can beleeve there are no more,
This wicked age, this sinfull tyme breeds no such store :
Such silver myntes, such golden mines who could refuse ?
Such offers made and not recev'd, I greatly muse.
Such deepe deceit in frendly shewes, such tempting fittes,
To still withstand, doth passe the reach of womens wittes :
You Country maides, Pean nimphes rejoice and sing,
To see from you a chast, a new Diana spring :
At whose report you must not frett, you may not frowne,
But rather strive by due desert for like renowne,
Her constant faith in hot assaye hath wonne the game,
Whose praise shall live, when she is dead with lasting fame.
If my conceit from strangers mouth may credit get,
A braver Theame, more sweetly pend, was never yet.

In praise of Willobie his Avisa, Hex-ameton to the Author.

IN Lavine Land though Livie bost,
There hath beene seene a Constant dame :
Though Rome lament that she have lost
The Gareland of her rarest fame,
Yet now we see, that here is found
As great a Faith in English ground.

Though Collatine have deerely bought,
To high renowne, a lasting life,
And found, that most in vaine have sought,
To have a Faire and Constant wife,
Yet Tarquyne pluckt his glistening grape,
And Shake-speare, paints poore Lucrece rape.

Though Susan shine in faithfull praise,
As twinkelinge starres in Christall skie,
Penelop's fame though Greekes do raise,
Of faithfull wives to make up three,
To thinke the Truth and say no lesse,
Our Avisa shall make a messe.

This number knits so sure a knot,
Time doubts, that she shall adde no more.
Unconstant Nature hath begot,
Of Fleeting Feemes such fickle store,
Two thousand yeares have scarcely seene,
Such as the worst of these have beene.

Then

*Then Avi-Susan joyne in one,
Let Lucres-Avis be thy name
This English Eagle sores alone,
And farre surmounts all others fame,
Where high or low, where great or small,
This Brytan Bird out-fies them all.*

*Were these three happie, that have found
Brave Poets to depaint their praise?
Of Rurall Pipe, with sweetest sound,
That have beene heard these many daies,
Sweete wylloby his AVIS blest,
That makes her mount above the rest.*

CANT. I.

ET martiall men, of Mars his praise,
 Sound warlike trumpe :
 let lust-led youth,
 Of wicked love,
 write wanton layes ;
 Let sheepeheards sing,
 their sheepe coates ruth :
 The wiser sort,
 confesse it plaine,
 That these have spent good time in vaine.

My sleepie Muse that wakes but now,
 Nor now had wak't if one had slept,
 To vertues praise hath past her vow,
 To paint the Rose which grace hath kept,
 Of sweetest Rose, that still doth spring,
 Of vertues birde my Muse must sing.

The

Willowbie

The birde that doth resemble right,
The Turtles faith in constant love,
The faith that first her promise plight ;
No change, nor chance could once remove :

This have I tri'd ; This dare I trust,
And sing the truth, I will, I must.

Afflicted Susans spotlesse thought,
Intis'd by lust to sinfull crime,
To lasting fame her name hath brought,
Whose praise encounters endlesse time :

I sing of one whose beauties warre,
For trials passe Susanna's farre.

The wandring Greekes renoumed mate,
That still withstoode such hote assayes,
Of raging lust whose doubtfull state,
Sought strong refuge, from strange delayes,
For fierce assaults and tryals rare,
With this my Nymph may not compare.

Hote tryals try where Golde be pure,
The Diamond daunts the sharpest edge,
Light chaffe, fierce flames may not indure,
All quickly leape the lowly hedge,
The object of my Muse hath past
Both force and flame, yet stands she fast.

Though Egle-eyde this bird appeare,
Not blusht at beames of Phoebus raies :
Though Faulkcon winged to pearce the aire,
Whose high-pla'st hart no feare dismaies :
Yet sprang she not from Egles nest,
But Turtle-bred, loves Turtle best.

At

At wester side of Albions Ile,
Where Austine pitcht his Monkish tent,
Where Sheepheards sing, where Muses smile,
The graces met with one consent,
To frame each one in sundry parte,
Some cunning worke to shew their arte.

First Venus fram'd a luring eye,
A sweete aspect and comly grace;
There did the Rose and Lillie lie,
That bravely deckt a smiling face,
Here Cupid's mother bent her wil,
In this to shew her utmost skill.

Then Pallas gave a reaching head,
With deepe conceites, and passing wit,
A setled mind, not fancie-led,
Abhorring Cupids frantique fit,
With modest lookes, and blushing cheekes,
A filed tongue which none mislikes.

Diana deckt the remnant partes,
With fewture brave, that nothing lacke,
A quiver full of pearcing Darts,
She gave her hanging at her backe;
And in her hand a Golden shaft,
To conquer Cupids creeping craft.

This done they come to take the view,
Of novell worke, of peerlesse frame;
Amongst them three, contention grew,
But yet Diana gave the name,
Avisa shall she called be,
The chiefe attendant still on me.

When

Willobie

When Juno view'd her luring grace,
Olde Juno blusht to see a new,
She fear'd least Jove would like this face,
And so perhaps might play untrew,
They all admir'd so sweete a sight,
They all envide so rare a wight.

Beautie without riches, is as a faire picture without life.

When Juno came to give her wealth,
(Which wanting beauty, wants her life)
She cryde, this face needes not my pelffe,
Great riches sow the seedes of strife :

I doubt not some Olympian power
Will fill her lap, with Golden shower,

Jealousie
breedes envy :
Both together
breede frenzie, yet neither of them both can prevaine against wandring fancie.

This jealous Juno faintly said,
As halfe misdeeming wanton Jove,
But chaste Diana tooke the maide,
Such new-bred qualmes quite to remove :
O jealous envie, filthie beast,
For envie Juno gave her least.

A straunge bayte.

In lew of Juno's Golden parte
Diana gave her double grace ;
A chaste desire, a constant heart,
Disdaine of love in fawning face,
A face, and eye, that should intice,
A smile, that should deceive the wise.

A sober tongue that should allure,
And draw great numbers to the fielde ;
A flintie hart, that should indure
All fierce assaults, and never yeelde,
And seeming oft as though she would ;
Yet fardest off when that she should.

Can

Can filthy sinke yelde holsome aire,
Or vertue from a vice proceede ?
Can envious hart, or jealous feare
Repell the things that are decreed ?
By envie though she lost her thrift,
She got by grace a better gift,

Not farre from thence there lyes a vale,
A rosie vale in pleasant plaine ;
The Nymphes frequent this happie dale,
Olde Helicon revives againe ;
Here Muses sing, here Satyres play,
Here mirth resounds both night and day.

At East of this, a Castle stands,
By auncient sheepheards built of olde,
And lately was in sheepheards hands,
Though now by brothers bought and solde, .
At west side springs a Christall well ;
There doth this chast Avisa dwell.

And there she dwels in publique eye,
Shut up from none that list to see ;
She answeres all that list to try,
Both high and low of each degree :
But few that come, but feele her dart,
And try her well ere they depart.

They try'd her hard in hope to gaine,
Her milde behaviour breeds their hope,
Their hope assures them to obtaine,
Till having runne their witlesse scope ;
They find their vice by vertue crost,
Their foolish words, and labour lost.

This

Willowie

This strange effect, that all should crave,
Yet none obtaine their wrong desire,
A secret gift, that nature gave,
To feele the frost, amidst the fire :

Blame not this Dians Nimphe too much,
Sith God by nature made her such.

Let all the graces now be glad,
That fram'd a grace that past them all,
Let Juno be no longer sad ;
Her wanton Jove hath had a fall ;
Ten yeares have tryde this constant dame,
And yet she holds a spotles fame.

Along this plaine there lyes a downe,
Where sheepheards feed their frisking flocke ;
Her Sire the Mayor of the towne,
A lovely shout of auncient stocke,
Full twentie yeares she lived a maide,
And never was by man betrayde.

At length by Juno's great request,
Diana loth, yet gave her leave,
Of flowring yeares, to spend the rest,
In wed-locke band ; but yet receive,
Quod she, this gift ; Thou virgin pure,
Chast wife in wed-locke shalt indure.

A good gift.

O happie man that shall enjoy
A blessing of so rare a price ;
That frees the hart from such annoy ;
As often doth torment the wise,
A loving wife unto her death,
With full assurance of her faith.

When

When flying fame began to tell,
How beauties wonder was returnd,
From countrie hills, in towne to dwell,
With special gifts and grace adornd,

Of sutors store there might you see ;
And some were men of high degree.

But wisdom wild her choose her mate,
If that she lov'd a happy life,
That might be equall to her state,
To crop the sprigges of future strife ;
Where rich in grace, wher sound in health,
Most men do wed, but for the wealth.

Though jealous Juno had denyde
This happy wench, great store of pelffe ;
Yet is she now in wed-locke tyde,
To one that loves her as himselfe,
So thus they live, and thus they love ;
And God doth blesse them from above.

This rare seene bird, this Phoenix sage
Yeeldes matter to my drowsie pen,
The mirror of this sinneful age,
That gives us beasts in shapes of men,
Such beasts as still continue sinne,
Where age doth leave, there youths begin.

Our English soile, to Sodoms sinke
Excessive sinne transformd of late,
Of foule deceite the lothsome linke,
Hath worne all faith cleane out of date,
The greatest sinnes mongst greatest sort,
Are counted now but for a sport.

Old

Old Asues grandame is restor'd;
Her grovie Caves are new refinde:
The monster Idoll is ador'd
By lustie dames of Macha's kinde:
They may not let this worship fall,
Although they leese their honours all.

My tender Muse, that never try'd
Her joynted wings till present time,
At first the perelesse bird espyed,
That mounts aloft, devoide of crime;
Though high she sore, yet will I trie,
Where I her passage can discry.

Her high conceites, her constant minde;
Her sober talk, her stout denies;
Her chast advise, here shall you find;
Her fierce assaults, her milde replies,
Her dayly fight with great and small,
Yet constant vertue conquers all.

men.

CANT. II.

N O B.

OW is the time,
if thou be wise,
Thou happie maide,
if thou canst see,
Thy happiest time,
take good advise,
Good fortune laughs,
be rulde by me :
Be rulde by me,
and her's my faith,
No Golde shall want thee till thy death.

Thou knowest my power, thou seest my might,
Thou knowest I can maintaine thee well,
And help thy friends unto their right ;
Thou shalt with me for ever dwell,
My secret friend thou shalt remaine,
And all shall turne to thy great gaine.

Thou seest thy parents meane estate,
That barres the hope of greater chance ;
And if thou prove not wise too late,
Thou maist thy self, and thine advance ;
Repulse not fondly this good hap,
That now lies offred in thy lap.

Abound-

Willowie

Abandon feare that bars consent,
Repel the shame that feares a blot,
Let wisdome way what faith is ment,
That all may praise thy happie lot;
Thinke not I seeke thy lives disgrace ;
For thou shalt have a Ladies place.

Thou art the first my fancie chose,
I know my friends will like it well ;
This friendly fault to none disclose,
And what thou thinkst, blush not to tell,
Thou seest my love, thou know'st my mind,
Now let me feele, what grace I find.

CANT. III.

AVISA.

YOUR Honours place, your riper yeares,
Might better frame some graver talkes :
Midst sunny rayes, this cloud appears ;
Sweet Roses grow on prickly stalkes :
If I conceive, what you request,
You aime at that I most detest.

My tender age that wants advice,
And craves the aide of sager guides,
Should rather learne for to be wise,
To stay my steps from slipperie slides ;
Then thus to sucke, then thus to tast
The poys'ned sap, that kils at last.

I wonder what your wisdome ment,
Thus to assault a silly maide :
Some simple wench might chance consent,
By false resembling shewes betraide :
I have by grace a native shield,
To lewd assaults that cannot yeeld.

I

I am too base to be your wife,
You choose me for your secret frend;
That is to lead a filthy life,
Wheron attends a fearefull end;
Though I be poore, I tell you plaine,
To be your whore, I flat disdaine.

Your high estate, your silver shrines,
Replete with wind and filthy stinke;
Your glittering gifts, your golden mynes,
May force some foolcs perhaps to shrinke:
But I have learnd that sweetest bayt,
Oft shrowds the hooke of most desayt.

What great good hap, what happie time,
Your proffer brings, let yeelding maids
Of former age, which thought to clime
To highest tops of earthly aids,
Come backe a while, and let them tell,
Where wicked lives have ended well.

Shores wife, a Princes secret frend,
Faire Rosomond, a Kings delight:
Yet both have found a gastly end,
And fortunes friends, felt fortunes spight:
What greater joyes, could fancie frame,
Yet now we see, their lasting shame.

If princely pallace have no power,
To shade the shame of secret sinne,
If blacke reproch such names devoure,
What gaine, or glory can they winne,
That tracing tracts of shamelesse trade,
A hate of God, and man are made?

This

Willowie

This only vertue must advaunce
My meane estate to joyfull blisse:
For she that swaies dame vertues launce,
Of happie state can never misse,
 But they that hope to gaine by vice,
 Shall surely prove too late unwise.

The roote of woe is fond desire,
That never feeles her selfe content:
But wanton wing'd will needes aspire,
To finde the thing, she may lament,
 A courtly state, a Ladies place,
 My former life will quite deface.

Such strange conceites may hap prevaile,
With such as love such strong desayts,
But I am taught such qualmes to quale,
And flee such sweete alluring bayts,
 The witlesse Flie playes with the flame,
 Till see be scorched with the same.

You long to know what grace you find,
In me, perchance, more then you would,
Except you quickly change your mind,
I find in you, lesse then I should,
 Move this no more, use no reply,
 I'le keepe mine honour till I die.

CANT. IIII.

N O B.

A LAS, good soule, and will yee so?
 You will be chast Diana's mate;
Till time have wove the web of woe,
Then to repent wil be too late,
 You shew yourself so foole-precise,
 That I can hardly thinke you wise.

You

You sprang belike from Noble stocke,
That stand so much upon your fame,
You hope to stay upon the rocke,
That will preserve a faultlesse name,
But while you hunt for needelesse praise,
You loose the prime of sweetest daies.

A merry time, when countrie maides
Shall stand (forsooth) upon their garde ;
And dare controll the Courtiers deedes,
At honours gate that watch and warde ;
When Milkemaids shal their pleasures flie,
And on their credits must relie.

Ah silly wench, take not a pride,
Though thou my raging fancie move,
Thy betters far, if they were try'd,
Would faine accept my proffered love ;
'Twas for thy good, if thou hadst wist,
For I may have whome ere I list.

But here thy folly may appeare,
Art thou preciser then a Queene :
Queene Joane of Naples did not feare,
To quite mens love, with love againe :
And Messalina, t'is no newes,
Was dayly seene to haunt the stewes.

Cornelius Agrippa.

And Cleopatra, prince of Nile,
With more than one was wont to play :
And yet she keepes her glorious stile,
And fame that never shall decaie,
What need'st thou then to feare of shame,
When Queenes and Nobles use the same ?
Needes

Willowie

CANT. V.

AVISA.

NEEDS must the sheepe strake all awrie,
Whose sheepheards wander from their way :
Needes must the sickly patients die,
Whose Doctor seekes his lives decay :
Needs must the people well be taught,
Whose chiefest leaders all are naught.

Such lawlesse guides Gods people found,
When Moab maides allur'd their fall ;
They sought no salve to cure this wound,
Till God commaunds, to hange them all ;
For wicked life, a shamefull end
To wretched men, the Lord doth send.

Was earth consumde with wreakful waves ?
Did Sodom burne and after sinke ?
What sinne is that, which vengance craves,
If wicked lust no sinne we thinke ?
O blind conceites ! O filthy breath !
That drawes us headlong to our death.

If death be due to every sinne,
How can I then be too precise ?
Where pleasures end, if paine beginne,
What neede have we, then to be wise ?
They weave indeed the web of woe,
That from the Lord doe yeeld to goe.

I will remember whence I came,
I hunt not for this worldly praise,
I long to keepe a blamelesse fame,
And constant hart against hard assaies :
If this be folly, want of skill,
I will remaine thus foolish still.

The

The blindfold rage of Heathen Queenes,
Or rather queanes that know not God,
Gods heavie judgements tried since,
And felt the waight of angry rod ;
God save me from that Sodomes crie,
Whose deadly sting shall never die.

CANT. VI.

FORGIVE me wench, I did mistake,
I little thought that you could preach,
All worldly joyes, you must forsake :
For so your great Divines doe teach,
But yet beware, be not too bold,
A yongling Saint, a Devill old.

N O B.

Well wanton well, thou are but yong,
This is the error of thy youth,
Thou wilt repent this faith ere long,
And see too late (perhaps) the truth ;
And they that seem so pure at first,
Are often found in proove the worst.

Thy youth and beautie will not last,
For sickness one, the other age
May captive take, when both are past,
You may have leasure to be sage,
The time will come, if these retire,
The worst will scorne that I desire.

Of chast renowme, you seeke the praise,
You build your hope above the ayre,
When wonders last not twentie daies,
What need you rusticke rumors feare ?
Esteeme not words above thy wealth,
Which must procure thy credits health.

And

Willowie

And yet in truth I can not see,
From whence such great discredit growes,
To live in spight of every eye,
And swim in silkes and bravest shewes,
To take the choise of daintiest meate,
And see thy betters stand and waite.

These grave respects breedle pleasures bane,
Thy youthly yeares for joyes crave,
And fading credit hath his wane,
That none to thee doth shine so brave :
That smokie fame which likes thee best,
The wisest have esteemed least.

CANT. VII.

AVISA.

WELL now I see, why Christ commends,
To loving mates the Serpents wit,
That stops his eares, and so defends
His hart, from luring sounds unfit,
If you your madnes still bewraye,
I'le stop my eares, or goe my way.

Ullises wise, yet dar'd not stay
The tising sound of Syrens song :
What fancy then doth me betray,
That thinke my selfe, so wise and strong ;
That dare to heare, what you dare speake,
And hope for strength, when you be weake ?

My wisdome is the living Lord,
That gives me grace which nature wants,
That holds my seate from waies abhord,
And in my hart good motions plants :
With him I dare to bide the field,
Strive while you list, I can not yeeld.

Fond

Fond favour failes, the time will passe,
All earthly pleasures have their end,
We see not that, which sometime was,
Nor that which future times will send :
 You say the truth, remember this,
 And then confesse, you stray amisse.

The shorter time, the greater care,
Are pleasures vaine ? the lesse delight,
Are daungers nye ? why then beware,
From base affections take your flight,
 Thinke God a reckning will require,
 And strive to quale this bad desire.

To swim in silkes, and brave aray,
Is that you thinke which women love,
That leads poore maides so oft astray,
That are not garded from above ?
 But this I know, that know not all,
 Such wicked pride, will have a fall.

CANT. VIII.

N O B.

A LAS the feare, alas the fall,
 And what's the fall, that you so feare ?
To tosse good fortunes golden ball,
And gaine the goale I prize so deare,
 I doubt least these your needlessse feares,
 Will bar good hap, from witlesse yeares.

Thy

Willowie

Thy age experience wants I see,
And lacking tryall art afraid,
Least ventring farre to credit me,
Our secret dealings might be wrayd ;
What then doth not my mightie name,
Suffice to sheeld thy fact from shame ?

Who dares to stirre, who dares to speake,
Who dares our dealings to reprove ?
Though some suspect, yet none will creake,
Or once controll thy worthy love ;
My might will stand for thy defence,
And quite thee clear from great offence.

Who sees our face, knowes not our facts,
Though we our sport in secret use,
Thy cheeke will not bewray thy acts,
But rather blushing make excuse :
If thou wilt yeeld, here is my faith,
I'le keepe it secret till thy death.

To see me as chaste, let that suffice,
Although indeed thou be not so,
Thus deale our women that are wise,
And let thy godly Doctors go,
Still faine as though thou godly art,
It is inough, who knowes thy hart ?

Let not the idle vulgar voice,
Of fained credit witch thee so,
To force thee leave this happie choise,
And flying pleasure live in woe ;
If thou refuse, assure thy mind,
The like of this shalt never find.

Let

CANT. IX.

LET that word stand, let that be true,
I doe refuse and so doe still,
God shield me from your cursed crew,
That thus are led by beastly will,
It grieves my hart, that I doe find
In Noble bloud so base a mind,

On worldly feare, you thinke I stand,
Or fame that may my shame resound,
No Sir, I feare his mightie hand,
That will both you and me confound,
His feare it is that makes me stay
My wandring steps from wicked way.

Who dares, say you, our facts unfold ?
Ev'n he that can mightie Kings tame,
And he that Princes hath controld,
He dares provide a mightie shame,
What fence have you for to withstand
His firie plagues, and hevie hand ?

Though Samson queld the Lyons rage
Though Solomon, a mightie King,
Yet when to sinne their harts they gage,
On both doth God confusion bring,
How can you then his wrath avoid,
That you and yours be not destroid ?

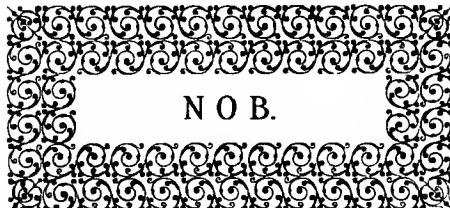

He

Willowie

He sees our facts, he viewes our deeds,
Although we sinne in secret place,
A guiltie conscience alwaies bleeds :
My faults will shew upon my face,
My cheeke will blush, when I doe sin ;
Let all men know, when I begin.

To see me as chast, and not to be,
To beare a shew, and yet to faine,
Is this the love, you beare to me,
To damne my soule in lasting paine ?
If this the best you have to say,
Pray give me leave, to goe my way.

CANT. X.

WELL then I see, you have decreed,
And this decree must light on mee :
Unhappie Lillie loves a weed,
That gives no sent, that yeelds no glee,
Thou art the first I ever tride,
Shall I at first be thus denide ?

My haplesse hap, fell much awrie,
To fix my fancies prime delight,
In haggard Hauke that mounts so hie,
That checkes the lure, and Fawkners sight ;
But sore you hie, or flie you low,
Stoupe needs you must, before you goe.

Your

Your modest speech is not amisse,
Your maidens blush becomes you well ;
Now will I see how sweete you kisse,
And so my purpose farder tell ;
Your coye lookes and trickes are vaine
I will no nay, and that is plaine.

Thou must perforce be well content,
To let me win thee with thy will ;
Thy chiefest friends have giv'n consent,
And therefore thinke, it is not ill,
Abandon all thy fond delay,
And marke this well, that I shall say.

My house, my hart, my land my life
My credit to thy care I give :
And if thou list to be a wife,
In shew of honest fame to live ;
I'le fit thee one, shall beare the cloke,
And be a chimnie for the smoke.

But say the word it shall be don,
And what thou list, or what thou crave,
What so be lost, what ever won,
Shall nothing want, that thou wilt have,
Thou shalt have all, what wilt thou more,
Which never woman had before.

Here's fortie Angels to begin ;
A little pledge of great goodwill,
To buy thee lace, to buy a pin ;
I will be carefull of thee still :
If youth be quaild, if I be old,
I can supply that with my gold.

Silkes

Willowie

Silke gownes and velvet shalt thou have,
With hoods and cauls, fit for thy head ;
Of goldsmithes worke a border brave,
A chaine of golde ten double spread

And all the rest shall answer this,
My purse shall see that nothing misse.

Two wayting maides, attendant still,
Two serving men, foure geldings prest,
Go where you list, ride where you will,
No jealous thought shal me molest ;

Two hundredth pounds I doe intend,
To give thee yearely for to spend.

Of this I will assurance make,
To some good friend, whom thou wilt chuse
That this in trust from me shall take,
While thou dost live, unto thy use ;

A thousand markes, to thee give I
And all my Jewels when I die.

This will I doe, what ever chance,
I'le shortly send, and fetch thee hence ;
Thy chiefest friends I will advance,
And leave them cause of no offence,
For all this fame, I onely crave
But thy good will, that let me have.

A modest maid is loth to say,
In open words, she doth consent,
Till gentle force doe breake the stay,
Come on, mine owne, and be content,
Posse me of my loves desire,
And let me tast that I require.

Hand

CANT. XI.

AVISA.

HAND off my Lord, this will not serve,
Your wisdom wanders much awrie,
From reasons rule thus farre to swarve,
I'le never yeeld, I'le rather die,
Except you leave and so depart,
This knife shall sticke within your hart.

Is this the love, your franticke fit
Did so pretend in glosing shew ?
Are these your waises, is this your wit,
To tice and force poore maidens so ?
You strive in vaine, by raging lust
To gaine consent, or make me trust.

For who can trust your flattering stile,
Your painted words, your brave pretence,
When you will strive, by trayned will
To force consent to lewd offence,
Then thus to yeeld by chaunted charmes,
I'le rather die within your armes.

Your golden Angels I repell,
Your lawlesse lust I here defie
These Angels are the posts of hell,
That often lead poore souls awrie,
Shame on them all, your eyes shall see,
These Angels have no power of me.

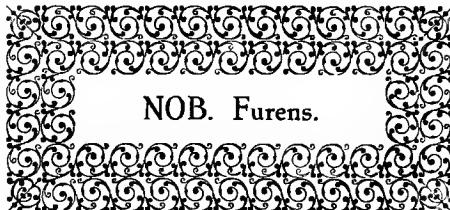

Your

Willowie

Your gownes of silke, your golden chaines,
Your men, your maides, your hundredth pounds,
Are nothing else but divelish traines,
That fill fond eares with tickling sounds,
A bladder full of traitorous wind,
And fardest off from filthy mind.

Well, sith your meaning now is plaine,
And lust would give no longer leave,
To faithlesse hart, to lie and faine,
Which might perchance in time deceive,
By Jesus Christ I doe protest,
I'le never graunt that you request.

CANT. XII.

THOU beggers brat, thou dunghill mate,
Thou clownish spawne, thou country gill,
My love is turnd to wreakefull hate,
Go hang, and keepe thy credit still,
Gad where thou list, aright or wrong,
I hope to see thee begge, erre long.

Was this great offer well refus'd,
Or was this proffer all too base ?
Am I fit man to be abus'd,
With such disgrace, by flattering gase ?
On thee or thine, as I am man,
I will revenge this if I can.

Thou

Thou think'st thy selfe a peerelesse peice,
And peevish pride that doth possesse
Thy hart; perswades that thou art wise,
When God doth know ther's nothing lesse,
T'was not thy beautie that did move
This fond affect, but blinded love.

I hope to see some countrie clowne,
Possessor of that fleering face,
When need shall force thy pride come downe,
I'le laugh to see thy foolish case,
For thou that think'st thy selfe so brave,
Wilt take at last some paltrie knave.

Thou selfewill gig that doth detest
My faithfull love, looke to thy fame,
If thou offend, I doe protest,
I'le bring thee out to open shame,
For sith thou fayn'st thy selfe so pure,
Looke to thy leapes that they be sure.

I was thy friend, but now thy foe,
Thou hadst my hart, but now my hate,
Refusing wealth, God send thee woe,
Repentance now will come too late,
That tongue that did protest my faith,
Shall waile thy pride, and wish thy death.
Yea

CANT. XIII.

YEA so I thought, this is the end
Of wandring lust, resembling love,
Wa'st love or lust, that did intend
Such friendlesse force, as you did move ?
Though you may vaunt of happier fate,
I am content with my estate.

I rather chuse a quiet mind,
A conscience cleare from bloudy sinnes,
Then short delights, and therein find
That gnawing worm that never linnen,
Your bitter speeches please me more,
Then all your wealth, and all your store.

I love to live devoid of crime,
Although I begge, although I pine,
These fading joyes for little time,
Imbrace who list, I here resine,
How poore I goe, how meane I fare,
If God be pleas'd, I doe not care.

I rather beare your raging ire,
Although you sweare revengement deepe,
Then yeeld for gaine to lewd desire,
That you might laugh, when I should weepe,
Your lust would like but for a space,
But who could salve my foule disgrace ?
Mine

Mine eares have heard your taunting words,
Of yeelding fooles by you betraid,
Amongst your mates at open bords,
Know st such a wife ? know st such a maid ?

Then must you laugh, then must you winke,
And leave the rest for them to thinke.

Nay yet welfare the happie life,
That need not blush at every view :
Although I be a poore mans wife,
Yet then I'le laugh as well as you,

Then laugh as long, as you thinke best,
My fact shall frame you no such jest.

If I do hap to leape aside,
I must not come to you for aide,
Alas now that you be denide,
You thinke to make me sore afraide ;
Nay watch your worst, I doe not care,
If I offend, pray doe not spare.

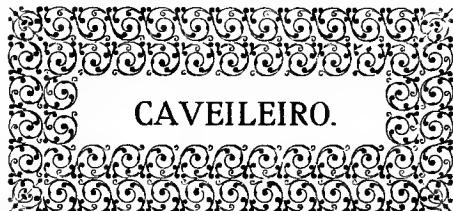

You were my friend, you were but dust,
The Lord is he, whome I doe love,
He hath my hart, in him I trust,
And he doth gard me from above,
I waie not death, I feare not hell,
This is enough, and so farewell.

THE SECOND TEMPTATION of AVISA after her marriage by Ruffians, Roysters, young Gentlemen, and lustie Captaines, which all shee quickly cuts off.

CANT. XIII.

OME lustie wench,
I like thy lookes,
And such a pleasant
looke I love,
Thine eyes are like to bayted hookes,
That force the hungrie fish to move,
Where nature granteth
such a face,
I need not doubt to purchase grace.

I doubt not but thy inward thought,
Doth yeeld as fast as doth thine eye ;
A love in me hath fancie wrought,
Which worke you can not well denye :
From love you can not me refraine,
I seeke but this, love me againe.

And

And so thou dost, I know it well,
I knew it by thy side-cast glance,
Can hart from outward looke rebell ?
Which yeaster night I spide by chance ;
Thy love (sweete hart) shall not be lost,
How deare a price so ever it cost.

Aske what thou wilt, thou know'st my mind,
Appoint the place, and I will come,
Appoint the time, and thou shalt find,
Thou canst not fare so well at home,
Few words suffice, where harts consent,
I hope thou know'st, and art content.

Though I a stranger seeme as yet,
And seldome seene, before this day,
Assure thy selfe that thou mayst get,
More knackes by me, then I will say,
Such store of wealth as I will bring,
Shall make thee leape, shal make thee sing.

I must be gone, use no delay,
At six or seven the chance may rise,
Old gamesters know their vantage play,
And when t'is best to cast the dice,
Leave ope your poynt, take up your man,
And mine shall quickly enter than.

CANT. XV.

What

Willowie

WHAT now? what newes? new warres in hand?
More trumpets blowne of fond conceites?
More banners spread of follies band?
New Captaines coyning new deceites?
Ah woe is me, new campes are pla'st,
Whereas I thought all daungers past.

O wretched soule, what face have I,
That can not looke, but some misdeame?
What sprite doth lurke within mine eye,
That kendles thoughts so much uncleane?
O lucklesse fewture never blest,
That sow'st the seedes of such unrest.

What wandring fits are these that move
Your hart, inrage with every glance;
That judge a woman straight in love,
That welds her eye aside by chance,
If this your hope, by fancie wrought,
You hope on that I never thought.

If nature give me such a looke,
Which seemes at first unchast or ill,
Yet shall it prove no bayted hooke,
To draw your lust to wanton will,
My face and will doe not agree,
Which you in time (perhaps) may see.

If smiling cheare and friendly words,
If pleasant talke such thoughts procure,
Yet know my hart, no will afords,
To scratching kites, to cast the lure,
If milde behavior thus offend,
I will assaie this fault to mend.

You

You plant your hope upon the sand,
That build on womens words, or smiles ;
For when you thinke your selfe to stand
In greatest grace, they prove but wyles,
When fixt you thinke on surest ground,
Then fardest off they will be found.

CANT. XVI.

YOU speake of love, you talke of cost,
Is't filthy love your worship meanes ?
Assure your selfe your labor's lost ;
Bestow your cost among your queanes,
You left not here, nor here shall find,
Such mates as match your beastly mind.

You must again to Coleman hedge,
For there be some that looke for gaine,
They will bestow the French mans badge,
In lew of all your cost and paine,
But Sir, it is against my use,
For gaine to make my house a stewes.

What have you seene, what have I doon
That you should judge my mind so light,
That I so quickly might be woon,
Of one that came but yeaster night ?
Of one I wist not whence he came,
Nor what he is, nor what's his name ?
Though

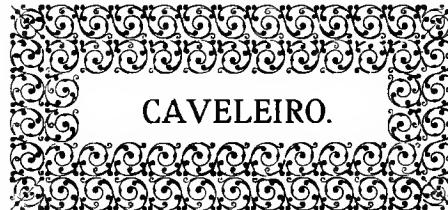

Willowie

Though face doe friendly smile on all
Yet judge me not to be so kind,
To come at every Faulkners call,
Or wave aloft with every wind,
And you that venter thus to try,
Shall find how far you shoote awry.

And if your face might be your judge,
Your wannie cheekes, your shaggie lockes,
Would rather move my mind to grudge,
To feare the piles, or else the pockes :
If you be mov'd, to make amends,
Pray keepe your knackes for other frends.

You may be walking when you list,
Looke ther's the doore, and ther's the way,
I hope you have your market mist,
Your game is lost, for lacke of play,
The point is close, no chance can fall,
That enters there, or ever shall.

CANT. XVII.

CAVELEIRO.

A right Cave-
leiro.

GODS wo : I thinke you doe but jest,
You can not thus delude my hope :
But yet perhaps you thinke it best,
At first to give but little scope :
At first assault you must retire,
And then be forst to yeeld desire.

You

You thinke, that I would judge you bad,
If you should yeeld at first assaie,
And you may thinke me worse then mad,
If on[e] repulse send me awaie,
 You thinke you doe your credit wrong,
 Except you keepe your sutors long.

But I that know the wonted guise,
Of such as live in such a place,
Old dame experience makes me wise,
To know your meaning by your face,
 For most of them, that seeme so chast,
 Denie at first, and take at last.

This painted sheth, may please some foole,
That can not see the rustie knife :
But I have bin too long at schooles,
To think you of so pure a life,
 The time and place will not permit,
 That you can long, here spot-lesse sit.

And therefore wench, be not so strange,
To grant me that, which others have,
I know that women love to change,
Tis but deceite, to seeme so grave,
 I never have that women tri'd,
 Of whome as yet I was deni'd.

Your godly zeale doth breed my trust,
Your anger makes me hope the more ;
For they are often found the worst,
That of their conscience make such store,
 In vaine to blush, or looke aside,
 A flat repulse, I can not bide.

Thou

CANT. XVIII.

AVISA.

THOU wicked wretch, what dost not thinke
There is a God that doth behold
This sinnefull waies, this Sodom's sinke ?
O wretched earth that art so bold,
To jest at God, and at his word,
Looke for his just revenging sword.

1. Cor. 5.

Saint Paul commands us not to eate,
With him that leads a wicked life ;
Or shall be found to lie in waite,
To seek to spoyle his neighbours wife,
Such wicked soules God doth forsake,
And dings them downe to fierie lake.

A young man was stri-ken blind for looking dishonestly upon a godly woman.

The Locren-ses used to put out both the eyes of the adulterers.

The law Julia in Rome put adulterers to the sword.

The Arabians
doe the like.

A brain-sicke youth was striken blind,
That sent his greedie eye to view,
A godly wench, with godlesse mind,
That paine might spring, whence pleasures grew,
Remember friend, forget not this,
And see you looke no more amisse.

O Julia flower of thy time,
Where is thy law, where is thy word,
That did condemne the wedlocke crime,
To present death, with bloody sword ?

The shining of this percing edge,
Would daunt the force of filthy rage.

Though

Though shamelesse Callets may be found ;
That Soyle them selves in common field ;
And can carire the whoores rebound,
To straine at first, and after yeeld :
 Yet here are none of Creseds kind,
 In whome you shall such fleeting find.

The time and place may not condemne,
The mind to vice that doth not sway,
But they that vertue doe condemne,
By time and place, are led astray,
 This place doth hold on at this time,
 That will not yeeld to bloudy crime.

You thinke that others have possest
The place that you so lewdly crave,
Wherein you plainlye have confest,
Your selfe to be a jealous knave,
 The rose unblusht hath yet no staine,
 Nor ever shall, while I remaine.

CANT. XIX.

ME thinkes I heare a sober Fox,
 Stand preaching to the gagling Geese ;
And shewes them out a painted box,
And bids them all beware of cheese,
 Your painted box, and goodly preach,
 I see doth hold a foxly reach.

Perchance

Willowie

Perchance you be no common card,
But love the daintie diamonds place,
The ten, the knave, may be your gard,
Yet onely you, are still the ace,
Contented close in packe to lie,
But open dealing you defie.

Well I confesse, I did offend,
To rush so headlong to the marke ;
Yet give me leave this fault to mend,
And crave your pardon in the darke,
Your credits fame I will not spill,
But come as secret as you will.

Nay her's my hand, my faith I give,
My tongue my fact shall not reveale,
To earthly creature while I live ;
Because you love a secret deale,
And where I come, I still will say,
She would not yeeld, but said me nay.

So shall your credit greater grow,
By my report and passing praise
And they that scant your name doe know,
Your fame on hie, and hie shall raise,
So shall you gaine that you desire,
By granting that, which I require.

To plant a siege, and yet depart,
Before the towne be yeelded quite,
It kils a martiall manly hart,
That can not brooke such high despite,
Then say you yea, or say you no,
I'le scale your wals, before I go.

AVISA.

A FINE device, and well contriv'd,
Brave Golde upon a bitter pill ;
No marvaile well though you have thriv'd,
That so can decke, that so can dill ;
Your quaintish quirkes can want no mate ;
But here I wis, you come too late.

It's ill to hault before the lame,
Or watch the bird that can not sleepe,
Your new found trickes are out of frame,
The fox will laugh, when Asses weepe ;
Sweare what you list, say what you will,
Before you speake, I knew your skill.

Your secret dealing will not hold,
To force me trie, or make me trust
Your blind devises are too old,
Your broken blade hath got the rust,
You need not lie, but truely say,
She would not yeeld to wanton play.

Your tongue shall spare to spread my fame,
I list not buy too deare a sound,
Your greatest praise would breed but shame,
Report of me as you have found,
Though you be loth to blow retreat,
This mount's too strong for you to get.

The

Willowie

The wisest Captaine now and then,
When that he feeles his foe too strong ;
Retires betime to save his men,
That grow but weake, if seige be long ;
From this assault you may retire,
You shall not reach, that you require.

I hate to feede you with delaies,
As others doe, that meane to yeeld,
You spend in vaine your strong assaies,
To win the town, or gaine the feeld ;
No Captaine did, nor ever shall,
Set ladder here, to skale the wall.

CANT. XXI.

CAVELEIRO.

HAD I knowne this when I began,
You would have usde me as you say,
I would have take you napping than,
And give you leave to say me nay,
I little thought to find you so :
I never dreamt, you would say no.

Such selfe like wench I never met,
Great cause have I thus hard to crave it,
If ever man have had it yet,

I sworen have, that I will have it.
If thou didst never give consent,
I must perforce, be then content.

If thou wilt sweare, that thou hast knowne,
In carnall act, no other man :
But onely one, and he thine owne,
Since man and wife you first began,
I'le leave my sute, and sweare it trew,
Thy like in deed, I never knew.

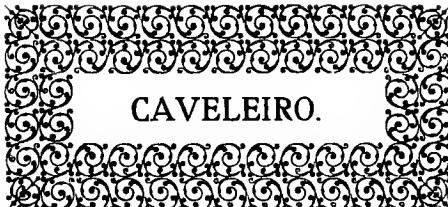

CANT. XXII.

I TOLD you first what you should find,
Although you thought I did but jest.
And selfe affection made you blind,
To seeke the thing, I most detest ;
Besides his host, who takes the paine,
To recken first, must count againe.

Your rash swore oth you must repent,
You must beware of headlong vowes ;
Excepting him, whome free consent,
By wedlocke words, hath made my spouse,
From others yet I am as free,
As they this night, that boreen bee.

Well

CAVELEIRO.

WELL give me then a cup of wine,
As thou art his, would thou wert mine.

A VISA.

HAVE t'ye good-lucke, tell them that gave
You this advice, what speede you have.

Farewell.

The

The third trial ; wherein are expressed the long passionate, and constant affections of the close and wary sutor, which by signes, by sighes, by letters, by private messengers, by Jewels, Rings, Golde, divers gifts, and by a long continued course of courtesie, at length prevailth with many both maides and wives if they be not garded wunderfully with a better spirite then their owne, which all are here finely daunted, and mildly over throwne, by the constant aunsweres, and chast replies of Avisa.

CANT. XXIII.

D. B. A French man.

S flaming flakes too closely pent,
With smothering smoke,
in narrow vault,
Each hole doth trie,
to get a vent,
And force by forces,
fierce assault,
With ratling rage,
doth rumbling rave,
Till flame and smoke free passage have.

So

Willowie

So I (my deare) have smothered long,
Within my hart a sparkling flame,
Whose rebell rage is grown so strong,
That hope is past to quell the same,
Except the stone, that strake the fire,
With water quench this hote desire.

The glauncing speare, that made the wound,
Which ranckling thus, hath bred my paine,
Must pearcing slide with fresh rebound,
And wound, with wound, recure againe,
That flooting eye that pearst my hart,
Must yeeld to salve my curelesse smart.

I striv'd, but striv'd against the streme,
To daunt the qualmes of fond desire,
The more their course I did restraine,
More strong and strong they did retire,
Bare need doth force me now to runne,
To seeke my helpe, where hurt begunne.

Thy present state wants present aid,
A quick redresse my griefe requires,
Let not the meanes be long delaide,
That yeelds us both our harts desires,
If you will ease my pensive hart,
I'le find a salve to heale your smart.

I am no common gameling mate,
That lift to bowle in every plaine,
But (wench) consider both our state,
The time is now, for both to gaine,
From daungerous bands I set you free,
If you wil yeeld to comfort mee.

Your

CANT. XXIII.

YOUR fierie flame, your secret smart,
That inward frets with pining griefe,
Your hollow sighes, your hevie hart,
Methinks might quickly find reliefe,
If once the certaine cause were knowne,
From whence these hard effects have growne.

It little boots to shew your sore,
To her that wants all Phisicke skill,
But tell it them, that have in store,
Such oyles as creeping cankers kill,
I would be glad, to doe my best,
If I had skill, to give you rest.

Take heede, let not your griefe remaine,
Till helpes doe faile, and hope be past,
For such as first refus'd some paine,
A double paine have felt at last,
A little sparke, not quencht be time,
To hideous flames will quickly clime.

If godly sorrow for your sin,
Be chiefest cause, why you lament,
If giltie conscience doe begin,
To draw you truely to repent,
A joyfull end must needs redound,
To happie griefe so seldome found.

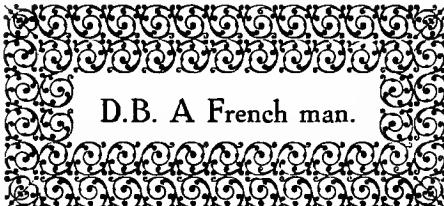

To

Willowie

To strive all wicked lusts to quell,
Which often sort to dolefull end,
I joye to heare you meane so well,
And what you want, the Lord will send :
 But if you yeeld to wanton will,
 God will depart, and leave you still.

Your pleasant aide with sweete supply,
My present state, that might amend,
If honest love be ment thereby,
I shall be glad of such a frend,
 But if you love, as I suspect,
 Your love and you, I both reject.

CANT. XXV.

WHAT you suspect, I can not tell,
 What I doe meane, you may perceive,
My workes shall shew, I wish you well,
If well ment love you list receive,
 I have beene long in secret mind,
 And would be still your secret frind.

My love should breed you no disgrace,
None should perceive our secret plaie,
We would observe both time and place,
That none our dealings should bewraie,
 Be it my fortune, or my fault,
 Love makes me venter this assault.

You

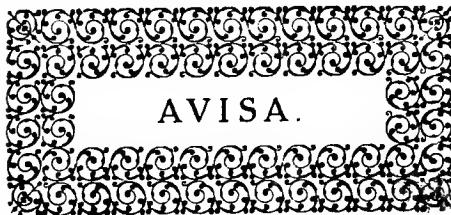

You mistresse of my doubtfull chance,
You Prince of this my soules desire,
That lulls my fancie in a trance,
The marke whereto my hopes aspire,
 You see the sore, whence springs my grieve,
 You weld the sterne of my relief.

The gravest men of former time,
That liv'd with fame, and happie life,
Have thought it none, or pettie crime,
To love a friend besides their wife,
 Then sith my wife you can not be,
 As dearest friend accompt of me.

You talke of sinne, and who doth live,
Whose dayly steps slide not awrie ?
But too precise, doth deadly grieve,
The hart that yeelds not yet to die,
 When age drawes on, and youth is past,
 Then let us thinke of this at last.

The Lord did love King David well,
Although he had more wives then one ;
King Solomon that did excell,
For wealth and wit, yet he alone,
 A thousand wives and friends possest,
 Yet did he thrive, yet was he blest.

CANT. XXVI.

Willarie

O MIGHTIE Lord, that guides the Spheare ;
Defend me by thy mightie will,
From just reproch, from shame and feare,
Of such as seeke my soule to spill,
Let not their counsell (Lord) prevaile,
To force my hart to yeeld or quaile.

How frames it with your sober lookes,
To shroud such bent of lewd conceites,
What hope hath pla'st me in your bookees,
That files me fit, for such deceites ?

I hope that time hath made you see,
No cause that breeds these thoughts in mee.

Your fervent love is filthy lust,
And therefore leave to talk of love,
Your truth is treason under trust,
A Kite in shape of hertlesse Dove,
You offer more then friendship wold,
To give us brasse in steed of gold.

Such secret friends to open foes,
Do often change with every wind,
Such wandring fits, where follie groes,
Are certaine signes of wavering mind,
A fawning face, and faithlesse hart,
In secret love, breeds open smart.

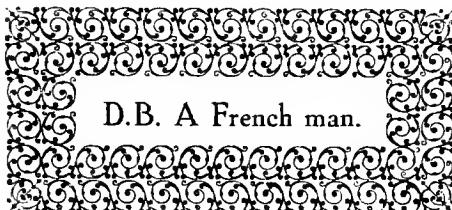

No sinne to breake the wedlocke faith ?
No sinne to swim in Sodomes sinke ?
O sinne the seed and sting of death !
O sinnefull wretch that so doth thinke !

Your gravest men with all their schooles,
That taught you thus, were heathen fooles.
Your

Your lewd examples will not serve,
To frame a vertue from a vice,
When David and his Sonne did swerve,
From lawfull rule, though both were wise,

Yet both were plagu'd, as you may see,
With mightie plagues of each degree.

CANT. XXVII.

D.B. A French man.

FROM whence proceeds this sodaine change ?
From whence this quainte and coye speech ?
Where did you learne to looke so strange ?
What Doctor taught you thus to preach ?
Into my harte it cannot sinke,
That you doe speake, as you doe thinke.

Your smiling face, and glauncing eye,
(That promise grace, and not despite)
With these your words doe not agree,
That seeme to shun your chiefe delight,
But give me leave, I thinke it still,
Your words doe wander from your will.

Of women now the greatest part,
Whose place and age doe so require,
Do chuse a friend, whose faithfull hart,
May quench the flame of secret fire,
Now if your liking be not pla'st,
I know you will chuse one at last.

Then

Willowie

Then chusing one, let me be he,
If so our hidden fancies frame,
Because you are the onely she,
That first inrag'd my fancies flame,
If first you graunt me this good will,
My hart is yours, and shall be still.

I have a Farme that fell of late,
Woorth fortie pounds, at yearely rent,
That will I give to mend your state,
And prove my love is truely ment.
Let not my sute be flat denide,
And what you want, shall be supplide.

Our long acquaintance makes me bold ;
To shew my greife, to ease my mind,
For new found friends, change not the old,
The like perhaps you shall not find,
Be not too rash, take good advice ;
Your hap is good, if you be wise.

CANT. XXVIII.

MY hap is hard, and over bad,
To be misdeemd of every man ;
That thinke me quickly to be had,
That see me pleasant now and than :
Yet would I not be much a griev'd,
If you alone were thus deceiv'd.

But

But you alone are not deceiv'd,
With tising baytes of pleasant view,
But many others have believ'd,
And tride the same, as well as you,
 But they repent their folly past,
 And so will you, I hope at last.

You seeme, as though you lately came
From London, from some bawdie sell,
Where you have met some wanton dame,
That knowes the trickes of whoores so well,
 Know you some wives, use more then one ?
 Go backe to them, for here are none.

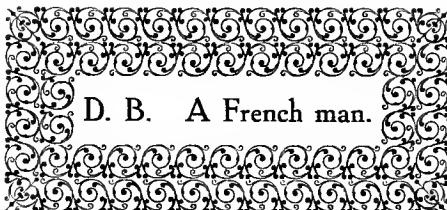

For here are none, that list to chuse,
A novell chance, where old remaine,
My choice is past, and I refuse,
While this doth last, to chuse againe,
 While one doth live, I will no more,
 Although I begge from dore to dore.

Bestow your farmes among your frinds,
Your fortie pounds can not provoke,
The settled hart, whom vertue binds,
To trust the traines of hidden hooke,
 The labor's lost that you indure.
 To gorged Hauke, to cast the lure.

If lust had led me to the spoyle,
And wicked will, to wanton change,
Your betters that have had the foyle,
Had caus'd me long ere this to range,
 But they have left, for they did see,
 How far they were mistake of mee.

Mistake

CANT. XXIX.

MISTAKE indeed, if this be true,
If youth can yeeld to favours foe ;
If wisdome spring, where fancie grew ;
But sure I thinke it is not so :
Let faithfull meaning purchase trust,
That likes for love, and not for lust.

Although you sweare, you will not yeeld,
Although my death you should intend,
Yet will I not forsake the field,
But still remaine your constant frend,
Say what you list, flie where you will,
I am your thrall, to save or spill.

You may command me out of sight,
As one that shall no favour find,
But though my body take his flight,
Yet shall my hart remaine behind,
That shall your guilty conscience tell,
You have not us'd his master well.

His masters love he shall repeate,
And watch his turne to purchase grace,
His secret eye shall lie in waite ;
Where any other gaine the place :
When we ech others can not see,
My hart shall make you thinke of me.

To

To force a fancie, where is none,
Tis but in vaine, it will not hold,
But where it growes it selfe alone,
A little favour makes it bold,
Till fancie frame your free consent,
I must perforce, be needs content.

Though I depart with heavie cheare,
As having lost, or left my hart,
With one whose love, I held too deare,
That now can smile, when others smart,
Yet let your prisoner mercy see,
Least you in time a prisoner bee.

CANT. XXX.

IT makes me smile to see the bent,
Of wandring minds with folly fed,
How fine they faine, how faire they paint,
To bring a loving foole to bed ;
They will be dead, except they have,
Whatso (forsooth) their fancie crave.

If you did seeke, as you pretend,
Not friendlesse lust, but friendly love,
Your tongue and speeches would not lend,
Such lawlesse actions, so to move,
But you can wake, although you winke,
And sweare the thing, you never thinke.

 The faster doth my love remaine.

CANT. XXXIII.

I HAVE to say, yet cannot speake,
The thing that I would gladly say,
My hart is strong, though tong be weake,
Yet will I speake it, as I may.
And if I speake not as I ought,
Blame but the error of my thought,

And if I thinke not as I should,
Blame love that bad me so to thinke ;
And if I say not what I would,
Tis modest shame, that makes me shrinke,
For sure their love is very small,
That can at first expresse it all.

Forgive my blush, if I do blush,
You are the first I ever tride,
And last whose conscience I will crush,
If now at first I be denide,
I must be plaine, then give me leave,
I cannot flatter nor deceive.

You

You know that Marchaunts ride for gaine,
As chiefe foundations of their state,
You see that we refuse no paine,
To rise betime, and travell late,
But farre from home, this is the spite,
We want sometimes our chiefe delite.

I am no Saint, I must confesse,
But naturde like to other men,
My meaning you may quickly guesse,
I love a woman now and then,

And yet it is my common use,
To take advise, before I chuse.

I oft have seene the Western part,
And therein many a pretie elfe,
But found not any in my hart,
I like so well as of your selfe ;
And if you like no worse of mee,
We may perhaps in time agree.

CANT. XXXV.

WHEN first you did request to talke
With me alone a little space,
When first I did consent to walke
With you alone within this place,
From this your sage, and sober cheare,
I thought some grave advise to heare.

Some

Some say that womens faces faine
A modest shew, from wanton hart ;
But give me leave, I see it plaine,
That men can play a duble part,

I could not dreame, that I should find
In lustlesse shew, such lustfull mind.

You make as though you would not speake,
As unacquainted yet with love,
As though your mind you could not breake,
Nor how these secret matters move,

You blush to speake, Alas the blush,
Yet this is all not worth a rush.

Such slie conceites are out of joynt,
So foule within, so faire without,
Not worth in prooфе a threden poynt :
But now to put you out of doubt,

Your thought is far deceiv'd of mee,
As you in time shall plainly see.

If you had known my former life,
With spotlesse fame that I have held,
How first a maide and then a wife,
These youthly sutes I have repeld,

You would (I hope) correct your rate,
That judge me thus a common mate.

Whome you have seene, I doe not care,
Nor reck not what you did request,
I am content this flout to beare,
In that you say, you like me best,

And if you wish that you agree,
Correct your wrong conceite of mee.

Like stremes of Milke, and seemes at first,
Extreamely colde, all heate to shunne,
But stay awhile, and quench your thirst,
Such vehement heate there will arise,
As greater heate none may devise.

These strange effects I find inrold,
Within this place, since my returne,
My first affections were but cold,
But now I feele them fiercely burne,
The more you make such strange retire,
The more you draw my new desire.

CANT. XXXVIII.

NAY then farewell, if this be so,
If you be of the purer stampe,
Gainst wind and tide I can not roe,
I have no oyle to feede that lampe,
Be not too rash, denie not flat,
For you refuse, you know not what.

But rather take a farther day,
For farther triall of my faith,
And rather make some wise delay,
To see and take some farther breath :
He may too rashly be denide,
Whose faithfull hart was never tride.

And though I be by Jury cast,
Yet let me live a while in hope,
And though I be condemnde at last,
Yet let my fancie have some scope,
And though the body flie away,
Yet let me with the shadow play.

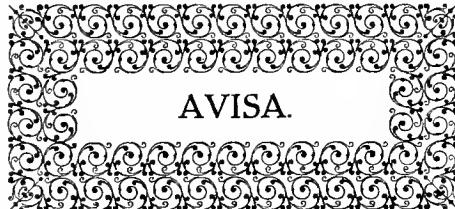

Will you receive, if I doe send
A token of my secret love ?
And stay untill you see the end
Of these effects, that fancie move ?
Grant this, and this shall salve my sore,
Although you never grant me more.

And

And thus at first let this suffise,
Inquire of me, and take the vewe
Of myne estate, with good advise,
And I will do the like by you ;
And as you like, so frame your love,
But passe no promise till you prove.

This have I said to shew my bent,
But no way spoken to offend,
And though my love cannot relent,
Yet passed errors will I mend,
Keepe close the Tenor of our talke,
And say, we did for pleasure walke.

And most delude the dazed sight,
When up they turne their folded sleeve,
With bared armes to woorke their slight,
When sharpe-set Foxe begins to preach,
Let goslings keepe without his reach.

And will you have me set a day,
To feede your hope with vaine delayes ?
Well, I will doo as you do say,
And posse you up with fainting stayes,
That day shall breake my plighted faith,
That drawes my last and gasping breath.

If this you hope, you shall not misse,
But shall obtaine your hopes desire,
If other hope you do retaine,
Your labor's lost, your hope is vaine.

The child that playes with sharped tooles,
Doth hurt himselfe for want of wit,
And they may well be counted fooles,
That wrastle neere a dangerous pit :
Your loose desire doth hope for that,
Which I must needes deny you flat.

Send mee no tokens of your lust,
Such gifts I list not to receive,
Such guiles shall never make me trust,
Such broad-layde baytes cannot deceive,
For they to yeeld do then prepare,
That grant to take such proffred ware.

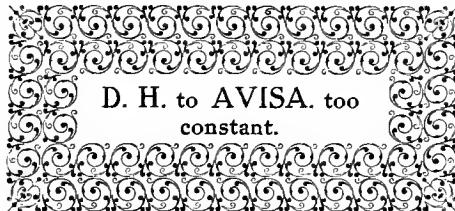

If this be it you have to say,
You know my mynd which cannot change,
I must be gon, I cannot stay,
No fond delight can make me range,
And for a farewell, this I sweare,

WHYL'ST erst I had my libertie,
To range the woodes where fancy list,
The cause of all my miserie,
By heedlesse hast my way I mist,
Untill I found within a plaine,
A Christall Well, where Nymphes remaine.

As weary of this wild-goose race,
That led askance, I know not where,
I chose at length a shadow place,
To take the cold and pleasant ayre,
But from the brinke of that same well,
I saw my heaven, or els my hell.

I saw a byrde from joyning grove,
That soaring came with comely grace,
The Lillie and Vermillion strove,
In mayden-like and lovely face,
With seemely armes in steed of winges,
No clawes, but fingers set with ringes.

O that's the cause of all my smart,
And breeder of this endlesse paine,
The thing I sought not, there I find,
And lost the freedome of my mind.*

*While on her eies, my eies did hang,
From rolling eie there sprang a glance
And therewith heard a sodayne clang,
That strake me in a deadly trance,
But wak't I sawe blind Cupids craft,
And in my hart the golden shaft.*

Her laughte lookes she cast awry,
And when my folly she espy'd,
She laught to see my misery :
Away she soares, and from my sight,
She smiling takes her parting flight.*

Would God your Spill were full of threed,
That might releeve my wretched state,
I will forget the wronges are past,
So you will chuse me at the last.*

THIS is inough: now I have done
I thinke indeed you do not faine,
As others have, that have beene wonne
In shorter space, with lesser paine,
And sith you will not yeeld in deed
To these my wordes, yet take good heed.

No stormie blastes can make it quaile,
Your constant mind a frend hath found
Whose honest love shall never faile,
A faithfull frend in honest love,
Whom lewd affections shall not move.*

*If you this wanton fault forgive,
No time in me shall ever find
Such lewd attemptes, while I do live,
Now that I know your constant mynd,
My pen doth write, my hart hath swore
My toungue such speech shall use no more.*

*A thousand tymes I love you more,
Then if I had my purpose wonne,
Of common love I make no store,
But leave it there where I begunne,
What oddes there is, now you may prove,
Twixt wicked lust and honest love.*

*Now grant I pray this last request,
That fraudlesse hart doth frendly send,
That if my fayth deserve it best,
Accept me for your honest frend :
And if I seeke your spoile, or shame,
Then raze me out, and blot my name.*

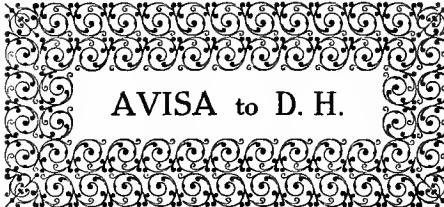

*And if I shall this favour find,
Then weare this ring, though you be loth,
As token of my simple mynd,

Henrico Willlobego. Italo-Hispalensis.

H. W. being sodenly affected with the contagion of a fantastical fit, at the first sight of A, pyneth a while in secret grieve, at length not able any longer to indure the burning heate of so fervent a humour, bewrayeth the secresy of his disease unto his familiar frend W. S. who not long before had tryed the courtesy tesy of the like passion, and was now newly recovered of the like infection ; yet finding his frend let bloud in the same vaine, he took pleasure for a tyme to see him bleed, & in sted of stopping the issue, he inlargeth the wound, with the sharpe rasor of a willing conceit, perswading him that he thought it a matter very easy to be compassed, & no doubt with payne, diligence & some cost in tyme to be obtayned. Thus this miserable comforter comforting his frend with an impossibilitie, eyther for that he now would secretly laugh at his frends folly, that had given occasion not long before unto others to laugh at his owne, or because he would see whether an other could play his part better then himselfe, & in vewing a far off the course of this loving Comedy, he determined to see whether it would sort to a happier end for this new actor, then it did for the old player. But at length this Comedy was like to have growen to a Tragedy, by the weake and feeble estate that H.W. was brought unto, by a desperate vewe of an impossibility of obtaining his purpose, til Time & Necessity, being his best Phisitions brought him a plaster, if not to heale, yet in part to ease his maladye. In all which discourse is lively represented the unrewly rage of unbrydeled fancy, having the raines to rove at liberty, with the dyvers & sundry changes of affections & temptations, which Will, set loose from Reason, can devise, &c.

H.W.

H. W.

WHAT sodaine chance or change is this,
That doth bereave my quyet rest ?
What surly cloud eclipsst my blisse,
What sprite doth rage within my brest ?
Such fainty qualmes I never found,
Till first I saw this westerne ground.

Can change of ayre complexions change,
And strike the sences out of frame ?
Though this be true, yet this is strange,
Sith I so lately hither came :
And yet in body cannot find
So great a change as in my mynd.

My lustlesse limmes do pyne away,
Because my heart is dead within,
All lively heat I feele decay,
And deadly cold his roome doth win,
My humors all are out of frame,
I frize amid'st the burning flame.

I have the feaver Ethicke right,
I burne within, consume without,
And having melted all my might,
Then followes death, without all doubt :
O fearefull foole, that know my greefe,
Yet sew and seeke for no releefe.

I know the tyme, I know the place,
Both when and where my eye did vew
That novell shape, that frendly face,
That so doth make my hart to rew,
 O happy tyme if she inclyne,
 If not, O wourth theese lucklesse eyne.

I love the seat where she did sit,
I kisse the grasse, where she did tread,
Me thinkes I see that face as yet,
And eye, that all these turmoyles breed,
 I envie that this seat, this ground,
 Such frendly grace and favour found.

I dream't of late, God grant that dreame
Protend my good, that she did meete
Me in this greene by yonder streame,
And smyling did me frendly greete :
 Where wandring dreames be just or
 I mind to try ere it be long. (wrong,

But yonder comes my faythfull frend,

Of this your love, or rather lust,
Or whence this new affection groes
Which though untryde, yet we must trust,
Dry reeds that quickly yeeld to burne,
Soone out to flamelesse cinders turne.

Such raging love in rangling mates,
Is quickly found, and sooner lost ;
Such deepe deceate in all estates,
That spares no care, no payne nor cost ;
With flattering tongues, & golden giftes,
To dryve poore women to their shiftes.

Examine well, & you shall see
Your truthlesse treason, tearmed love,
What cause have you to fancy mee,
That never yet had tyme to prove,
What I have beene, nor what I am,
Where worthie love, or rather shame ?

This

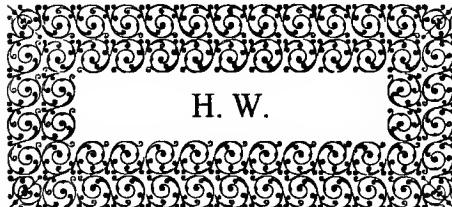

Willowie

This love that you to straungers bare,
Is like to headstrong horse and mule,
That ful-fed nytes on every mare,
Whose lust outleapes the lawfull rule,
For here is seene your constant love,
Whome strange aspects so quickly move.

Besides you know I am a wife,
Not free, but bound by plighted oath,
Can love remaine, where filthy life
Hath staind the soile, where vertue gro' th ?
Can love indure, where faith is fled ?
Can Roses spring, whose roote is dead ?

True love is constant in her choise,
But if I yeeld to chuse againe,
Then may you say with open voice,
This is her use, this is her vaine,
She yeelds to all : how can you than
Love her that yeeldes to every man ?

CANT. LIII.

IF fear and sorrow sharpe the wit,
And tip the tongue with sweeter grace,
Then will & style, must finely fit,
To paint my grieve, and waile my case,
Sith my true love is counted lust :
And hope is ractk in spitefull dust.

The

The cause that made me love so soone,
And feedes my mind with inward smart,
Springes not from Starres, nor yet the Moone,
But closly lies in secret hart :

And if you aske, I can not tell,
Nor why, nor how, this hap befell.

If birth or beautie could have wrought,
In lustlesse hart this loves effect,
Some fairer farre my love have sought,
Whose loving lookes I did reject.

If now I yeeld without assault,
Count this my fortune or my fault.

You are a wife, and you have swore,
You will be true. Yet what of this ?
Did never wife play false before,
Nor for her pleasure strike amis ?
Will you alone be constant still,
When none are chaste, nor ever will ?

A man or women first may chuse
The love that they may after loth ;
W[h]o can denie but such may use
A second choice, to pleasure both ?
No fault to change the old for new ;
So to the second they be trew.

Your husband is a worthlesse thing,
That no way can content your mind,
That no way can that pleasure bring,
Your flowring yeaeres desire to find :
This I will count my chiefest blisse,
If I obtaine, that others misse.

Thers

Willowie.

Ther's nothing gotten to be coye,
The purer stampe you must detest,
Now is your time of greatest joye,
Then love the friend that loves you best,
 This I will count my chiefest blisse
 If I obtaine that others misse.

CANT. LIII.

THAT others misse, you would obtaine,
 And want of this doth make you sad,
I sorrow that you take such paine,
To seeke for that, will not be had,
 Your filed skill the power doth want,
 Within this plot such trees to plant.

Though some there be, that have done ill,
And for their fancie broke their faith :
Yet doe not thinke that others will,
That feare of shame more then of death :
 A spotlesse name is more to me,
 Then wealth, then friends, then life can be.

Are all unconstant, all unsound ?
Will none performe their sworen vow ?
Yet shall you say, that you have found,
A chast, and constant wife I trow :
 And you shall see, when all is doone,
 Where all will yeeld, and all be woone.

Though

Though you have bin at common schoole,
And enterd plaints in common place ;
Yet you wil prove your selfe a foole,
To judge all women void of grace :

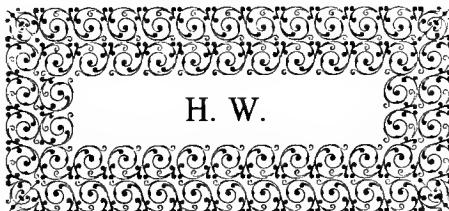

I doubt not but you will be brought,
Soone to repent this wicked thought.

Your second change let them alow,
That list mislike their primer choice,
I lov'd him first, I love him now,
To whom I gave my yeelding voice,
My faith and love, I will not give
To mortall man, while he doth live.

What love is this, that bids me hate,
The man whom nature bids me love ?
What love is this, that sets debate,
Twixt man and wife ? but here I prove :

Though sm [o] othed words seeme very kind,
Yet all proceed from devilish mind.

CANT. LV.

FROM devilish mind ? well wanton well,
You thinke your strength is very sure,
You thinke all women to excell,
And all temptations to indure.

These glorious braggs shew but your pride :
For all will yeeld, if they be tride.

Willowie

You are (I hope) as others bee,
A woman made of flesh and blood,
Amongst them all, will you goe free,
When all are ill, will you be good ?

Assure your selfe, I do not faine,
Requite my love with love againe.

Let me be hangd if you be such,
As you pretend in outward shoe ;
Yet I commend your wisdome much,
Which mov'd me first to love you so :

Where men no outward shewes detect,
Suspicious minds can nil suspect.

But to the matter ; tell me true,
Where you your fancie can incline,
To yeeld your love, for which I sue,
As fortune hath intangled mine :

For well I know, it's nothing good,
To strive against the raging flood.

What you mislike, I will amend,
If yeares I want, why I will stay,
My goods and life here I will spend,
And helpe you still in what I may :

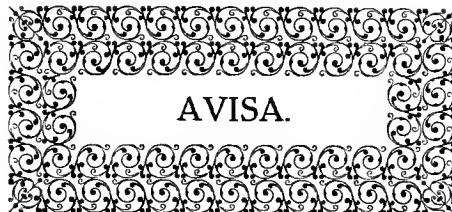

For though I seeme a headlong youth,
Let time be triall of my truth.

Your name by me shall not be crackt,
But let this tongue from out my jawes,
Be rent, and bones to peeces rackt,
If I your secrets doe disclose,

Take good advisement what you say,
This is my good, or dismal day.

CANT.

CANT. LVI.

YES, so I will, you may be bold,
Nor will I use such strange delaies ;
But that you shall be quickly told,
How you shall frame your wandring waies :
If you will follow mine advise,
Doubt not but you shall soone be wise.

To love, excepting honest love,
I can not yeeld, assure you mind ;
Then leave this frutelesse sute to move,
Least like to Sysyphus you find,
With endlesse labour, gainelesse paine,
To role the stone that turnes againe.

You want no yeares, but rather wit,
And dew forecast in that you seeke,
To make your choice that best may fit,
And this is most that I mislike ;
If you be free, live where you list,
But still beware of, Had I wist.

Serve God, and call to him for grace,
That he may stay your slipperie slides,
From treading out that sinfull trace,
That leades where endlesse sorrowe bides,
Thus shall you wisely guide your feete ;
Though youth and wisedome seldom meete

And

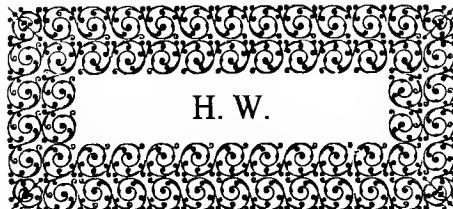

Willowie

And if you find, you have no gift,
To live a chaste and matelesse life,
Yet feare to use unlawfull shift,
But marry with some honest wife,
With whom you may contented live,
And wandring mind from folly drive.

*Fuggi quel pi-acer presente che ti da dolor
futuro.*

Fly present pleasure that doth bring
Insuing sorrow, paine and grieve ;
Of death beware the poys ned sting,
That hatcheth horror sance relieve,
Take this of me, and in the end
I shall be thought your chiefest frend.

CANT. LVII.

IF then the welspring of my joy,
A floud of woe, in fine become,
If love engender loves annoy,
Then farewell life, my glasse is runne ;
If you thus constant still remaine ;
Then must I die, or live in paine.

Thrice happie they, whose joyned harts,
United wils have linckt in one,
Whose eies discerne the due desarts,
The griping grieve, and grievous grone,
That faith doth breed in settled mind,
As fancies are by fates inclined.

And

And shall I role the restlesse stone ?
And must I prove the endlesse paine ?
In curelesse care shall I alone,
Consume with griefe, that yeelds me gaine ?
If so I curse these eies of mine,
That first beheld that face of thine.

Your will must with my woe dispence,
Your face the founder of my smart,
That pleasant looke fram'd this offence,
These thrilling gripes that gall my hart,
Sith you this wound, and hurt did give,
You must consent to yeeld relieve.

How can I cease, while fancie guides
The restlesse raines of my desire ?
Can reason rule, where folly bides ?
Can wit inthrald to will retire ?
I little thought I should have mist,
I never feard of, Had I wist.

Let old men pray, let setled heads
Inthrall their necks to wedlocke band,
Shrend golden gyves, who ever weds
With pleasant paine, shall take in hand :
But I will be your faithful frend,
If health by hope you yeeld to send.

CANT.

CANT. LVIII.

WHAT filthy folly, raging lust,
What beastly blindnes fancy breedes ?
As though the Lord had not accurst,
With vengeance due, the sinfull deeds ?
Though vaine-led youth with pleasure swell,
Yet marke these words that I shall tell.

Gen. 38. 24.
Whoremoungers burnt.

Who so with filthy pleasure burnes ;
His sinfull flesh with fierie flakes
Must be consum'd ; whose soule returnes
To endlesse paine in burning lakes.
You seeme by this, to wish me well,
To teach me tread the path to hell.

Call you this (Love) that bringeth sin,
And sowes the seedes of heavie cheere ?
If this be love, I pray begin,
To hate the thing I love so deere ;
I love no love of such a rate,
Nor fancie that, which God doth hate.

Prover. 5 3

But what saith he that long had tryde
Of harlots all the wanton flights ;
Beware least that your hart be tyde,
To fond affects by wanton sights :
Their wandering eies, and wanton lookes,
Catch fooles as fish, with painted hookes.

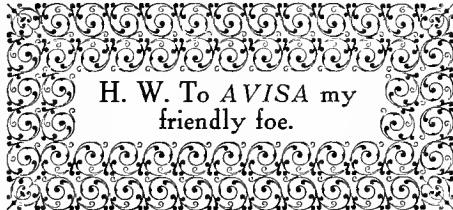

Their

Their lippes with oyle and honie flow,
Their tonges are fraught with flattering guile ;
Amidst these joyes great sorrowes grow ;
For pleasures flourish but a while,
Their feete to death, their steps to hell,
Do swiftly slide, that thus do mell.

Then flie this dead and dreadfull love,
This signe of Gods revenging ire ;
Let love of God such lust remove,
And quench the flames of foule desire,
If you will count me for your frend,
You must both workes and words amend.

CANT LIX.

With this bitter reply of Avisa, H. W. being somewhat daunted, yet not altogether whithout hope, went home to his house, and there secretly in a melancolike passion wrote these verses following.

THE busie Gnat about the candle, hovering still doth fly, Sixaine,
The slimie Fish about the bayt, still wavering doth lie,
The fearefull Mouse about the trap doth often try his strength,
Untill both Gnat, and Fish and Mouse, be taken at the length,
Even so unhappy I, do like my greatest baine,
Unlesse you do with speede, release my mortall paine.
The

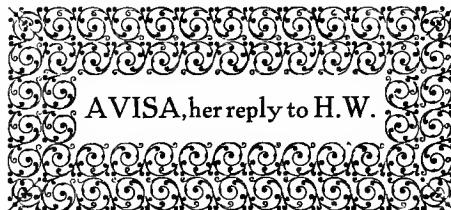

Willowbie

Quatraine. *The light foote hart desires the waters brooke,
The dog most sicke the greenest grasse doth crave,
The wounded wight for surgeon still doth looke,
Untill both hart, and dogge, and wight their medicine have :
But I with grieve th'unhappiest of them all,
Do still delight to be my enemies thrall.*

Deuxaine. *Mine enemie I say, though yet my sweetest frend,
If of my sorrowes I may see some speedie holsome end.*

FINIS. Chi la dura, la Vince.

CANTO LX.

AVISA, her reply to H. W.

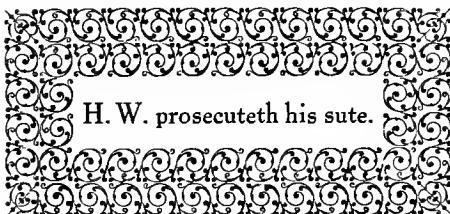

THE busie Gnat for want of wit,
Doth sindge his wings in burning flame,
The Fish with baite will headlong flit,
Till she be choked with the same ;
So you with Gnat and Fish will play,
Till flame and foode worke your decay.

The heedlesse Mouse, that tries the trap,
In hast to reach her harts desire,
Doth quickly find such quainte mishap,
That barres her strength from free retire,
So you will never ceasse to crave,
Till you have lost that now you have.

*The hart, the dogge, the wounded wight,
For water, grasse, and Surgeon call,
Their grieves and cures, are all but light,
But your conceite surpast them all ;
Except you change your wanton mind,
Yon shall no ease, nor comfort find.*

Alway the same
Avisa.

CANT. LXI.

WILL not your laughte stomacke stoupe ?
Will not this selfe conceite come downe ?
As haggard loving mirthlesse coupe,
At frendly lure doth checke and frowne ?
Blame not in this the Faulkners skill,
But blame the Hawkes unbridled will.

Your sharp replies, your frowning cheare,
To absent lines, and present vew,
Doth aie redouble trembling feare,
And griping grieves do still renew,
Your face to me my sole reliefe,
My sight to you your onely grieve.

Willowie

O lucklesse wretch, what hap had I,
To plant my love in such a soile ?
What furie makes me thus relie
On her that seekes my utter spoile ?
O Gods of love, what signe is this,
That in the first, I first should mis ?

And can you thus increase my woe,
And will you thus prolong my paine ?
Canst kill the hart that loves thee so,
Canst quit my love with foule disdaine ?
And if thou canst, woe worth the place,
Where first I saw that flattering face.

And shall my folly prove it trew,
That hastie pleasure doubleth paine,
Shall grieve rebound, where joye[s] grew ?
Of faithfull hart is this the gaine ?
Me thinks for all your grave advise,
(Forgive my thought) you are not wise.

Would God I could restraine my love,
Sith you to love me can not yeeld,
But I alas cannot remove
My fancie, though I die in feeld :
My life doth on your love depend,
My love and life at once must end.

CANT LXII

What

WHAT witlesse errors do possesse
The wretched minds of loving fooles,
That breathlesse runne to such distresse,
That lively heate fond sorrowe cooles ?
They reke not where they stand or fall,
Deny them love, take life and all.

It seemes a death to change their mind,
Or alter once their foolish will,
Such od conceites they seeke to find,
As may their childish fancies fill,
It makes me smile thus, now and then,
To see the guise of foolish men.

I can not stoupe to wandring lure ;
My mind is one, and still the same ;
While breath, while life, while daies indure,
I will not yeeld to worke my shame,
Then if you strive and stirre in vaine,
Blame but the fruites of idle braine.

If I do sometimes looke awrie,
As loth to see your blobered face,
And loth to heare a yong man crie,
Correct for shame this childish race,
And though you weepe and waile to mee
Yet let not all these follies see.

Good Harry leave these raging toyes,
That thus from restlesse fancie flow,
Unfit for men, not meete for boyes,
And let's a while talke wisely now ;
If that you love me as you say,
Then cease such madnes to bewray.

If

Willowie

If honest love could breed content,
And frame a liking to your will,
I would not sticke to give consent,
To like you so, and love you still,
But while lust leades your love awrie,
Assure your selfe, I will denie.

CANT. LXIII.

AND is it lust that welds my love ?
Or is it but your fond surmise ?
Will you condemne, before you prove ?
How can I thinke you to be wise ?
O faithfull hart, yet thrice accurst,
That art misdeemd thus at the first.

If lust did rule my restlesse hart,
If onely lust did beare the sway,
I quickly could asswage my smart,
With choise, and change, for every day,
You should not laugh to see me weepe,
If lust were it that strake so deepe.

And yet at first, before I knew,
What vaine it was that bled so sore,
Wher lust or love, to prove it trew,
I tooke a salve that still before
Was wont to helpe, I chose me one,
With whom I quencht my lust alone.

Yet

Yet this (sweete hart) could not suffise,
Nor any way content my mind,
I felt new qualmes, and new arise,
And stronger still, and strong I find,
By this, I thus doe plainly prove,
It is not lust, but faithfull love.

A bad argument to prove good love.

And yet to prove my love more sure,
And since you will not false your faith,
This pining plight I will indure,
Till death do stop your husbands breath ;
To have me then if you will say,
I will not marrie, till that day.

If you will give your full consent,
When God shall take your husbands life,
That then you will be well content,
To be my spouse and loving wife,
I will be joyfull as before,
And till that time will crave no more.

CANT. LXIV.

No more ; no more, too much of this,
And is mine ynch become an ell ?
If thus you writh my words amis,
I must of force, bid you farewell,
You shew in this your loving bent,
To catch at that I never ment.

I

Willowbie

I thought at first, (but this my thought
I must correct;) that simple love,
In guilles hart these fits had wrought.
But I ; too simple I, now prove,
That under shew of great good will,
My harts delight you seeke to spill.

He loves me well, that tils a trap,
Of deepe deceite, and deadly baine,
In dreadfull daungers thus to wrap
His friend by baites of flering traine :
Though flattering tongues can paint it brave
Your words do shew, what love you have.

I must consent, and you will stay
My husbands death. Obtaining this,
You thinke I could not say you Nay :
Nor of your other purpose mis,
You are deceiv'd, and you shall trie,
That I such faith, and friends defie.

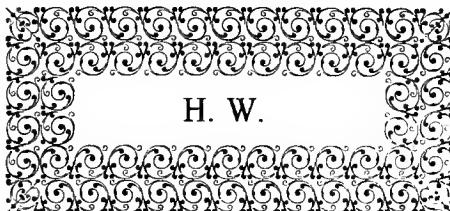

Such fained, former, faithlesse plot
I most detest, and tell you plaine,
If now I were to cast my lot,
With free consent to chuse againe,
Of all the men I ever knew,
I would not make my choice of you.

Let this suffice, and do not stay
On hope of that which will not be,
Then cease your sute, go where you may,
Vaine is your trust to hope on me,
My choice is past, my hart is bent,
While that remaines, to be content.

Now

Now having tract the winding trace,
Of false resemblance, give me leave,
From this to shew a stranger grace,
Then heretofore, you did perceave,
 Gainst friendlesse love if I repyne,
 The fault is yours, & none of myne.

CANT. LXV.

I WILL not wish, I cannot vow,
 Thy hurt, thy grieve, though thou disdaine,
Though thou refuse, I know not how,
To quite my love with love againe :
 Since I have swore to be thy frend,
 As I began, so will I end.

Sweare thou my death, worke thou my woe,
Conspire with greefe to stop my breath,
Yet still thy frend, & not thy foe
I will remayne untill my death :
 Choose whome thou wilt, I will resigne,
 If love, or faith, be like to mine.

But while I wretch too long have lent
My wandering eyes to gase on thee.
I have both tyme, & travell spent
In vaine, in vaine : and now I see,
 They do but frutelesse paine procure,
 To haggard kytes that cast the lure.

When

Willowie

When I am dead, yet thou mayst boast,
Thou hadst a frend, a faithfull frend,
That living liv'd to love thee most,
And lov'd thee still unto his end ;
Though thou unworthy, with disdaine
Did'st force him live and dye in paine.

Now may I sing, now sigh, and say,
Farewell my lyfe, farewell my joy,
Now mourne by night, now weepe by day,
Love, too much love breedes myne annoy :
What can I wish, what should I crave,
Sith that is gon, that I should have.

Though hope be turned to dispaire,
Yet give my tongue leave to lament,
Bleeeve me now, my hart doth sweare,
My lucklesse love was truly ment :
Thou art too proud, I say no more,
Too stout, and wo is me therefore.

Felice chi p'uo.

CANT. LXVI.

Avisa having heard this patheticall fancy of H.W. and seeing the teares trill downe his cheeke, as halfe angry to see such passionate follie, in a man that should have goverment, with a frowning countenance turned from him, without farder answere, making silence her best reply, and following the counsell of the wise, not to answere a foole in his folly lest he grow too foolish, returnd quite from him, and left him alone. But he departing home, and not able by reason to rule the raginge fume of this phantasticall fury, cast himselfe uppon his bed bed, & refusing both foode and comfort for many daies together, fell at length into such extremity of passionate affections, that as many as saw him, had great doubt of his health, but more of his wittes, yet, after a longe space absence, having procured some respite from his sorrowes, he takes his pen and wrate, as followeth.

H. W.

LYKE wounded Deare whose tender sydes are bath'ed in blood,
From deadly wound, by fatall hand & forked shaft :
So bleedes my pearced hart, for so you thinke it good,
With cruelty to kill, that which you got by craft :
You still did loth my lyfe, my death shall be your gaine,
To dye to do you good, I shall not thinke it paine.

*My person could not please, my talke was out of frame,
Though hart and eye could never brooke my loathed sight,
Yet love doth make me say, to keepe you out of blame,
The fault was only mine, and that you did but right,
When I am gon, I hope my ghost shall shew you plaine,
That I did truly love, and that I did not faine.*

*Now must I fynd the way to waile while lyfe doth last,
Yet hope I soone to see, the end of dolefull dayes ;
When floudes of flowing feares, and creeping cares are past,
Then shall I leave to sing, and write these pleasant layes :
For now I loth the foode, and bloud that lends me breath,
I count all pleasures paine that keepe me from my death.*

CANT. LXVII.

THOUGH you refuse to come or send,
Yet this I send, though I do stay,
Unto these lynes some credit lend,
And marke it well what they shall say,
They cannot hurt, then reade them all,
They do but shew their maisters fall.

*All fortune flat I had defyde,
To choice and change defyance sent,
No frowning fates could have denyde,
My loves persute, & willing bent,
This was my mynd, if I had found
Your love as myne, but half so sound.*

What Neptunes rage could I have fear'd
To quell the gulfe that rudely raves,
What perill could have once appear'd ?
But now that I am left alone ;
Bare thoughts enforce my hart to grone.

With thee to passe the chamfered groundes,
What force or feare could me restraine ?
With thee to chase the Scillan houndes,
Me thinkes it were a pleasant paine,
This was my thought, this is my love,
Which none but death, can yet remove.

It then behoves my fainting sprite,
To lofty skyes returne againe,
Sith onely death brings me delite,
Which loving live in curelesse paine,
What hap to strangers is assind,
If knowne frendes doo such favour find.

How often have my frendly mates
My loving errours laught to scorne,
How oft for thee found I debates,
Which now I wish had beene forborne :
But this & more would I have donne,

LIKE silly Bat, that loves the darke,
And seldome brookes the wished light,
Obscurely so I seeke the marke,
That aye doth vanish from my sight,
Yet shall she say, I died her frend,
Though by disdaine she sought mine end.

Faine would I cease, and hold my tong,
But love and sorrow set me on,
Needes must I plaine of spitefull wrong,
Sith hope and health will both be gon,
When branch from inward rind is fled,
The barke doth wish the body dead.

If ever man were borne to woe,
I am the man, you know it well,
My chiefest friend, my greatest foe,
And heaven become my heavie hell,
This do I feele, this do I find :
But who can loose, that God will bind ?

For since the day, O dismall day
I first beheld that smiling face,
My fancie made her choice straightway,
And bad all other loves give place,
Yea, since I saw thy lovely sight,
I frize and frie, twixt joye and spight.

Willobie

Where fond suspect doth keepe the gate
There trust is chased from the dore,
Then faith and truth will come too late,
Where falshod will admit no more ;
Then naked faith and love must yeeld,
For lacke offence, and flie the field.

Then easier were it for to chuse,
To crale against the craggie hill,
Then sutes, then sighs, then words to use,
To change a froward womans will,
Then othes and vowes are all in vaine,
And truth a toye, where fancies raigne.

Ama, Chi ti ama.

CANT. LXXI.

MY tongue, my hand, my ready hart,
That speake, that felt, that freely thought,
My love, my limbes, my inward smart,
Have all performed what they ought,
These all do love you yet, and shall,
And when I change, let vengeance fall.

Shall I repent, I ever saw
That face, that so can frowne on mee ?
How can I wish, when fancies draw
Mine eies to wish, and looke for thee ?
Then though you do denie my right,
Yet bar me not from wished sight.

And

*And yet I crave, I know not what,
Perchance my presence breeds your paine,
And if I were perswaded that,
I would in absence still remaine,
You shall not feele the smallest griefe
Although it were to save my life.*

*Ah woe is me, the case so stands,
That sencelesse papers plead my wo,
They can not weepe, nor wring their hands,
But say perhaps, that I did so,
And though these lines for mercie crave,
Who can on papers pittie have?*

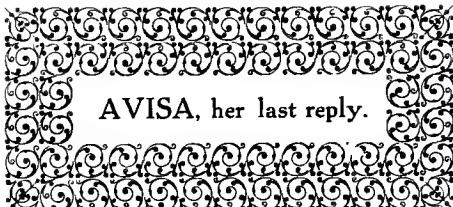

*O that my grieves, my sighs, my teares,
Might plainly muster in your vew,
Then paine, not pen, then faith, not feares,
Should vouch my vowes, and writings trew,
This wishing shewes a wofull want,
Of that which you by right should grant.*

*Now fare thou well, whose wel-fare brings
Such lothsome feare, and ill to me,
Yet heere thy friend this farewell sings,
Though heavie word a farewell be.
Against all hope, if I hope still,
Blame but abundance of good will.*

Grand Amore, grand Dolore,

CANT.

CANT. LXXII.

*YOUR long Epistle I have read,
Great store of words, and little wit,
(For want of wit, these fancies bred)
To aunswere all I thinke not fit,
But in a word, you shall perceave,
How kindly I will take my leave.*

*When you shall see sweete Lillies grow,
And flourish in the frozen yse,
When ebbing tides shall leave to flow,
And mountaines to the skies shall ryse,
When roring Seas do cease to rave,
Then shall you gaine the thing you crave.*

*When Fish as haggard Hawkes shall flye,
When Seas shall flame, and Sunne shall freese.
When mortall men shall never die,
And earth shall yeeld, nor herbe nor trees,
Then shall your words my mind remove,
And I accept your proffered love.*

*When Thames shall leave his channell drie,
When Sheepe shall feede amidst the Sea.
When stones aloft, as Birds shall flye,
And night be changed into day,
Then shall you see that I will yeeld,
And to your force resigne the feeld.*

Till

*Till all these these things doe come to passe,
Assure your selfe, you know my mind,
My hart is now, as first it was,
I came not of dame Chrysiedes kind,
Then leave to hope, learne to refraine,
Your mind from that, you seeke in vaine.*

*I wish you well, and well to fare,
And there with all a godly mind,
Devoid of lust, and foolish care,
This if you seeke, this shall you find.*

*But I must say, as erst before,
Then cease to waile, and write no more.*

The Authors conclusion.

SO thus she stands unconquered yet,
As Lambe amidst the Lions pause,
Whom gifts, nor wils, nor force of wit,
Could vanquish once with all their shewes,
To speake the truth, and say no more,
I never knew her like before.

Then blame me not, if I protest,
My sillie Muse shall still commend
This constant A. above the rest,
While others learne their life to mend ;
My tongue on high and high shall raise,
And alway sing her worthie praise.

While hand can write, while wit devise,
While tongue is free to make report,
Her vertue shall be had in prise
Among the best and honest sort,
And they that wil mislike of this,
I shall suspect, they strike amis.

Eternall then let be the fame
Of such as hold a constant mind,
Eternall be the lasting shame
Of such as wave with every wind :
Though some there be that will repine ;
Yet some will praise this wish of mine.

But here I cease for feare of blame
Although there be a great deale more,
That might be spoken of this dame,
That yet lies hid in secret store,
If this be lik't, then can I say
Ye may see more another day.

Agitante calescimus illo
Farewell.

FINIS.

The resolution of a chaste and a constant wife, that minds to continue faithfull unto her husband. To the tune of Fortune.

THOUGH winged Birds, do often skorne the lure,
And flying farre, do thinke themselves most sure,
Yet fancie so, his luring inges frame,
That wildest harts, in time become most tame.

Where secret nature, frames a sweete consent,
Where privie fates their hidden force have bent,
To joyne in hart, the bodies that are twaine,
Flie where you list, you shall returne againe.

From fancies love, I strived still to flie,
Long time I did my fortune flat denie,
Till at the length, my wrastling bred my woe,
Knowing that none, their fortune can forgoe.

For while I liv'd, in prime of vernant youth,
Falshod that shew'd, the face of fained truth,
Falsly gan weave a web of wylie kind ;
So to intrap my plaine and simple mind.

Great were the sutes, great were the frendly signes,
Sweete were the words, to poyson tender minds,
Large were the gifts, great were the proffers made,
To force my mind, to trie a trustlesse trade.

Great were the wights, that dayly did conspire,
To pluck the rose, their fancies did desire,
Traile did the teares, in hope to purchase trust,
Yet this was all, no love, but luring lust.

No

Willowie

No fancie could then force me to replie,
Nor move my mind such doubtfull deeds to trie :
For well I knew, although I knew not all,
Such trickle trades procure a suddaine fall.

Thus did I mount, thus did I flie at will,
Thus did I scape the foulers painted skill,
Thus did I save my feathers from their lime,
Thus did I live a long and happie time.

Cupid that great, and mightie kings could move,
Could never frame, my hart to like of love,
His limber shafts, and eke his golden dart,
Were still too blunt, to pearce my steele hart.

Till at the length, as nature had assind,
Unto the earth, I bent a willing mind :
He was the first, to whom I gave my hand,
With free consent, to live in holy band.

Eva that gave her faithfull promise so,
With Adam to live in wealth and in wo,
Of faithfull hart, could never have more store,
Then I have felt, thrice three yeares space & more.

When I had giev'n my hart and free consent,
No earthly thing could make me once repent,
No Seas of griefe, ne cares that I could find,
Could so prevaile, to make me change my mind.

Did fortune fawne, or did our fortune frowne,
Did he exalt, or did he cast him downe,
My faithfull hart did ever make me sing,
Welcome to me, what ever fortune bring.

Now when I thought, all dangers had bene past
Of lawlesse sutes, and sutors at the last,
The trade, the time, the place wherein I live,
Unto this Lampe, new oyle doe dayly give.

But

But like of this all you that love to range,
My fixed hart likes not the skittish change,
Now have I made the choice that shall remaine,
Vengeance befall, when I do change againe.

Now have I found a friend of high desart,
I have his love, and he has stoole my hart,
Now fortune packe, with all thy pelting store,
This is my choice, I like to chuse no more.

Cease then your sutes, yee lustie gallants all,
Thinke not I stoupe at every Faulkners call,
Trusse up your lures, your luring is in vaine,
Chosen is the Pearch, whereon I will remaine.

Spend not your breath in needlesse fained talkes,
Seeke other mates, that love such roving walkes,
None shall ever vaunt, that they have my consent,
Then let me rest, for now I am content.

Great be your birth, and greater be your wealth,
I reckon more my credit and my health,
Though I be weake, my power very scant,
God so provides that I shall never want.

Be mine owne at home, or be he absent long,
Absent or present, this still shall be my song,
Fortune my friend, A friend to me hath lent,
This is my choise, and therewith am content.

Range they that list, and change who ever will,
One hath mine oth, and his I will be still,
Now let us fall, or let us rise on hie,
Still will I sing, now well content am I.

The

The praise of a contented mind.

THE God that framde the fixed pole, and Lamps of gleaming light,
The azure skies, and twinkling Starres, to yeld this pleasant sight,
In wisdome pight this perelesse plot, a rare surpassing frame,
And so with brave and sweete delights, have fraught and dect the same,
That every creature keepes his course, his compasse and his place,
And with delightfull joye runnes, his pointed time and race,
In one consent they friendly joyne, from which they can not fall,
As if the Lord had first ordaine, one soule to guide them all,
In every part there doth remaine, such love and free consent,
That every frame doth kisse his lot, and cries I am content,
The Articke pole that never moves, by which the shipmen saile,
Craves not to change his frisen Axe, nor from his place to steale,
The fixed Starres, that sildome range, delight their circles so,
That from their choise by wanton change, they never yeld to go.
The Sunne and Moone that never hide, their brave resplendent raiers,
Did never wish in wavering will, to change their wonted waisies.
The roaring Sea, with ebbs and tides, that leapes against the land,
Is yet content for all his rage, to stay within his band.
The slooting Fish, the singing Bird, all beasts with one consent,
To live according to their kind, do shew them selvers content.
So that by practise and by proose, this sentence true I find,
That nothing in this earth is like, a sweete contented mind.
The beasts, the Birds, and ayrie powers, do keepe their compasse well,
And onely man above the rest, doth love for to rebell.
This onely man, the Lord above, with reason did indue
Yet onely man, ungratefull man, doth shew himselfe untrue.
No sooner was brave Adam made, but Sathan wrought his thrall,
For not content, aspiring pride, procurde his suddaine lall.
The princely Primerose of the East, proud Eva gave consent,
To change her blisse to bale, for that, her mind was not content.
Thus may the darkest eie perceive, how follie strikes us blind,
Thus may we see the often change, of mans unconstant mind,
The Moone, the Sea, by natures course, do not so often change,
As do the wits and wanton wils, of such as love to range.
The rangling rage that held from home Ulisses all too long,
Made chaste Penelope complaine of him that did her wrong.
The lothsome daies, and lingering nights, her time in spinning spent:
She would not yeld to change her choice, because she was content.
Such calme content doth plainly shew, that love did much abound,
Where free consent breeds not content, such faith is seldome found.
For carelesse Crysed that had gin, her hand, her faith and hart,
To Troilus her trustie friend, yet falsely did depart:
And giglotlike Irom Troye towne, to Grecians campe would goe,

To

To Diomede, whom in the end, she found a faithless foy,
For having shiu'd the gentle slip, his love was turnd to hate.
And she a leaper did lament, but then it was too late.
Now foolish fancie was the cause, this Crysed did lament,
For when she had a faithfull friend, she could not be content.
Ten thousand fell at Troyes siege, whose bloud had not been spent,
If fickle headded Hellen could, at first have bene content.
You can not in the Serpents head, such deadly poysor find,
As is the fained love that lives, with discontented mind.
Of all the wisdome of the wise, that I could ever tell,
This wisdome beares the chiefeſt sway, to stay when we be well,
As sweetest Musicke rudely jarres, except there be consent:
So hottest love doth quickly coole, except it be content.
Of all the brave resounding words, which God to man hath lent,
This soundeth sweetest in mine eare, to say. I am content.

APPENDIX.

From 1596 edition of 'Avisa' as reprinted in 1635 edition (pp. 123-131).

THE A P O L O G I E , shewing the true meaning of WILLOBIE his AVISA.

TO a new Edition give me leave to adde a new Instruction, for such as I understand, have made of the other, a false and captious construction. If Sapiens come à Sapore (as some will have it, and that as the Taste judgeth of meates, so wise men judge of natures and intents) I marvaile that some men so greatly affecting the name of wisedome, have by rash judgement, (the badge of folly) shewed themselves so much unwise, and without sap. But I see that as it happeneth in the distemperature of the body, so it often fareth in the disorders of the minde: for the body being oppressed with the venomous malice of some predominate humor, the seate of judgement which is the taste, is corrupted: and meates, which of their owne nature are wholesome and sweete, seeme unto the mouth (ill affected) both both bitter, unsavorie, and unwholesome: So the heart being possessed with a veine of vanitie, or a spirit of prejudicate opinion, directeth judgement by the line of fancie, not of reason: and the bitternes of his owne infected folly, marres the sweete taste of other mens simple and honest meaning. Therefore because some have applyed this Poeme, as they ought not; I am inforced to speake that which I thought not.

Many branches of errors, have sprouted forth from the roote of one fond and misconstrued conceite. The growing of such grafts, I hoped that I had sufficiently prevented in the Preface first printed with this booke. But this is the generall fault of all rash Readers, when they see a booke, they turne either to the middest, or the latter end or at all adventures reading that which at first opening they happen on: if that presently doe not fit their fancie, they will sodainly pronounce a definitive sentence of condemnation, both against the matter and the maker; as if by the inspiration of some Pythian Oracle, they were presently brought in possession of the whole sence, meaning and intent of the Author, having reade neither the preface, nor perchance six lines of the whole booke.

But most I marvaile that one P. C. (who seemeth to bee a Scholler) hath beene carried away with this stremme of misconceived folly: For I dare pawne my life, that there is no particular woman in the world, that was either partie or privie to any one sentence or word in that booke. This poeticall fiction was penned by the Author at least for

for thirtie and five yeeres since, (as it will be proved) and lay in wast papers in his study, as many other prettie things did, of his devising; and so might have continued still (as his Susanna yet doth) had not I, contrarie to his knowledge, with paine collected it; and (in consideration of the good end, to which it was directed) published it. Seeing therefore that I gave the offence, I must satisfie for it, in defending innocents from slanderous tonges. This plaine Morall device was plotted only for the repression and opening of Vice; and to the exaltation and triumph of Vertue, as hee himselfe saith.

*My sleepy Muse that wakes but now,
To vertues prayse hath past her vow.*

Vertue therefore being Genus, and Chastitie Species, if hee should have described it, either in Genere or Specie, as some have done, he might have beene as obscure as some others have beene. Hee fained therefore an Individuum, as it were a particular of this speciall, the more familiarly to expresse it, as it were in common talke, as if one did answere another, to delight the reader the more, with variety of folly quenched presently, with the like varietie of Vertue. To this fained Individuum, he gave this fained name Avisa. Which poeticall fiction P. C. calleth a pamphlet. It is folly for a man to despise that which he cannot mend. The Author was unknowne, not because hee could not; but because hee would not know him: his true name being open in every Page. He saith: the Author hath registered the meanest.

nest. I thought that Chastitie had not beene the meanest, but rather one of the greatest gifts, that God giveth to men or women. If by the meanest, he meane any other object or subject of Willowie his Muse, then Chastity it selfe (under the fained name of Avisa) it is a meaning of his owne making; and a subiect of his owne suggestion, far from the mind of the first maker. None can eternize their folly in things which they never thought of: but I pray God some other have not eternized their follies, more wayes then one. If this fained name of Avisa mislike any man, for any hidden or private cause to the Author or me unknowne, let him call it what he will: So that he understand that it is Chastity it selfe, not any woman in the world, that is fained to give these foyles to this foule vice.

Therefore, whereas some in their gravity despise it for the lightnesse, and thinke it but a fantasticall toy, without any reach or secret sence, I will not strive to turne the course of that streame. Yet if my fancie might be admitted a judge in this matter, it would produce a sentence of a farre contrary nature. For it seemeth rather to me that the Author intending some rare exploit, endevoured to describe the doubtful combat, that is daily fought betweene Vice and Vertue, two princes of great power. And to that end he chose out two of the most approved Captaines of both the Campes to trie the quarrell. Out of the one hee tooke Luxuriam, Lecherie, which as we see, swayeth the minds of the greatest men, and commandeth largely. Out of the other,

he

he opposeth Castitatem, Chastitie, a souldier rarely seene (in these dayes) to resist the enemies Push, and therefore in one of his verses, is called A Phœnix, or rare-seene bird.

The souldiers which hee drawes forth to fight under the banner of this Captaine Lecherie, are all estates and degrees, and all Countries and Common-wealthes : meaning, that no men, from the highest estate to the lowest ; no Countries, from the most civil to the most barbarous, are free from the servile subjection of this raging principality : So that in this part, hee describeth the combats, the assaults, the intisements, and allurements, which Noblemen, Gentlemen, and all other loose and unbridled mindes, can by money, wealth, pleasure, force, fancy, or any other patheticall passion, procure, or devise, to raze the walls of besieged Chastity. Under whose banner he sendeth forth onely one poore woman, of a fayned name (minding to shew what the propertie of good women should bee) to resist so many, so mighty, so strong, and subtil enemies, fighting with such forcible weapons of honour, authority, glorie, ease and pleasure, Surely, he imagined, that in some women there was yet left so much Chastitie, as was able to resist the lewd and divelish temptations of all men whatsoever. And therefore, through the whole booke, he attributeth the victory to vertue, and the foyle to folly.

And farther, where as in other bookes, there is found a bare description onely, or naming of Vice or vertue, me thinkes in reading of this, my con-ceite

ceite tels mee that in the person of this woman all the mortall vertues, with one voyce are heard pleading, and discoursing at large against vice, in a lively action: In whose words, (if they bee considered from the beginning to the end) we may see, how the spirit of God striveth against the Spirit of Sathan, by reasons, by Scriptures, and by prophane Histories, to lay open the greatnesse, the foulenesse, the danger, and deceit of this deadly sin, that rageth so hotly, in the unmortified members of mortall men.

On the other side me thinks I see how the Devill calling together all his companie, in hope of a conquest tries all wayes and assayes all meanes to effect his desire. But his labor is imagined heire to be lost, and that there is some modesty, wisedome, honestie and feare of God remaining yet in some women, sufficient at all times to overcome him. Therfore whosoever accounteth this Poeme, but a vaine fiction, cutteth the throat of all feminine faith, and robbeth all chast Ladies of their chiefest honour.

Some others, being much addicted to that sweete bitter sinne of Leacherie, thinke their secret practices of bauderie, to be too plainly described, and therefore labour to have it registered for a meere toy. I will not, as a Physition assay with Helleborus, to purge their heads of those humors, least perhaps they bee of the men of Abydus, who (as Aristotle reporteth) being mad, tooke such delight in their madnesse that they were angry with them that brought them to their wits.

Some

The Apologie.

Some others there be, who when they have read this booke, have blushed to themselves, finding, as they thought, their very words and writings which they had used in the like attempts. In which is to be noted, the force of a guilty conscience, which feares where no feare is, and flyeth when no man followeth. These fancies (forsooth) have framed names to letters, of their owne devices; and they have imagined places of their owne placing, so fitly for everie description, that they will needs inforce the Author to speake of them, whom he never knew; to ayme at their fancies, whose faces he never saw; and to Cypher their names, whose natures to him were ignorant and strange.

Lastly; concerning the fained name of AVISA I have shewed the Authors device, and his reason for the fiction, in the first preface, which I thought would have quailed all other fictions whatsoever.

But yet if farder yee will have my conceit, the order, words, and frame of the whole discourse, force me to think that which I am unwilling to say. That this name insinuateth, that there was never such a woman seene, as heere is described. For the word A'VISA is compounded, (after the Greeke manner) of the privative particle A, which signifieth Non: and of the participle Visus, Visa, Visum, which signifieth, Seene: So that A'visa should signifie (by this) as much as Non visa, that is: Such a woman as was never seene. Which if it bee true, then Avisa is yet unborne, that must rejoice in this prayse. The Author in this booke comparreth this vertue of Chastity unto a Bird, as is seene in his introduction duction, saying: Of Vertues Bird, my muse must sing.

The Apologie.

For as the Birde by his wings mounteth in the aire upwards to heaven: So Chastitie, where ever it is, makes the minde to mount from the base and filthy society of earthly conceits, and fits it to flie up to God, in heavenly meditations; whereas lust and wicked pleasures, chaine the minde in thralldome of fleshly concupiscence (as Prometheus was tyed to the hill Caucasus) which will not suffer the thoughts to ascend by any meanes. The same Hieroglyphicall allusion they meant, that pictured S. John with a Birde sitting by him, to signifie, that of all the foure Evangelistes, hee in his Gospell flew highest, and spake most of the Dietie of Christ. Now therefore the latine word of a Birde being Avis, and the Author (perchance) alluding unto that, did the rather call his victorious mounting victory of Vertue, by the name of Avisa, as alluding to his owne allusion. If any man therefore by this, should take occasion to surmise, that the Author meant to note any woman, whose name sounds something like that name, it is too childish and too absurd, and not beseeming any deepe judgement, considering there are many things, which cannot be applyed to any woman.

But to conclude, thus much, I dare precisely avouch, that the Author intended in this discourse, neither the description or prayse of any particular woman; nor the naming or cyphering of any particular man. But in generall under a fained name insinuateth what godly and constant women should doe doe, and say in such lewde temptations. And also, under fained letters, generally expresseth, what course most of these lawlesse sutors take, in pursuit of their fancied fooleries, and therefore this P. C. hath offred manifest injurie to some, what ever they bee, whom his private fancie hath secretly framed in conceit.

This is the least that I could say, and the last that ever I wil say touching this matter in defence of my friend. If any notwithstanding will continue the errore of their unsatisfied minds they must for ever rest in the rightlesse erring, till the Authour (now of late gone to God) returne from Heaven to satisfie them farder touching his meaning. And so farwel. Oxford this 30.

“ Then let me Faith with Faith compare.

“ Let choyce respect of Persons slide,
“ Let Faith and Faith a while contend,
“ Urge not the Names till cause be tride, “ Tis onely Faith, that we commend,
“ We strive not for Avisa’s fame,
“ We recke not of Avisa’s name.
“ To prove him vaine, that vainely strives,
“ That Chastity is no where found,
“ In English earth, in British wives,
“ That all are fickle, all unsound,
“ We framde a wench, we fain’d a name,
“ That should confound them all with shame

“ To this at first you did consent,
“ And lent with joy a helping hand,
“ You both at first were well content,
“ This fained frame should firmly stand,
“ We to Diana gave the maide,
“ That she might no way be betraied.

“ The mounting Phœnix, chast desire,
“ This Vertue fram’d, to conquer Vice,
“ This Not-seene Nymph, this heatlesse fire,
“ This Chast-found Bird of noble price,
“ Was nam’d Avisa by decree,
“ That Name and nature might agree.

Willoby described no particular woman, but only Chastity and faith her selfe under the name of Avisa.

Chastity is named Avisa, quasi ab Ave. . . .
ti volanti.

If

English Chastity.

If this Avisa represent,	..
Chast Virtue in a fained name,	..
If Chastity it selfe be ment,	..
To be extold with lasting fame :	..
Her Greekish gemme can Juno dare,	..
With this Avisa to compare ?	..
Let wise Ulysses constant mate,	..
Vaunt noble birth her richest boast,	..
Yet will her challenge come too late,	..	Chastity is the gift of God.
When Pride and wealth have done their most,	..
For this Avisa from above	..
Came downe, whose Syre , is mighty Jove .	..
How can you terme her then Obscure ,	..
That shines so bright in every eye ?	..
How is she base that can endure,	..
So long, so much, and mounts so hie ?	..
If she you meane, have no such power,	..
Tis your Avisa , none of our.	..
This not seene bird, though rarely found	..	True Chasti-
In proud attire, in gorgeous gownes,	..	ty is soone and oftener
Though she love most the countrie ground,	..	found in the
And shunnes the great and wealthy townes ;	..	poorest then in the richest.
Yet if you know a bird so base,	..
In this Device she hath no place.	..
Was Greekish dame twice ten yeares chast,	..
Did she twice fiftie flat deny ?	..	Chastity
Avisa hath Ten Thousand past,	..	daily assaul-
To thousands daily doth reply,	..	ted a thou-
If your Avisa have a blot	..	sand wayes
Your owne it is, we know her not.	..	yet it still getteth the victorie.

The Victory of

” Some greatly doubt your Grecian dame
” Where all be true that Poets faine :
” But Chastity who can for shame,
” Denie she hath, and will remaine,
” Though women daily doe relent,
” Yet this Avisa cannot faint.

The effects of true Chastite.

” She quels by Reason filthy lust,
” Shee chokes by Wisdom leude Desires,
” Shee shunnes the baite that Fondlings trust,
” From Satan’s sleights she quite retires ;
” Then let Avisa’s prayse bee spread,
” When rich and poore, when all are dead.

” Let idle, vaine, Flewent Riggess,
” Be Canton’de with eternal shame,
” Let blowing buddes of blessed twigges,
” Let Chaste-Avisa live with fame :
” This said, Sweet Pallas takes her rest,
” Judge Prince(quoth she) what you thinke best.

The sentence of Rogero against Juno.

But wise Rogero pausing staid,
Whose silence seem’d to shew some doubt,
Yet this at last he gravely said :
Ye Nimphes that are so faire, so stout,
Sith I your Judge to Judge must be,
Accept in worth, this short decree.

” The question is, where Grecian Ghost,
” Can staine the stemme of Troyan rase :
” Where Ithac Nimphes may onely boast,
” And Brittish Faith account as base,
” Where old Penelops doubtfull fame,
” Selfe Chastity may put to shame ?

English Chastity.

I count Ulysses happy Then,
I deeme our selves as happy Now ;
His wife denide all other men,
I know them yet that will not bow ;
For Chastity I durst compare,
With Greece, with Rome, with who that dare. , ,

Our English earth such Angels breeds,
As can disdaine all Forraine prayse, " England for
For Learning, Wit, for sober Deeds, " Chastitie
All Europe Dames may learne their wayes : " may yet
Sith I of both may take my choyce, " compare
Our Not-seene Bird shall have my voyce. " with any country in the world. , ,

Sweete Chastity shall have my hand, , ,
In England found, though rarely seene, , ,
Rare Chastitie, To this I stand, , ,
Is still as firme, as erst hath beene : , ,
While this Avisa is the shee, , ,
This Chaste desire shall Victor be , , Conclusion

The Rose appeares in Venus face,
Vermillion dies pale Juno's cheekes,
They both doe blush at this disgrace,
But Juno chiefe, something mislikes,
As though she felt some inward touch,
That for her Greeke had spoke so much.
